Stennis Tops Mississippi Scramble for Bilbo's Term

Rankin Far Behind; Wright Leading GOP's Sheldon in Race for Governor

ELECTIONS IN BRIEF

MISSISSIPPI—Judge John C. Stennis, who played down the race issue in his campaign, is leading for the Senate seat of the late Theodore Bilbo. Representative William Colmer is running second and Representative John E. Rankin fifth in a field of six.

KENTUCKY—Democratic Representative Earle C. Clements leading Republican Eldon Dummit in the governorship race.

PENNSYLVANIA—Mayor Bernard Samuel, Republican, seeking reelection, ahead of Richardson Dilworth, Democrat.

OHIO—William M. McCullough GOP, has early margin over John B. Quatman, Democrat, for House seat vacated by Representative Robert F. Jones. Soldier bonus apparently winning approval.

NEW YORK—Bonus for veterans leading, while proportional representation in election of New York city council running behind. Abraham J. Multer, Democrat-Liberal, ahead for House seat of Leo F. Rayfiel, now a judge.

INDIANA—Ralph Harvey, Republican, has lead over Democrat Frank A. Henley, for House seat of the late Representative Raymond S. Springer.

DETROIT—Mayor Edward J. Jefferies, seeking a fifth term, trailing Eugene I. Van Antwerp in early returns.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 4 (AP).—Lanky, soft-spoken Circuit Judge John C. Stennis held the lead tonight in a five-way battle for the unexpired United States Senate term of the late Theodore Bilbo.

With 152 precincts reporting out of a total of 1716—but with returns representing a trend in one fourth of Mississippi's 82 counties—Judge Stennis was ahead with 3544 votes. Representative William Colmer (D., Miss.) had 2423; Forrest Jackson, 2885; Paul B. Johnson, jr., 1718; Representative John E. Rankin, jr. (D., Miss.), 1514. Republican Candidate L. R. Collins was credited with 45.

Representative Rankin had boasted that he could "Out-Bilbo Bilbo" in the latter's advocacy of "white supremacy."

For the governorship of Mississippi, returns from 35 precincts gave Democratic Gov. Fielding Wright 3247 against 60 for independent Republican George L. Sheldon, onetime governor of Nebraska. For lieutenant governor,

Colasanto Named City Manager Of Alexandria

Nicholas A. Colasanto, 43-year-old Alexandria attorney, last night was named City Manager of Alexandria by a 6 to 3 vote of the City Council.

He will take her 15.

Colasanto, who has had no prior experience in Municipal Government, was picked from a list of more than 60 applicants including four present city managers. He succeeds Carl Budwesky, who resigned August 1. Since his resignation, Joseph M. Pancoast has been acting as city manager.

Councilman Everett A. Hellmuth described Colasanto as "energetic, wil cooperate with the council, knows how and when to say no and is honest."

Mayor William T. Wilkins, who with Councilmen R. Samuel Luckett and George Hay Bender, voted against Colasanto, said "he has absolutely no qualifications for the post."

GOP Shows Unusual Strength In Southwest Virginia Voting

Northern Section Vote Follows Party Lines; No Upsets

BULLETIN

Late returns from two of four precincts in the Providence District of Fairfax County gave G. Wallace Carper 456 votes to 62 for L. B. Morris, who was killed in an automobile accident last week, and 138 for Lisle A. Smith, urged by insurent Democrats and Republicans as a write-in candidate for the Board of Supervisor post.

Most of the Northern Virginia area followed traditional party lines in yesterday's election, with no "upsets," and no sharp contests in the area outside Arlington.

In Virginia as a whole, 11 out of 40 Senate seats and 22 out of 100 House seats were contested. One Republican candidate for a Senate seat was unopposed.

State Senator Andrew W. Clarke, who is just completing his first term in the Virginia General Assembly, had easy sledding in yesterday's election, and on the basis of incomplete returns seemed certain of reelection.

With 43 precincts out of 49 in Alexandria, Fairfax and Prince William counties reporting, Senator Clarke had 5227 votes to 2050 for Thomas C. Graham, his Republican opponent.

Other election results in the northern Virginia area were:

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—Republicans showed unusual strength in southwest Virginia voting in early returns from Senate and House districts as most of the State cast the nominal Democratic majorities.

Ted Dalton, incument Republican from the 21st Senatorial District, was leading Ben Chapman, Democrat, 4010 votes to 3220 votes in 52 of the 72 precincts in the district. Some of the large precincts missing were in Democratic territory.

In 21 of the 53 precincts in the 15th Senatorial District (Smyth, Washington and Bristol, George M. Warren, Democrat, was leading Homer C. McFadden, Republican, 2247 to 1372 for the seat vacated by W. N. Neff, Democrat.

The first six precincts to report in the Sixteenth Senatorial District (Lee and Scott) out of a total of 45 have Senator Lloyd Robinette, Democrat, only 468 votes to 697 for C. S. Pendleton, sr., Republican.

In the Eighteenth Senatorial District (Buchanan, Russell, Tazewell) Senator Harry Stuart, veteran Democrat, was leading T. C. Bowen, jr., Republican, 1472 to 1443.

In the Twenty-fourth Senatorial District (Page, Harrisonburg, Rockingham, Rappanannock and Warren) Raymond Guest, Democrat, had 2781 to 887 for Jacob A. Garber, incumbent Republican, in 23 of 68 precincts. A large part of

Arabian Oil Cost Too Much, Witnesses Say

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Navy was forced to pay the Arabian-American Oil Co. "too much" for oil during 1945 because of the urgency of the military necessity, two former Navy procurement officers testified yesterday.

The two former Navy officers said they were directed to make the contracts when the company would not lower the price even though they considered the price the Government had to pay "unfair."

A. A. MacKrille, former Navy commander who was in charge of the 1945 negotiations with the Arabian-American Oil Co., and D. E. Bodenschatz, a former lieutenant who assisted him, told the Senate War Investigating Committee they had "to make a contract."

MacKrille said he protested to Capt. A. W. Rutter, one of his Navy superiors, that the price $1.05 a barrel—was "unfair."

'Had Nothing To Do With Price'

"Rutter said we had to make a contract and that we had nothing to do with price, which was correct," MacKrille testified and that ARAMCO officials refused to compromise on the price.

Bodenschatz testified that he had never agreed that the price was fair but that Aramco officials presented the offer on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. The urgency of the war made acceptance of the offer absolutely necessary, Bodenschatz told the committee.

Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.) commented: "The picture you have drawn here is not a very pleasant one. It looks as though you operated under duress."

Heads Export Unit Now

Bodenschatz acknowledged under questioning by William Rogers, committee counsel, that he and his fellow Navy negotiators knew when the contract was drawn that the Petroleum Administration for War had rejected a price of $1.05 a barrel in 1943 from the Bahrein Petroleum Co. Bahrein is a sub-

Area Traffic Accidents Fatal To Man, Youth

Alexandrian, 18, Dies In Motorcycle Crash; Passenger Injured

Traffic accidents in nearby Virginia and Maryland yesterday killed a 53-year-old Washington man and an 18-year-old Alexandria motorcyclist.

Alexander M. Graham of 3133 Connecticut ave. nw., was fatally injured shortly after noon when struck by a tractor-trailer truck on Baltimore blvd., opposite the Berwyn, Md., gold course. He died at Leland Memorial Hospital in Riverdale, Md. about 1 p. m.

Passenger Injured

The Virginia fatality was L. C. Campbell, jr., 18, of RFD 4, Alexandria, fatally hurt when his motorcycle collided with the rear end of an automobile 1½ miles south of Alexandria on Highway 1. He died in Alexandria Hospital at 4:55 p. m., 40 minutes after the accident.

A passenger on the motorcycle, Woodrow Cash, 25, of R. F. D. 4, suffered a fractured left wrist.

Driver of the car, George H. Palmer, 78, of Bradenton, Fla., was released on $1000 bond for appearance in court at Fairfax Friday on charges of involuntary manslaughter.

Driver Released on Bond

Mr. Graham, a resident of Washington about 13 years, was a representative of the Hiram Walker Co. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Irene Graham, and a daughter, Eileen.

Maryland State Police said he apparently had climbed out of his car after having motor trouble. Driver of the truck, Milton T. Warring, 4620 Sargent rd. ne., was released on $1100 bond on charges of reckless driving and manslaughter. He is to appear in court November 27.

'Dignity Now Preserved'

Middy Says Physical Hazing Is Out at U. S. Naval Academy

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—Physical hazing "no longer has a place" at the U. S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, a midshipman said to-day.

Second Classman Malcolm E. Phares of Central City, Nebr., in a broadcast said that among the middies "the idea is that a man's self dignity must be preserved, even when he is being corrected."

The midshipman said that in other years there had been a practice that upper classmen would order plebes to "come around" if mistakes were noticed.

This meant, Phares said, that they would be asked to come to an upper classman's quarters to do push-ups or obey certain other orders.

He referred to a class policy drafted this year by the class which will graduate in 1948 in which it was stated that "private, man to man correction will supplant all practices of hazing." The class policy was approved by Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., academy superintendent.

First-year men must still toe the mark for their own good, the Nebraska Middy said, adding:

"Discipline is firmly established in the brigade because we are part of the Navy, and from the day we enter we must recognize the necessity for respect for authority, and immediate unhesitant obedience. Pledge year is designed to stress this."

Questioned during the broadcast about published reports of a midshipman who criticized plebe year and the Navy educational policy, Phares said it had not been his experience.

"There are always a few who are not adapted to or who do not like military life and who make the mistake of entering upon it," Phares said.

Democrats Rebel And Herter Drafts Provision Assuring Bipartisan Makeup

A GOP plan for a 7-man European reconstruction corporation to handle all foreign relief, with Republicans in majority control of the agency, appears headed for trouble today.

Democratic members of the House Foreign Economic group, better known as the Herter committee, complained privately that it overstepped the legislative province and usurped the President's appointive powers.

The plan, probably toned down somewhat from its original scope, will be presented to the 19-member special House committee by Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.) at today's first formal meeting since the group returned from Europe.

Alternative Plan Drawn

As first drawn, the plan contemplated not only a new agency, independent of the State Department, but Republican selection in advance of a majority of the men who will run it, by submission of "appointment panels" to the President.

Doubts as to constitutionality, raised in both Democratic and Republican quarter, led to formulation of an alternative plan that may be submitted instead. This would vest in the President the right to name all seven directors of the corporation, with one condition. He would name the seven only after consultation with House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., and Senate President Pro Tem Arthur H. Vandenberg.

Cards Stacked For GOP

Preparation of the compromise alternative by Herter followed a 90-minute conference with Vandenberg. The Michigan Republican, whose Senate Foreign Relations Committee will meet jointly with the House Foreign Affairs group next Monday to launch work on the aid programs, opened a round of conferences on procedure with colleagues and State Department officials.

Herter's original proposal empowered the President to name three of the seven directors of the proposed new aid agency.

Old London City Gives Antiques To Elizabeth

London, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Princess Elizabeth's wedding gift from the ancient City of London—the financial district—a magnificent collection of antique Sheraton and Adam furniture—was given to her today at a Buckingham Palace ceremony.

The furniture includes a pair of Sheraton satinwood semicircular side tables with square tapered legs, with a frieze and top of inlaid vases, flowers and scrolls; a pair of Adam oval mirrors with gilt-fluted frames, a set of five Sheraton elbow chairs, two window seats with pierced oval wheel backs and sides painted with honeysuckle and medallions on a brown background, a Sheraton satinwood Pembroke table and an Adam half-circular chest in harewood. The furniture dates mostly from the period around 1780.

Intelligence Takes Back Some 'Risks'

Cleared by Chief Of Super-Secret Unit; Others Still Being Investigated

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Some of the dozen workers dropped by Central Intelligence Agency for "security" reasons were back on the job yesterday.

The super-secret agency had decided they could be trusted, and they had been cleared by the chief, Rear Admiral Roscoe H. Hillenkoetter.

Other workers still were under suspension as bad security risks, and still were being investigated. CIA spokesmen would not say how many of the 12 were cleared, or how many still were suspended.

Can Suspend or Fire

Like the State Department, the CIA has power to suspend, or fire, any of its workers who are thought to be poor security risks. About two weeks ago the CIA suspended 12 persons on this ground. Some had been checking the programs of foreign radio stations. Others were said to have worked on the files. An investigation of the habits, records and backgrounds of the 12 got under way at once.

One of those dropped was a woman member of the CIO United Public Workers of America, a union which has been accused of Communist leanings. CIO officials filed a strong protest in their member's behalf, and it was understood to have been settled that she was not dropped because she belonged to the union. Whether she was one of those put back to work was not given out.

Some Had Hearings

Some or all of the 12 who were dropped had hearings before a special CIA security board, and it appeared some of them managed to persuade the board that they were trustworthy. However, no details were given out by the CIA. Nor was it clear when or whether those still suspended will be fired, or reinstated.

Meanwhile, new attacks were made on the State Department for firing seven of its staff as "bad security risks" without telling them exactly what they were charged with, or telling them the evidence against them. Even when these workers went before an appeal board, they did know what charges they were appealing from, or what evidence they had to answer.

Would Disclose Source

The department's position was that to file exact charges, and back them up with evidence, would uncover the source of its data, and thus handicap its security-loyalty program.

The seven were among 10 persons fired by the State Department in July. A week later, Secretary of State Marshall said there was evidence that some of the 10 had indirect contacts with foreign agents.

Later three of the seven were allowed to quit, which cleared them of the disloyalty implied in Marshall's statement. The others, however, lost appeals to a State Department board, and nothing was said about them officially until this week, when Acting Secretary Robert A. Lovett said in a letter that all they were fired for being unsuitable for jobs that involved security.

Suicide Laid to Disillusionment

3d Term Suggestion Angered Roosevelt, Winant Book Says

Friends Believe Diplomat Killed Himself on Impulse

President Wanted Others to Shoulder Burden, He Wrote

Concord, N. H., Nov. 4 (Spl.).—Illness, overwork and "the growing disillusionment of today" led to the sudden impulse on which American diplomat John G. Winant fired a fatal bullet through his head last night, friends believed today.

Here and throughout the world, old friends of the 58-year-old wartime ambassador to Britain considered reasons that may have motivated his suicide. But all were unanimous in shock at the act and grief over his death.

It was a suicide "without premeditation," said Henry A. Laughlin, president of Houghton-Mifflin Co., publishers of Winant's memoirs, scheduled for release November 18. Laughlin talked with Winant by phone less than eight hours before the Lincolnesque statesman was found sprawled beside a firearms cabinet in his son's bedroom at the Winant home here.

"I can't believe it," exclaimed his wife, the former Constance Rivington Russell, when she arrived here by plane today. "We were so happy together in New York last week."

Mrs. Winant had flown from New York under the impression that her husband had met death accidentally, the Associated Press said.

Perhaps the most significant clew to Winant's unexpected action was Boston, Nov. 4 (AP).—Memoirs of John Gilbert Winant say the late President Roosevelt displayed "cold anger" when Winant told him late in 1938 it was his duty to run for a third term.

The story is told in "Letter from Grosvernor Square"—a book just completed by the former ambassador to London, who shot and killed himself last night.

Houghton Mifflin Company said the book would be out Nov. 18.

"I will always remember his cold anger when I told him that it was his duty to run for a third term," wrote Winant. "He answered very bluntly that he had done his part as a liberal and that some of the rest of us could share the burden of carrying forward the things we professed to believe."

Winant wrote that when he suggested to the President that he get by himself and think it over, he heard Roosevelt for the first time refer to his affliction by replying:

"'You know, Gil, I can never be alone,' and pointing out of the window of the executive office, he added, 'I cannot even go out and walk alone under those trees. Always someone has to be with me or near me. I am never alone'."

Winant's account is of the years just preceding the war and his term as ambassador.

In the introduction, Winant wrote:

Substantial Tax Relief For All Recommended By Experts' Committee

Present Structure Is Called Stifling To Incentive and Penalty to Success

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A 10-man committee of private tax experts yesterday recommended "substantial tax relief" for all individuals and similar cuts later for corporate taxpayers.

The advisory group, led by Roswell Magill, New York attorney, said the present tax structure smothers incentive to work and produce and punishes those who succeed.

The private tax experts, named last summer by the House Ways and Means Committee to study the methods of revamping the entire tax structure, brought in 48 recommended tax changes, but bypassed the question of rates.

Woll Dissents

Nine signed the report, but one—AFL Vice President Matthew Woll—sharply rapped their conclusions as "contrary to the best interests of the Nation."

Woll charged blind disregard for the revenue requirements of the Marshall Plan and other essential Federal expenditures. He said:

"Their purpose seems to be to attain by indirect and complex methods the result of income tax cutting for the favored few which they do not dare recommend by an outright reduction in taxes."

The nine-man majority asked a reduction for all individuals "with due regard for the cost of living of those in the lower brackets, and for the needs of the balance of the economy." It called this adjustment the "No. 1 Federal tax problem."

Community Property Angle

Another key recommendation asked permission for husbands and wives in all States to divide their combined income for Federal tax purposes. Only residents of 13 community property States now may do this. The group called this "the most important inequity now in need of correction."

These two top recommendations are scheduled to become the basis of a new Knutson four billion dollar tax reduction bill. If GOP leaders say "yes," Ways and Means Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.) will drop it in the hopper the first day of the special session.

Balance of the Magill committee's recommendations would be considered in a tax revision bill due to start moving early next year. Knutson predicted the tax revision bil lwill pass the House by March 15, 1948.

The Magill group's 48 proposed tax changes ranged from elimination of double taxation of dividends and special tax relief for small corporations to proposed modification of capital gains taxation and estate and gift taxes.

Didn't Ask Sales Tax

The group failed to recommend a sales tax, one of the subjects considered, but it said a case "can certainly be made for strengthening the excise tax structure so that, in less prosperous times than these, the Federal Government will still have adequate sources of revenue."

The committee said it centered mainly on income tax relief because of a "striking shift" from excise to income taxation in the last eight years.

"Since the war increases in income tax revenue were far greater than the war increases in excise

Oklahoma Not O.K.

Rain Lack Retards Planting Of Wheat in Vital U. S. Belt

(Food shortage to continue; prices higher next year. Page 8)

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 4—America may well prepare itself for less meat and less wheat next year.

Unless rains come within a few days to make seeding possible a situation may well develop that will seriously threaten this country's plans for European relief and reconstruction.

There's a great deal of pessimism here as to the outlook for next year's wheat crop. Only about half the acreage planned has been planted. Normally, planting is finished by this date.

However, the Oklahoma - Texas wheat belt has produced good crops with planting as late as January. But a wheat crop here can be good and still fall fifty to one hundred million bushels below the 240 million harvested this year. The danger lies in a poor crop, and nobody can be found who will count out that possibility.

As one close observer, Keith Soder of the Texas - Oklahoma Wheat Improvement Association, expressed it to The Washington Post reporter today:

"The situation is not helpless, but it is precarious."

There is one black spot in the situation already. That is the effect the long, hot, dry spell has had upon the meat situation.

Normally, a million and a quarter head of cattle are furnished winter pasturage on the wheat fields in this area. This pasturage furnished good growing feed, and is, to some extent, fattening.

The consensus is that this is out for this year. Already the herds have been cut down and cattle that would have been brought to heavier weights on the early growing wheat, have been marketed. The result will be felt next spring when there will be millions of pounds less beef coming out of this area.

Late-planted wheat will not furnish this pasturage, and any cattle grown here this winter will cut down on the already short feed available.

Out here where the sinews of the Marshall Plan must come from, where wheat for food and oil for fuel are produced in huge quantities, the people are full of questions about the Administration's foreign program.

The program, so far as it is understood here, has widespread, almost universal support. But every-

Labor Board Throws Out Three Cases

Petitions Dismissed For Unions' Failure To Comply With Act

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Overriding the objections of the CIO Steelworkers, the National Labor Relations Board yestreday dismissed three pending cases because the unions involved had failed to comply with the Taft-Hartley Act.

In the first action of its kind since the October 31 "compliance deadline," the NLRB threw out petitions for collective bargaining elections requested by the Steelworkers, the CIO United Furniture Workers and the AFL United Construction Workers, affiliated with John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers.

The reason, in all cases, was that the officers of the union had not executed affidavits affirming they were not Communists, nor had they submitted financial and organizational data required by the law.

NLRB Reaffirms Stand

The cases had all been initiated before August 22, the effective date of the new act. But the NLRB had declared—and yesterday reaffirmed—that it could not proceed with the investigation of such cases unless the petitioning unions complied with the law. It gave all unions until last Friday to comply or show positive evidence of intent to comply.

For some weeks, Lewis has taken an adamant stand of refusal to sign the anti-Communist oath. Similarly, the Furniture Workers, generally reputed to be led by left-wingers, have declined to execute the affidavits.

Taking a somewhat different course, the Steelworkers had challenged the NLRB's legal right to dismiss the petitions. On Friday, Mikolajczyk To Battle for Poland in U. S.

Tells of Bribing Way Across Russian Zone; Plans Lecture Tour

London, Nov. 4 (AP).—Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, predicting an all-out Communist offensive to kill off "independent thought" in eastern Europe, declared tonight he would not retire but would "still go on fighting for Polish freedom and independence."

The Polish Peasant Party leader who arrived yesterday after a flight from Warsaw in fear of his life, announced he would go to the United States to continue his battle.

The Polish opposition leader said many lecture engagements had been offered him in the United States. He said he would leave for America "soon," adding that "I have some friends there, and after all I must start a new life."

[Mikolajczyk told the United Press he bribed his way across the Russian zone of Germany with the help of cigarettes in his escape from Poland.

Poles Fed Up, He Says

["Many Russians are very nice people and like cigarettes, and if you happen to have some in your pocket . . ." He left the rest unsaid and would reveal nothing more about his 12-day flight.

[The London Express hinted that his flight was aided by a special Anglo-American intelligence team, "trained in aiding 'interesting personalities' to escape from eastern Germany and Europe."]

In his homeland, Mikolajczyk declared, "the people are fed up" with Communist domination. He said most of the government decrees there are directed against the peasantry because "the Communists think that so long as the peasants are independent they cannot be put down."

He expressed doubt that the present Moscow-backed Warsaw

Conservatives Pull Ahead In British Popularity Test

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 4.—Although Winston Churchill's moves to expel the Attlee government of Britain have been unsuccessful in Parliament, public support has been dropping away from Attlee's Labor Party.

For the first time since the general election of 1945, the Conservatives are running ahead of the Labor Party in popular voting support. Many voters say the Labor Party has pushed its nationalization program too quickly.

Latest British Institute poll results show that 44 per cent of voters expressing an opinion say they would vote Conservative if a general election were held tomorrow, as compared to 40 per cent who say they would vote Labor, and 16 per cent Liberal and other parties.

The date for the next general election is 1950 and none can be held before then unless the House of Commons votes "no confidence"

Burning B-29 Lands After 5 Of Crew Bail Out

Wilbur, Wash., Nov. 4 (AP).—A B-29 bomber, with one engine afire, landed safely in a wheat field two miles south of here today after at least five crew members parachuted through murky skies to the ground.

The pilot and co-pilot who brought the ship in were uninjured, but the only one of the parachutists found two hours after the landing suffered a severe head gash and a cut hand.

A widespread search was under way in a rugged sage and rock area for the other crew members.

The Spokane Army Air Field identified the pilot as Maj. D. H. Keller and the co-pilot as E. F. Arnold, both of Spokane.

Col. Albert Shower, airfield commander, sai seven or eight men were on the B-29 en route from Warner Robins Field, Georgia, to Spokane.

Recommendations Of Tax Study Group

Report to Ways and Means Committee Suggests Revisions in Revenue Structure

Summary of major recommendations in the report of the Special Tax Study Committee to the House Ways and Means Committee:

I. Summary of major recommendations:

MR. ROSWELL MAGILL, chairman of the Special Tax Study Committee, may be quoted directly as to the following provisions of the report:

APPOINTMENT OF THE COMMITTEE. 1. Last June, the Ways and Means Committee began to look ahead and prepare for a general revision of the tax laws which Congress was to undertake as a major responsibility at its next regular session. The committee sought to expedite its own work by having certain tax studies made during the summer recess and to avail itself of the advice and practical experience of a representative group of citizens qualified to perform a difficult technical task. Such a step was itself unprecedented and was approved by both Republicans and Democrats alike, not only to aid the committee's own deliberations, but to insure that the problem would be approached in a thoroughly nonpartisan fashion.

The Tax Study Committee accepted its assignment in the same nonpartisan, objective spirit. They are deeply appreciative of the opportunity that has been theirs to be of service to the Ways and Means Committee. This special tax study group wishes it distinctly understood, however, that in tendering such advice it is in no way seeking to determine public policy or to blueprint what Congress is to do under any set of circumstances. That is the special prerogative of the Ways and Means Committee itself.

COMMITTEE OBJECTIVES. 2. Aside from those broad considerations of tax policy that are imperative in the postwar period, the Special Tax Study Committee addressed itself especially to those administrative provisions of the tax law that seem most in need of revision. This work has been largely technical in character and drew heavily upon the personal experience and knowledge of the various committee members in contact with the interpretation and application of the law.

The Internal Revenue Code has not been revised since 1942. Not only have the tax rates been raised steeply within that period, but many inequities and unforeseen situations have arisen where specific provisions of the law would seem to require clarification or correction. Frequently these are in the Treasury's own interest and do not work hardships on the taxpayer.

Since the tax load now falls so heavily upon all classes of citizens, it is important that like incomes bear like burdens. No kind of income, nor any class of taxpayer, should be discriminated against or, by the same token, should any class of taxpayer enjoy special advantages. If the tax laws can be improved to function more efficiently and with greater speed, then all who come within their scope will be encouraged to work and to produce. Legitimate business can and should be freed of many of its present inequities.

The Tax Study Committee has been especially conscious of the fact that, since 1939, for example, tax collections have increased eight times over. Excise duties have increased a little over four times. Individual income taxes, on the other hand, now yield 19 times more than they did in 1939. In other words, there has been a striking shift of emphasis from excises to the income tax, which is now the chief revenue provided for the Federal Government.

THE INDIVIDUAL INCOME TAX. 3. The present lack of balance in the national economy, as well as the pressure on low income groups from sharply increased costs of living, would seem to require early tax readjustments. The committee unqualifiedly recommends a reduction in individual income taxes for all, though the question of precise rates or exemption qualifications properly belongs to the Ways and Means Committee and to the Congress itself.

Several approaches, or a combination of them, are possible, for the information of the committee we list the more important ones that have been proposed in the past year:

1. A percentage reduction
2. A reduction in the initial rate of taxation
3. An increase in exemptions
4. Surtax scale revision.

If the present rates were revised so that the initial rate was the same as at present, 19 per cent, and rose gradually to 50 per cent, at $100,000 and above, the reduction in revenue would be about 1.6 billion dollars. The surtax rates, if revised so that the initial rate were 15 per cent, rising to a maximum of 50 per cent at $100,000 and above, would cause a loss in revenue of about 4.2 billion dollars.

For a long time to come the Federal Government must impose very heavy taxes. The income tax will, no doubt, be the core of the system. Since income taxes will have to be heavy, we must use great care to see that they are spread as fairly as possible over the income producers in our population. If our economy is to survive and prosper, we must see to it that men are encouraged to work and produce, to turn out better goods at lower prices. Particularly we must see to it that tax rates are not so high that a man has little or no incentive to work harder and produce more.

FAMILY INCOME 4. Perhaps the most important inequity now in need of correction is the distinction that exists between 13 so-called "community property" States and the rest of the country. Under these State laws husbands and wives are permitted to divide their earnings, each reporting half for tax purposes. Of the five proposals advanced to place all taxpayers on the same basis, we favor that which permits spouses in all the States to divide their combined incomes between themselves for the purpose of computing the Federal income tax. It eliminates, in the cases of residents of community property States, the need for determining whether the income arises from community property or separate property. It avoids the serious questions which would arise in the interpretation and construction of contracts between spouses. Most important, it puts the incomes of husbands and wives, wherever resident, on a like basis for Federal tax purposes.

II. Structural Improvements in the Tax Laws

THE principal recommendations for structural revisions in the tax laws, both for the individual and the corporation, are as follows:

1. Double taxation of dividend income: The committee recommends that the individual be allowed an appropriate credit or offset against his own tax, for the tax paid by the corporation with respect to his dividends. This is the simplest method for alleviating the present double taxation and produces reasonable equity.

2. Taxation of small corporations. So long as the corporation tax rate remains materially above the initial tax rate on other incomes, it is necessary and desirable to extend some tax relief to small corporation. However, the present arrangement, whereby a rate of 53 per cent is applicable to the net income between $25,000 and $50,000, is defective. It should be changed to provide a smooth transition between the lowest (currently 21 per cent) and the standard corporation rate (currently 36 per cent).

3. Fluctuating business incomes: The committee recommends that the net operating loss carry-forward be extended from two to seven years and that the net operating loss carry-back be discontinued.

4. Intercorporate dividends and consolidated corporate returns: The committee recommends that corporations receive a full credit for dividends received from other corporations which have already been subjected to the Federal income tax (instead of the present 85 per cent credit). It also recommends that the 2 per cent differential charged against corporations for the "privilege" of making a consolidated return be eliminated.

5. Capital gains taxation: The committee recommends that the current rate and method of taxing capital gains be continued with certain modifications to close loopholes and to give more equitable treatment to capital losses.

6. Tax exempt organizations: In view of the fact that the Committee on Ways and Means is about to hold hearings in which the argumenton both sides of the subject will be presented in great detail, the Special Study Tax Committee believes that any recommendation should be postponed until after the hearings are completed.

Other recommendations of the committee in connection with the income tax deal with such subjects as annuities; the taxation of trust income, including family trusts and short-term trusts; taxation of undistributed net income; employes' pension plans, stock purchase plans, depreciation, research, development and sales promotion expenses, exchanges and corporate reorganizations, and foreign tax credits. In all, the committee has made recommendations on 31 topics under the income tax.

III. Excise Taxes

IN THE OPINION of our committee, excise taxes should continue to form an important part of the Federal revenue system. A case can certainly be made for strengthening the excise tax structure so that, in less prosperous times than these, the Federal Government will still have adequate sources of revenue. Moreover, since the war, increases in income tax revenue were far greater than the war increases in excise tax revenue. Income taxpayers may reasonably ask that the process be reversed now, and individual income taxes be lowered first. If Federal expenditures remain high, the retention of a broad system of excises will be necessary if the way is to be opened for income tax relief on a scale appropriate to a continued vigorous functioning of our economy. On the other hand, if the budget can be lowered sufficiently, there will be room for a general reduction in the Federal excises.

At the same time, the inequities in particular excises pointed out in the hearings should certainly be eliminated. We understand the Ways and Means Committee staff has that work well in hand and we urge its prompt completion. Finally, Congress has imposed under the pressure of war a great many sales or excise taxes which produce relatively small amounts and are a real nuisance to the consumer and the Administration alike. They should be repealed, leaving in effect the important excises of relatively broad application and revenue-producing power.

IV. ESTATE AND GIFT TAXES

THE committee has made 13 recommendations with regard to the estate and gift taxes. These cover the following topics:

1. War casualties.
2. Credit for State taxes.
3. Contemplation of death.
4. Community property.
5. Powers of appointment.
6. Insurance.
7. Possibilities of reverter.
8. Survivors' annuities under employes' pension plans.
9. Deductions.
10. Charitable requests.
11. Gift taxes.
12. Adjustment of gift values after expiration of statute of limitations.
13. Limitation on gift taxes.

OFFICIALS DISCUSS REVENUE STRUCTURE—Talking taxes at yesterday's meeting of the House Ways and Means Committee are (from left) Representative Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), committee chairman; George Schoeneman, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and A. Lee Wiggins, Undersecretary of the Treasury. The committee heard a report from a citizens' group urging a reduction in all individual income taxes tax revenue, income taxpayers may reasonably ask that the process be reversed now, and individual income taxes be lowered first, the report said.

Tax Relief Recommended

Four Methods Suggested

Four methods of tax cutting were suggested, ranging from an across-the-board percentage cut to increased exemptions and surtax revision but most stress was laid on a suggestion that no taxpayer pay more than half of his income.

"If the present rates were revised so that the initial rate was the same as at present, 19 per cent, and rose gradually to 50 per cent at $100,000 and above, the reduction in revenue would be about $1.6 billion," the report said. "If the surtax rates were revised so that the initial rate were 15 per cent, rising to a maximum of 50 per cent at $100,000 and above, the loss in revenue would be about $4.2 billion."

Noting that corporations already have benefited from repeal of the excess profits tax and a two percentage point reduction in surtaxes, the group said it is not possible to further cut corporate and individual taxes at the same time. After substantial relief is extended individuals, however, the report said corporations should receive the same treatment.

Appropriation Slash Assailed

Magill laid down his report as the Ways and Means Committee resumed hearings on tax revision. Undersecretary of the Treasury A. L. M. Wiggins, asked for recommendations on farm cooperatives and other tax-exempt organizations, requested the committee to wait until the Treasury has reviewed the whole tax structure.

Then Wiggins lit into the Republican Congress for a 30-million-dollar cut in appropriations. He said it had hampered revenue collections and Treasury tax work by forcing release of 7,200,000 Internal Revenue Bureau employes.

The Treasury Undersecretary testified that more than five billions in evaded taxes could be collected if the bureau had the staff to do it. He said the bureau needed to train and use 20,000 employes in the next year, and promised they would turn up 20 times the cost of their salaries in uncollected taxes. Some 30,000 "leads" on tax evasion have piled up at the Treasury.

The committee promptly divided on the merits of the Magill report. Knutson called it "an outstanding contribution." But Representative John D. Dingell (D., Mich.) labeled it "Wall Street" and Representative A. Sidney Camp (D., Ga.), "just junk."

Here are some of the other recommendations of the Magill group:

1. End double taxation of dividends, by allowing the individual a credit against the tax already paid by the corporation. The credit would be figured by multiplying dividends by the lowest bracket (19 per cent) individual income tax rate.

2. Relief to small corporations by taxing those with incomes under $50,000 at lower rates.

3. Authority for firms to carry forward their net operating losses from two to seven years. Discontinuance of the present loss carry-back provision.

4. Corporations be accorded a full deduction for dividends received from other corporations already taxed.

5. Removal of the 2 per cent differential charged corporations for the privilege of making a consolidated return.

6. Modification of capital gains taxation in several respects. One recommendation would treat capital losses similarly to gains. Losses could be allowed against ordinary income, provided the tax not be reduced by more than 25 per cent of such losses.

Reciprocity Plan Hit by Md. Taximen

Opposition to reciprocity for taxicabs between the District of Columbia and Maryland was voiced yesterday by the Prince Georges County Commissioners at their meeting in Upper Marlboro, Md.

A delegation representing 100 taxicab owners and 240 drivers appeared to urge the board to disapprove any plan which would permit District taxicabs to pick up passengers in Maryland.

Ralph Gordon, 5403 19th ave., Mount Rainier, was spokesman for the cab drivers. He said reciprocity would put half the county taxicab operators in the Mount Rainier-Hyattsville section out of business. He said the District taxi drivers pay approximately half the insurance required of the Maryland taxicabs.

William A. Carson, chairman of the board, told the taximen that the board will inform Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Lee D. Elgin that the commissioners are "absolutely opposed to any reciprocity" for taxicabs.

The drivers said they had read in Sunday newspapers that Washington cab drivers, who now have reciprocity with Virginia, would ask similar privileges in Maryland.

Solomon's Law Invoked in Child Custody Ruling

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—Maryland's Court of Appeals looked back to the judgment of Solomon yesterday.

Judge Charles Markell, in an opinion ordering the return of 31-month-old Edward R. Bines, jr., to his maternal grandparents, who already have custody of the sister, said:

"To separate them would be an unworkable modification of Solomon's judgment by dividing three children instead of one." A small sister died recently.

The children became homeless two years ago, after their father, Edward R. Bines, was sentenced to a life term for killing his wife—their mother.

The appellate decision reversed a Harford County decree giving custody of baby Edward to Mr. and Mrs. William T. Bines, the paternal grandparents. The sister had been cared for by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Burns, maternal grandparents.

Md. Employes Ask Increase in Pay

Baltimore Nov. 4 (AP).—The Maryland Classified Employes' Association has sent to Governor Lane a resolution asking the special session of the Legislature which convenes tomorrow to increase salaries of State employes.

The resolution points out employes in most departments have not received a pay increase since September of last year and the boost "did not contemplate the additional rise in the cost of living which has taken place since that time."

Peron Inviting U. S. Capital, Bruce Declares

Buenos Aires, Nov. 4 (AP).—United States Ambassador James Bruce said in an extemporaneous speech last night that President Juan Peron was seeking to encourage the investment of United States capital in Argentina.

He described the Argentine executive as a "great leader of a great nation."

Bruce quoted Peron as saying he would "do the utmost to make happy United States business already established here and to encourage additional businesses to come here."

He told the American Legion post the Argentine President "has extraordinary ability to understand quickly complicated business situations, which is all the more remarkable when it is considered that his training has been that of a soldier and a statesman."

Rice Is Reelected As Chamber Head

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 4.—Lacy I. Rice, banker, attorney and industrialist, has been renamed president of the West Virginia Chamber of Commerce for a second year. George T. Fonda, Weirton, and Howard L. Gray, Raineile, were reelected vice presidents, and Hayes Pickelsimer and Harry A. Stansbury of Charleston were renamed treasurer and secretary respectively.

Reelected directors from this district were James A. Patterson and Bonn A. Poland. A holdover director from this city also is William N. Dunn.

Richmond Votes Manager-Council

Government to Replace Two-Branch Administration Wins, 21,567 to 8066

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—The proposed city manager-council form of government for Richmond won an overwhelming victory today.

Complete unofficial returns showed 21,567 votes cast for the charter and 8066 against. The charter form of city manager-council government is to replace the present bicameral system and would involve these changes, after General Assembly approval:

A unicameral council of nine members, elected from the city at large, would replace the present 32-member, two-branch council.

Instead of a mayor elected by direct vote, the chief executive will be a city manager appointed by council for an indefinite term. The council would choose one of its own members to serve as mayor.

Councilmen would be chosen in a general election and there no longer would be a Democratic primary.

Meanwhile the Richmond Electoral Board ordered a complete investigation after it received reports that registration records of abiut 800 persons voting in the charter election had disappeared from the office of General Registrar Vernon N. Davis.

The alleged disappearance of the registration records high-lighted events during a day of heavy voting.

After receiving reports of the disappearance of the registration records, the electoral board ordered an investigation to begin Thursday. The voters involved apparently are those who appeared at the temporary registration centers in five sections of Richmond during September.

Ed P. Phillips, manager of the Richmond Citizens Association for the charter, was quoted as saying that an employe in Davis' office admitted to him that "registration records disappeared from that office."

Davis said he knew nothing of the circumstances surrounding the alleged disappearance of the records. Complaints were made by Phillips and other association leaders after they had received calls from many persons who said they were turned down at the polls. The electoral board, after a conference with Davis, ordered an investigation.

The board said, however, that there was no way for it to permit those who said they registered to vote in the absence of records.

Arlington Voters Line Up to Cast Ballots

Walter B. Fulton, in the race for a seat in the House of Delegates. Complete but unofficial returns gave Boothe 2629 votes to 669 for Fulton. The Alexandria vote of 3405 yesterday was slightly less than half the number of ballots cast in the 1944 Presidential election, and about 800 less than the number cast in the 1946 Congressional election.

Fairfax County: Robert J. McCandlish, jr., Democratic candidate for the House of Delegates, whose nomination in the party primary was on-again-off-again because of a phenomenally close race with Incumbent Edwin Lynch, had little difficulty in yesterday's election in winning out over Andrew K. Barta. On the basis of returns from 21 out of 26 precincts, the count was 1814 for McCandlish to 574 for Barta.

With returns still incomplete, in other races John E. Taylor, Democrat, who defeated Eppa P. Kirby, county sheriff for the past 20 years in the primary, appeared a clear winner over Noah L. Dove, Republican aspirant, with a vote of 1923 to 515.

On the basis of complete returns, incumbent Maurice W. Fox, Dranesville District, was returned to the board of supervisors with 345 votes to 188 for Paul E. Rhinehart, jr., and 60 for Paul L. Keller. With two out of three precincts reporting in the Falls Church Dispolled 316 votes ot 142 for Joseph trict, incumbent C. B. Runyon F. Clem.

The count on unopposed State offices in the county, on the basis of incomplete returns, was 2138 for Hugh B. Marsh, Commonwealth's Attorney, 2192 for John W. Ferguson for Commissioner of Revenue, and 2188 for Lewis M. Conyner, county treasurer.

Prince William County: On the basis of returns from 16 out of 17 precincts, Incumbent Sheriff John Kerlin had 738 votes to 438 for his independent opponent, Edward Kite Roseberry. Unopposed candidates who were returned to office were Frank Moncure, Virginia House of Delegates; Stanley Owens, Commonwealth's attorney; C. A. Sinclair, county treasurer, and R. M. Weir, commissioner of revenue.

Loudoun County: With no contests, officers reelected were Robert Y. Button, State Senate; Stilson H. Hall, House of Delegates; Stirling M. Harrison, Commonwealth's attorney; S. Reed Galleher, treasurer; R. L. Nixon, commissioner of revenue; S. Paul Alexander, sheriff, and the following members of the county board of supervisors: D. C. Sands, J. Homer Mock, J. T. Hirst, J. Emory Kirkpatrick, Birtrand McKimmey and I. W. Baker.

Several other surprises were recorded among early returns from the election for county officers, among them the defeat of N. Clarence Talley, incumbent sheriff of New Kent, by Donald C. McKay. Both are Democrats.

GOP Defeat Conceded in Ky.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 4 (AP).—Jouett Ross Todd of Louisville, Republican National Committeeman, estimated on the basis of incomplete unofficial returns tonight that Kentucky had gone Democratic by 40,000 votes in today's general election.

Todd, in a preelection forecast, predicted the Republicans would carry the State by 30,000 to 50,000 votes. He estimated tonight that Jefferson County (Louisville) had voted Democratic by 4000 to 6000 votes.

Representative Earle C. Clements, Morganfield Democrat, tonight increased his early lead over Attorney General Eldon S. Dummit, Lexington Republican, in their race for Governor of Kentucky.

Unofficial totals from 317 of the State's 4056 voting precincts showed Clements leading Dummit, 55,942 votes to 51,319. W. A. Sandefur, Robards Socialist, trailed.

Clements led Dummit in Jefferson, Fayette and Kenton Counties, where most of the early reports were concentrated.

In Jefferson (Louisville), where Republican leaders had forecast a GOP victory, 277 of 325 precincts gave the Democrat candidate a lead of 49,931 to 46,189.

Louisville voters today apparently elected a full Democratic board of aldermen to replace the 12 Republican members.

C. Paul Downard, Republican president of the board, said in a formal statement tonight that "it is quite apparent that a Democratic Board of Aldermen had been elected." He based his conclusion on nearly complete unofficial returns.

Mayor E. Leland Taylor, Democrat, was elected two years ago with the present Republican board and remains in office two more years.

Weaver Jury Fails to Reach A Verdict

A Prince Georges County jury was dismissed last night after failing to reach a verdict in the trial of Mrs. Catherine Weaver, charged with the murder of her husband.

The jury, which included two women members, reported to Circuit Court Judge John B. Gray, jr., at Upper Marlboro, Md., at 10:13 p.m. that it could not reach a verdict after nearly six hours of deliberation. Judge Gray continued Mrs. Weaver's bond at $3000 pending a new trial.

Mrs. Weaver, 39, was being tried for the fatal shooting of her husband, Joseph M. Weaver, 43, a filling statio noperator, last July 2 in their home at 3802 37th ave., Cottage City, Md.

Before testimony began yesterday, Defense Attorney Robert W. McCullough objected to the seating of women on the jury. He declared the new Maryland law which authorizes women to serve on juries in some counties and not in others is a violation of the State constitution.

He also challenged the legality of Mrs. Weaver's indictment because women served on the grand jury.

The two women selected on the jury were Mrs. Catherine B. Breen, 60, mother of seven children, of 6000 Brinkley rd., Oxon Hill, Md., and Mrs. Mary E. Bradshaw, 48, of 4909 Somerset rd., Riverdale, Md.

Mrs. Weaver, her paleness heightened by the black coat and hat she wore, took the stand to relate how she had shot her husband five times with a frontier-type pistol in the kitchen of their home four months ago.

She said she shot him because he threatened her life with a butcher knife.

County Policeman Emmett Gray told the jury when he reached the Weaver home the night of the slaying, Mrs. Weaver told him:

"I am Mrs. Weaver. I shot my husband. He had been cheating on me."

Mrs. Weaver has two daughters, aged 8 and 20.

Democratic nominee Sam Lumpkin had 3174, against 73 for Independent Republican Ernest J. Hoskins.

Balloting was reported light, despite generally crisp, fair weather.

There was scattered rain in the extreme northern sections of the state late in the day.

Few Negroes Qualified

Absence of local contests—settled previously in the August democratic primary — detracted from interest. Only Jackson, the state capitol, reported voting heavier than expected.

Few Negroes were qualified to vote, and fewer still availed themselves of the privilege, although a fair number cast ballots in Jackson, where their registrations are concentrated. Scarcely one per cent of the total vote was likely to be Negro.

A survey of five precincts in the city of Jackson before noon showed that at one precinct, which had registration of 190, the vote was running at a ratio of 25 Negro to 20 white votes.

Democrats Claim 2-1 Arlington Edge

Chew, Cuppett Held Elected to County Board Though No Precinct Has Completed Count

The political questions which yesterday's election will solve in Arlington remained unresolved last night as election officials worked to count a heavy, but not a record vote.

Late last night, not a single precinct had completed its tally, although in other areas of Northern Virginia, the vote was completely counted, or well enough along to show that traditional party politics was being followed, and Democrats were being re-elected.

Although no official figures were available, Arlington County Democratic headquarters claimed that in two precincts, Clarendon No. 2 and Cherrydale, all Democratic candidates were leading by a 2-1 margin, except in hte race for county treasurer, which they termed "close." In the non-partisan contests, county Democrats said that Chew and Cuppett, incumbents on the County Board, had "clear margins."

13,000 Ballots Cast

Arlington election officials estiin yesterday's election. The ofmated they had about 13,000 votes ficial count, minus one small precinct, was 12,471. This vote, it was pointed out, was greater than the May referendum, when 10,013 votes were cast, or the 1946 congressional election, when a vote five posts on Arlington's first elected school board, the Greater Arlington Association is supporting: Dr. Charles P. Cake, Ernest T. Gearheart, Ernest C. Betts, jr., (incumbent), William Montgomery Smith (incumbent), and Ralph M. Kimble.

In the field of 12 candidates for of 10,533 was tallied.

Nominating conference candidates are Barnard Joy, Mrs. Elizabeth P. Campbell, O. Glenn Stahl, Curtis E. Tuthill and Colin C. MacPherson.

The two independents in the race are Incumbents John M. Stewart and Mrs. Lucy Bussey.

In the contest for two posts on the five-man county board, Incumbents Harry W. Cuppett and F. Freeland Chew are backed by the Greater Arlington Association. The Better Government League is supporting T. Oscar Smith and Mrs. Florence Cannon. Independents in this race are Jacob C. Bechtel, Millard P. Divine, Robert W. Gaines, Lawson Wimberly and Lincoln Mackey.

The contests for county and school boards, however, were not entirely nonpartisan, as both the Democratic and Republican Parties in the county had pledged they would be.

An hour after the polls closed, Talmadge Wilcher, Republican candidate for the State Senate, called The Washington Post to say he took "full responsibility" for marking up 2000 Republican sample ballots to show listings for the nonpartisan offices.

Wilcher said he gave these to 50 "of my workers" to distribute because "the Democrats were doing it." C. Harrison Mann, Arlington Democratic executive committee chairman, denied this, declaring, "We couldn't possibly do that because we used a short sample ballot which did not even list the nonpartisan offices."

Wilcher Blames Democrats

Wilcher also charged, at the same time, thtat O. Glenn Stahl, in his capacity as deputy personnel director of the Federal Security Agency, had given to the Democratic committee information concerning Wilcher's association with the Social Security Board, where he was formerly employed. Wilcher said this material was used against him in the campaign in a "misleading" manner and that Stahl had violated the Hatch Act.

Both Stahl and Mann strongly denied this and Stahl, terming Wilcher's action" a low, dishonest trick," demanded a public apology. Hwo hours later, Wilcher called The Washington Post again to say he was apologizing to "Mr. Stahl, who is a fine gentleman." Wilcher said that someone, in the FSA or Social Security, "clearly not Mr. Stahl, did unlawfully reveal my personnel records to the Democratic committee . . . and I inten dto take this up with the proper authorities."

Friede had written many stories concerning events in the Russian zone of Germany.

Other German journalists have disappeared under similar circumstances in the last seven months.

Builders to Oppose New Wage Demands

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—In what they described as an effort to stop an inflationary spiral in the Richmond construction industry, a committee of local builders served notice today that the latest wage demands of building trades unions will be opposed.

The labor relations committee of the Richmond Builders Exchange met last night, and released this statement today through Chairman Lee Paschall:

"The construction industry has repeatedly cited the danger to our national economy by spiraling in construction costs, due mainly to high wages.

"We feel that the local wages in the construction industry are as high as they should go, and that further increases can only work to the disadvantage of the public, the worker, and the construction industry."

Paschall said the committee would hold further meetings to talk over the question of wage rates. The next session is scheduled for 4 p. m., November 12, at the Builders Exchange.

Meanwhile, it was indicated today that at least one branch of the building industry will express active resistance in the near future to a proposed wage increase. The electrical contractors will refuse to reopen their contract with Local 666 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The electrical contractors entered into an agreement with the IBEW local last April, whereby a wage increase of 17½ cents was granted to raise the rate to $1.80 per hour. Two weeks ago, the union asked that the contract be reopened and the scale be boosted to $2.25. The April agreement provided that the wage section of the contract could be reopened only by mutual consent, and indications were today that the contractors will not consent.

Three other building trades unions also have voiced demands for wage increases. The plumbers and steamfitters have asked a boost from $1.62½ to $2.25; the Structural Ironworkers from $2 to $2.25 and the Reinforced Steel Workers from $1.75 to $2, and the Cement Finishers' Local 66, from $1.62½ to $2.

No One Knows Who Pulled Trigger, Defense Pleads

Keyser, W. Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—On a plea that no one knows who touched off the fatal shotgun blast during a family scuffle, defense attorneys today asked a Mineral County jury to acquit Edward Thomas Buracker of a charge he murdered his mother-in-law, Mrs. Luke Bosley. The case went to the jury after the State closely questioned the 23-year-old war veteran's young wife and sought to point out discrepancies in her testimony that her mother was shot accidentally during a drunken scuffle for the shotgun.

She said on the stand her brothers had threatened her if she testified in her husband's defense, but they denied it. State's Attorney Vernon E. Rankin asked for a first-degree murder verdict.

Va. Gas Consumption Off

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—Virginia motorists burned about a million gallons less gasoline in September htan in August, but used more than six million gallons above that consumed in September, 1946.

Cahall to Head Adult Training

Baltimore, Nov. 4 (AP).—To administer an expanding program of adult education, T. Wilson Cahall, principal of Washington School at Hagerstown, has been named superintendent of that division in the State Education Department.

In announcing the appointment, Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, jr., State superintendent, pointed out the 1947 Legislature set aside $50,000 for adult education.

Partial Tally In N. Y. Gives Bonus Lead

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—The 400 million dollar bonus for New York State's 1,600,000 veterans swung into a quick lead tonight in fragmentary returns from nine up-State election districts and 25 in New York City.

The vote in the 34 districts was 9450 for the bonus amendment, 3053 against, a margin of better than three to one. The State has 9281 election districts.

In New York City, the first returns found proportional representation trailing in a referendum on its retention as the method for election of city councilmen. The tally in 71 of the city's 3757 districts was 16,141 for repeal, 9973 against.

Vote In Heavy Rain

A heavy rain made voting uncomfortable for New Yorkers but a good turnout was reported in most sections.

Although there were no contests for State-wide offices, the bonus and proportional representation issues, together with three propositions to increase the State's low-rent housing program had been considered likely to bring out a record 4,500,000 of the 5,678,065 registered voters.

Indianapolis Elects Democratic Mayor

Al Feeney, Former Notre Dame Star, Wins to End Five-Year GOP Rule

Indianapolis, Nov. 4 (AP).—Indianapolis today elected a Democratic mayor, Al Feeney, ending a five-year Republican rule.

Feeney, former head of the State police and a former Notre Dame football star, won by 8621 votes on the basis of complete unofficial returns.

The campaign had been hard-fought and Republicans used congressional and State official speakers appealing for votes on the grounds the city should be kept Republican to prepare for the 1948 presidential election.

Feeney, longtime political figure who had also been sheriff of Marion County (Indianapolis), was "roving center" on Notre Dame football teams with the late Knute Rockne.

New N. J. Constitution Winning Heavy Favor

Newark, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP).—New Jersey voters gave thumping approval today to a new State constitution—first in more than 100 years—early returns from about half of the State indicated.

With 713 of the State's 3678 election districts reporting, the vote was:

Yes, 131,692.
No, 30,501.

The bulk of the ballots was reported from the key Democratic county of Hudson and the heavily Republican county of Bergen. The yes vote was running 4 to 1 in Bergen and about 10 to 1 in Hudson. Both Republicans and Democrats had urged approval of the new charter.

In the hotly contested Paterson mayoralty contest, Democrat Michael U. Devita, 35-year-old former Army captain, jumped into a surprising lead over Republican Incumbent William P. Furrey, on the basis of returns from half of the city's 101 districts.

Returns from 50 districts gave:
Devita, 13,679.
Furrey, 9403.

DeGaulle Demand For Constitution Revision Rejected

Paris, Nov. 4 (NYHT).—President Vincent Auriol dismissed here today General Charles de Gaulle's demand for revision of the French constitution.

President Auriol, a Socialist, saw nothing to be gained by such a move.

"There is only one ploblem in France," he told an assembly of chambers of commerce from all over France and its territorial possessions. "And that is the price of food."

"We have a hard winter ahead," he said. "Let us hope that agitation and polemics do not make it worse."

Danville, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—The Textile Workers Union of America and officials of the Dan River Cotton mills here tonight reached an agreement on demands which may set a new wage pattern for the textile industry throughout the South.

A boost of 9 per cent for the more than 11,000 Dan River employes, effective November 11, was reached, representing an increase of two and a quarter million dollars in the anual payroll of the big textile mill.

The average wage before today's settlement was 97 cents an hour, sending the new average up to $1.14 per hour.

The contract, agreed upon at today's meeting, also provides a minimum wage of 87 cents an hour.

Democrats Capture Control of Schenectady

Schenectady, N. Y., Nov. 4 (U.P.).—The Democratic Party captured control of the City of Schenectady tonight for the first time in more than two decades. With only four districts missing the vote for mayor was:

Owen Begley (D.), 17,176; Mills Teneyck (R.), 11,804.

The overwhelming defeat tonight of the Republican incumbent indicated that the Democrats carried other city and county officers.

Cleveland Mayor Far Ahead

Cleveland, Nov. 4 (AP).—Mayor Thomas A. Burke, 49-year-old Democrat, took a big lead over Republican Eliot Ness tonight as returns in the Cleveland mayoral contest began coming in from 1016 voting places.

Burke, seeking his second term in the $15,000-a-year job, led the 44-year-old former safety director by a better 2-to-1 margin on the basis of unofficial returns from 175 voting places. Burke polled 29,805 votes; Ness, 13,804.

Vote Heavy Despite Rain

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 4 (AP).—Ohio citizens, their interest stimulated by important constitutional amendments, voted today in unusually large numbers, despite drizzling rains.

A special congressional election in the Fourth District received national attention.

There were prospects that the balloting on four State-wide issues and on municipal contests might approach the off-year record of 2,294,908 votes set in 1939.

Top attractions throughout the State, were the proposed constntutional amendments to pay 300 million dollars in bonuses to World War II veterans and to restrict the use of gasoline tax and auto license tax revenues to street and highway purposes.

Two other proposed amendments would add the Governor and State Treasurer to the three-member commission administering the bonus and extend from four years to six the term of probate judges.

The Fourth District congressional election saw Republican William M. McCulloch of Piquo and Democrat John B. Quatnam of Lima competing for the office made vacant by the resignation September 2 of Rep. Robert F. Jones of Lima.

The district, embracing Allen, Auglaize, Darke, Miami, Mercer and Shelby counties, was watched for signs that might indicate trends in the 1948 congressional election. It has been Republican since 1938.

Redcaps Oppose Higher Fixed Fee As Threat to Tips

By The Associated Press

The redcaps union yesterday gave notice it would fight a prospective five-cent per bag increase in the fee paid by travelers for the handling of their luggage at railroad stations.

The fee is now 10 cents per bag. But it will go up to 15 cents December 1 at many eastern terminals unless the interstate commerce commission acts in the meantime.

W. S. Townsend of Chicago, international president of the CIO United Transport Service Employes of America, filed notice of opposition with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The standard 10 cent fee now charged goes to the company, and anything in excess of that which the traveler cares to give is kept by the redcap. Presumably the higher fixed fee would be expected to cut down on such tipping.

Republicans Keep Hold on Philadelphia

Detroit, Nov. 4 (AP).—Mayor Edward J. Jeffries, seeking election to a fifth consecutive term, trailed in early unofficial returns tonight.

The four-times mayor received 10,853 votes from 88 of the city's 1211 precincts, compared to 11,585 for Eugene I. Van Antwerp, veteran member of the city council.

Far fewer voters than expected took part in the biennial nonpartisan election. Election officials estimated the total vote at 400,000 as rainy weather interfered. A half-million turnout from Detroit's 777,000 registered voters had been predicted.

Detroiters also elected a new nine-man city council and voted on a proposed 30 million dollar sewer bond issue and an eight million dollar bond issue for a new city-county office building.

Bridgeport Reelects Socialist Mayor

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Socialist Mayor Jasper McLevy was reelected to his eighth consecutive two-year term today, polling 4000 votes more than the Democratic and Republican candidates combined.

McLevy received 20,007 votes to 8489 for James J. Whelan, Democrat, and 7395 for Salvatore J. Fasio, Republican.

The Socialists captured 12 of the 16 council seats, the remaining going to Democratic-Republican fusion candidates.

Republican Raymond E. Snyder, backed by the Socialists and Independent Democrats, defeated Waterbury's Democratic incumbent John S. Monagan, the first local Republican victory in 26 years. Snyder received 19,4044 votes, Monagan 18,390.

Republican incumbent William C. Celentano was returned to office in New Haven for his second term.

polling 25,732 votes to 21,478 for Democratic candidate Dr. Frank M. Anastasio, former secretary of state. Socialist Alfred E. Tong, who received 1163 votes in 1945, polled 11,412 votes today.

Hartford, voting for the first time under its new charter, named nine councilmen and four Board of Education members in a nonpartisan election.

Life Sentence Demanded For Maniu

Bucharest, Romania, Nov. 4 (AP). The prosecution demanded life imprisonment today for Juliu Maniu, veteran Peasant Party leader accused of high treason.

The defense begged the military tribunal to convict him only on charges he admitted.

Col. Alexandru Georgescu, the chief prosecutor, in a two-hour address to the court, asked maximum penalties for each charge lodged against the other 18 defendants. These penalties range from five years to life imprisonment. There is no death penalty in peacetime Romania.

The charges against Ion Mihalache, vice president of the Peasant Party, also could bring a life sentence. Georgescu asked leniency for only one defendant—Vasile Serdice, Peasant Party press chief.

Belief had been expressed that a judgment might be reached by tomorrow, but the court later instructed defense lawyers to speak as long as they wished in their summations.

Constantin Beraschievescu Balaceanu, dean of the Bucharest bar, who served as Maniu's counsel, said the Peasant leader did not admit all the specific charges, although he had made several confessions and assumed responsibility for acts of others.

"I beg the court to take this under consideration and to take care of the 75-year-old man that Maniu is," Balaceanu said.

He said the specific charges against Maniu included those that he planned a "phantom government abroad"; that he planned a military organization; that he was in touch with an underground Romanian movement, and that he acted as "the informer of America."

He said Maniu admitted he had urged defendant Nicolai Carandino, editor of his party newspaper, to go abroad and gave him the newspaper "line of attack against the government; that he gave Serdici documents to hand over to the representative of a foreign power; that he appointed a head for a military organization; that he ordered Peasant members not to attend Parliament meetings, and that he told Emil Hategeanu, national Peasant representative in the government, not to cooperate with the cabinet, and finally took Hategeanu out of the government.

Austrian Communists Attempt Land Reform

Vienna, Nov. 4 (AP).—Increased activities by the Austrian Communist Party in trying to enforce land reform in Russian-occupied lower Austria were described today by a high official of the Ministry of Agriculture who said "apparently the Russian occupation authorities are not taking a direct hand in the matter."

He said the cabinet would discuss the matter thoroughly at tomorrow's session.

The latest case came to light today, the official said, when Franz Vidlar, the mayor of Siebenbrun, a small village in lower Austria, protested an incident in his village Saturday. The mayor said the district leader of the Communist Party, accompanied by four other party members, ordered Kurt Pilz, tenant of the Franz Sedlar estate, to surrender 315 acres to small farmers and settlers, leaving the owner only 247 acres.

Czech Government Splits in Crisis

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 4 (AP). — The Czechoslovak government split tonight in its most serious crisis since liberation from the Nazis in 1945. A special cabinet session was called for tomorrow in an emergency effort to patch up differences between the Communists and more conservative parties over labor and veteran representation.

During an eight-hour secret session tonight, three parties walked out of a meeting of the National Front, called to settle differences between Communists and other parties in the semiautonomous state of Slovakia.

Mission Chief Goes To Post-UNRRA Balance for Funds

Athens, Nov. 4 (AP).—Authoritative sources said today the American Mission to Aid Greece had asked for a 15-million-dollar increase in the post-UNRRA allotment to this country.

In addition to the 350 million dollars outright Greek aid program, another 50 million dollars had been allotted Greece from the post-UNRRA fund of 332 million dollars given by the United States.

The same informant said the Greek army would not be increased as previously contemplated because the national guard of 20,000 men would serve the same purpose.

The AMAG will supply the national guard, the source said.

Dwight P. Griswold, chief of the mission, told a news conference that 44,361 tons of military supplies and equipment had been imported under the aid program from August 2 to November 1. Some seven million dollars worth of reconstruction projects have been started, Griswold said.

A band of 400 guerillas suffered a loss of 135 dead, wounded and captured in an abortive attack on the town of Amphissia on Mount Parnassas, northwest of Athens, the Greek general staff was informed today.

Danish Premier To Resign; Hopes To End Deadlock

Copenhagen, Nov. 4 (AP).—Premier Knud Kristensen's office announced today that he intends to resign. This step apparently is designed to end the political deadlock which followed the October 28 elections.

The announcement said that discussions between members of the cabinet and representatives of the Agrarian, Conservative and Liberal Parties had proved that there no longer was a "parliamentary background" for the present government.

Kristensen, an Agrarian, is expected to report to King Frederik IX tomorrow and his resignation will be effective then, it was said.

The elections were held after a vote of no confidence in the Premier because he differed from his government's policy on incorporation of South Schleswig.

No single party gained a majority in the elections.

Help Selves, Europeans Told

Paris, Nov. 4 (AP).—Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, called on European governments today to "put their houses in order" to make American aid effective and to give Americans the desire to help them.

He indicated his belief that Congress would ask supervision of further American spending in Europe.

Bridges estimated President Truman would ask Congress to appropriate about one billion dollars for aid to France, Italy and western Germany to last until June 30, 1948. Neither he nor Senator Wayland Brooks (R., Ill.) indorsed this sum. Bridges explained he could not commit himself before his committee holds hearings at Washington.

Bridges estimated that the United States would have to spend 200 million dollars to 250 million dollars in assuming commitments of the British in their German occupation zone until June 30.

"I don't see anything else left to do," he said.

Bridges said he was "shocked" to find 75 million dollars' worth of UNRRA goods still undistributed in Greece after 18 months.

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 4 (AP). Senator George W. Malone (R., Nev.) declared tonight the United States could not pour dollars into Europe indefinitely without risking a bursting financial bubble at home, "and from what I hear the Russians are rather counting on that."

World Lack of Food Seen for All of 1949

Grain-Saving Drive Rolling Along Toward Its Goal, Luckman Reports

Many countries may have to continue bread rationing through 1949 even if there are bumper crops next year, Director General Sir John Boyd Orr told the Council of the U. N. Food and Agriculture Organization yesterday.

At the same time, higher prices in 1948 for meats and some other food items were forecast for the United States by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Sir John said he saw "no hope" that the world food shortage would end with the 1948 harvest. For the immediate future he urged governments to stretch their existing food supplies further, with the help of voluntary food-saving efforts like the present campaign in the United States.

Charles Luckman, chairman of Citizens' Food Committee, said in Chicago that the voluntary food-saving campaign was "rolling along" toward its goal of saving 100 million bushels of grain this winter.

Observed by Majority

Luckman said "private surveys" showed a majority of the American people observing meatless Tuesdays and eggless and poultryless Thursdays. He said his committee was not considering adding a "wheatless day" to save grain, but he had "no idea" what food-saving measures, if any, would be needed when his committee finished its emergency job on January 1.

The Department of Agriculture predicted yesterday that the American consumer would get less meat, chicken, lard and some canned fruits next year, but more sugar, cheese, butter and dried foods than in 1947. In general, the department estimated, the over-all supply picture would be brighter than in the war years, but competition for food at high prices would continue "strong."

The Department's Bureau of Agricultural Economics estimated that 1948 prices probably would be higher than now for meats, poultry, eggs, cereal products, oranges and some truck vegetables. Prices probably would be as high as now, it predicted, for milk, apples, pears, grapefruit and dry beets.

The only price declines it foresaw in 1948 were for grapes, cranberries and dried fruit. As for fish, the bureau said the price may be somewhat higher next spring than last spring, depending on the extent to which fish are used as a substitute for meat, poultry and eggs.

In his speech to the FAO Council, Sir John Orr warned that the world shortage of fats, oils and livestock products would continue far beyond 1949. Together with the cereal shortage, he said, the situation could be met only by raising the world's total food production.

The increase must come mainly, he said, from rehabilitating farms in war-devastated areas and expanding agriculture in the underdeveloped areas.

10 Million Tons Short

The world's supplies of bread cereals are now 10 million tons short of the amount needed to maintain present rations, he estimated.

"There is no hope of other foodstuffs being substituted for bread," he told the FAO members. "There is no prospect of any major increase in the fat rations. The unprecedented drought in Europe last summer reduced the potato and sugar beet crops in many countries. Forage crops also declined sharply, and in consequence it will be difficult to maintain supplies of milk.

"In Asia the situation is as bad or worse."

Farm Commissioners Hit Poultryless Day

Agricultural commissioners from several leading farm States said yesterday that poultryless Thursdays decreed by President Truman's food committee threaten the poultry industry with "financial ruin."

The officials, members of the Farm Commissioners Council, denounced what they termed "the paradoxical program of attempting to force farmers to reduce their flocks through heavy marketing and then asking the public to eat less poultry."

"The market has been glutted, cold-storage facilities are overtaxed, prices have been driven below cost of production and now formers are being forced, through economic necessity, to hold their poultry and to feed even more grain than would normally be used," they said in a statement.

Pork and Butter Prices Up Again After Last Week's Drop

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Pork and butter prices have begun to climb again.

Wholesalers reported that pork has been rising 3 to 4 cents a pound this week, offsetting last week's drop of 5 to 6 cents, and butter has shown a 4-cent-a-pound rise, compared with last week. Beef, lamb and egg prices were reported as relatively unchanged.

Today at 11:30 a. m., members of the 35 District groups affiliated with the Washington Committee for Consumer Protection will invite passersby on the corner of 14th and F sts. to sign their names to a 3-foot square "telegram" addressed to President Harry S. Truman, urging lower prices and restoration of price control.

Mrs. Zelda Fichandler, publicity chairman of the committee, said the blank will hold 3000 signatures. In addition, members of the groups will be posted near department stores between 11 a. m. and 2 p. m. to invite shoppers to send individual telegrams to the President. Over the weekend, others will be stationed near super markets for the same purpose, she said.

On the local price front, John P. Lewis of the Pointer Co., Inc., spokesman for the meat wholesalers on the food subcommittee of the District Food Conservation Committee, said the wholesalers took a "terrific loss" on last weekend's pork prices.

Lewis blamed last week's low pork prices on the warm weather which reduced pork sales and did not permit holding over the meat. Pork was flowing into the District market as the seasonal hog run began in the Midwest. The change to cooler weather is responsible for the present jump, he explained.

William F. Huhn, cohead of the butter and egg section of the food subcommittee, said the butter price rise was the result of a drop in production. The price may remain about 77 to 85 cents a pound wholesale until spring there is relatively little in storage, he said. Egg prices continued at 72 to 78 cents a dozen for grade A, he added.

The local poultry supply was reported as plentiful, mainly as a result of continued high feed prices which have caused raisers to kill more for the market, wholesalers said, and poultryless Thursdays A backlog of supply was seen forming, although it has not yet reached sizable proportions.

A speakers' bureau has been organized by the local food committee, Joseph B. Danzansky, attorney, who heads the bureau, announced yesterday. Other members, thus far, are Municipal Court Judge W. Armond Scott and James S. Beattie, president of the Junior Board of Commerce. The speakers will be available for talks on the food-saving program, Danzansky said.

Distribution of gummed stickers for placement in autos is being studied by the local committee heads and a program will be announced later this week.

Arraignment of 7 After Police Chase Set in Baltimore

Baltimore, Nov. 4 (AP).—Arraignment of seven men charged with assault to murder, burglary and carrying a deadly weapon will be held Thursday before Judge Joseph Sherbow, State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells announced.

Six of the defendants identified themselves as New Yorkers. They were arrested after the offices of a cigarette-vending company were robbed last week. The assault to murder charge resulted from a running gun battle in which Patrolman William McGee and Edward J. Smith were fired upon by a group of men they were chasing in Smith's taxicab.

The defendants identified themselves as Joseph Gentile, Joseph Lekow, Julius Geller, Angelo Inglese, George Cohen and Louis Rafkind, all of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Solly Geller of Baltimore. McGee said he found the men hiding in Geller's apartment beneath furniture and in a closet.

Maryland Governor Gets 10-Gallon Hat

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—A Texas drawl will be called for when Governor Lane greets the Maryland General Assembly at the special session tomorrow.

Lane was presented with a 10-gallon hat from Texas' Governor Beauford H. Jester. The hat was brought to a Cumberland Junior Chamber of Commerce dinner by national Jaycee President John B. Sheppard.

Injured Boy, 15, Flown to Hospital By Helicopter

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—Fifteen-year-old Herman Midgett, his right arm and hand torn by shotgun pellets, was doing nicely today at the United States Marine Hospital, to which he was flown in a Coast Guard helicopter from the Elizabeth City, N. C., Coast Guard station.

The boy was brought here from Buxton, N. C., in a helicopter which landed him at the hospital doors.

Midgett, whose father is a member of the crew of the United States district Army engineer dredge Comber, was hunting near Buxton Sunday night when he tripped and his 13-gauge shotgun went off, tearing his right arm and hand. He walked 2 miles to the Buxton Coast Guard station, where a pharmacist's mate gave him first aid.

$800 Is Subscribed For Rain-Making

Dodge City, Kans., Nov. 4 (AP).—A group of farmers and businessmen, representing five counties in the drought-stricken Kansas wheat belt, subscribed $800 today to finance rain-making experiments in an effort to save the 1948 crop.

Unusually dry weather has hampered germination of the newly seeded wheat.

Representative Clifford Hope, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, told the group that previous efforts have been sufficiently successful to warrant further trials.

Wheat Belt Pessimistic

where the question is, what it is all about? The complaint is general that there is a lot of propaganda about the Marshall Plan; but no information about what the whole program involves. They haven't been told, it has not been explained to them. They like the idea of helping Europe help itself, but they speak in fear of a prolonged WPA program for Europe. They complain they are being urged to cooperate, but are not being told what is expected of them.

The area is going through a period of unprecedented prosperity. Today the State is experiencing a partial holiday in celebratoin of Will Rogers' birthday and the dedication of the monument to him at Claremore.

But wisecrackers are explaining that the slowdown is due to the New York City election, which has closed the Wall Street banks so that there is no place for the Oklahoma stockman, oil man and wheat grower to ship his daily income.

But with all his prosperity the wheat farmer is worried. He has his whole next year's operation tied to one crop—and the prospects aren't too good.

Nobody expects the 1948 crop to equal this year's. They tell the visitor there is still a chance in Oklahoma, but warn him he will find a worse condition in Kansas.

Wheat experts freely admit that there is a danger of total winter wheat production next year falling half a billion bushels below this year's phenonenal yield in the entire wheat belt. If it does, this year's struggle for wheat for export will seem as a picnic.

Labor Suffers Setback in Glasgow Vote

London, Nov. 4 (AP).—Labor Party setbacks in Glasgow, Socialist stronghold for the past 14 years, were disclosed tonight in early returns from today's Scottist municipal elections, closely watched after the Laborite defeat in last week's local English and Welsh voting.

Other Labor upsets were reported in Perth and Linlithgow, among the 196 Scottist municipalities voting in elections marked by exceptionally heavy turnouts.

Two Labor incumbents on the Glasgow city council were defeated by "Progressive" candidates, backed by the Unionist Party, the Scottish branch of Winston Churchill's conservatives.

In Perth, three Laborites were unseated, early returns showed, and two Labor council seats were lost at Linlithgow.

The first return from Aberdeen showed a victory for a Progressive (Unionist) incumbent.

[A wave of panic buying of consumer goods caused the government to speed up today its plans for introducing a supplementary budget for the current fiscal year, the United Press said.]

[It was said that Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton intends to introduce the budget next Tuesday or Wednesday. It is understood there will be no general increase in the sales tax.

[Preliminary negotiations between the government and the American movie industry on an alternative to the 75 per cent tax on film earnings probably will be started next week.]

[Harold Wilson, Secretary for Overseas Trade, will leave for Moscow in two weeks to resume negotiations for an Anglo-Soviet trade pact, it was learned today by the New York Herald-Tribune.

[At the same time details of a trade and financial agreement between Eire and Britain were announced. Britain agreed to supply Eire with coal in exchange for food.]

Merrill Coming Here For Checkup at Reed

San Francisco, Nov. 4 (AP).—The military career of Brig. Gen. Frank D. Merrill, 44, who led the famed Merrill's Marauders into Burma during the war, may be cut short by illness, he said today. Merrill is on his way to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, for a checkup. He said he suffered heart trouble.

Japanese Cabinet Threatened After Firing of Member

Tokyo, Nov. 4 (AP).—Prime Minister Tetsu Katayama fired Agriculture and Forestry Minister Rikizo Hirano from his cabinet post today, starting a political storm which threatened Japan's coalition government with new pressure from both left and right factions.

The ouster was a move in the undercover political struggle between the prime minister's Social Democrats and Conservatives who hope to control the government before the peace treaty is signed.

Hirano, a right-wing Social Democrat, charged that his dismissal was "undemocratic."

It was the first time in Japanese history a government head had fired one of his ministers without a cabinet resignation.

The trend of sentiment among British voters, as distinguished from their representatives in Parliament, is shown in the following results of British Institute polls during the past two years:

If there were a general election tomorrow, how would you vote?

Conservative	39	39	44	44
Liberal	9	12	10	11
Others	3	3	2	5

One voter in eight—12 per cent—expressed no preference in the latest survey.

THE British public is closely divided on the question whether the present government is too socialistic. Those who think it is are balanced numerically by those who think it is either not socialistic enough or about right on that score.

But there does seem to be a crystallizing of feeling that the program of nationalization of basic industries has proceeded too rapidly, and perhaps too inefficiently. A substantial number of voters think that the government is, to use the British phrase, "muddling along."

Rioters Battle in Milan

Milan, Italy, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Several were injured today in a free-for-all battle between Communists and Trieste refugees demonstrating in commemoration of the First World War armistice.

regime was as pleased as it said it was to get rid of him.

"I don't think they are so happy," Mikolajczyk declared. "They would prefer to finish their education system — political leaders should be arrested, tried, confess quietly and then held up to public opinion as traitors to their country."

Mikolajczyk said a communist campaign of "terror" already was increasing in Poland, and that one of the manifestations of this soon would appear in an "increasing fight against the church."

The church, he said, has been receiving more support than ever from the Polish people as "the only place left where they can express and manifest their feelings."

"I am quite sure," Mikolajczyk added, "that you will hear in a few weeks of a priest being tried for sabotaging the workers; another for having weapons."

The prelude to a Communist offensive came with the formation of the nine-nation Communist Information Bureau with headquarters at Belgrade, the 46-year-old Pole declared.

He said the Cominform "is only bringing out in public what has been going on all the time. The reasons are to finish quicker every independent thought of democracy in the eastern countries while pushing forward quicker communication," and to fight the Marshall Plan through the Communists of France and Italy.

Poland now, he said, will "come more and more under Communist control and more pressure will be put on the people following the coming of the Comintern."

Bandit Loves Music

Baltimore, Nov. 4 (AP).—Police today were looking for a polite, music-loving bandit.

Mrs. Henrietta F. Falkenstine, attendant at a downtown record shop, said the gentleman listened to Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rhapsody," pulled a long, black revolver and told her, "Don't be alarmed. This is a holdup."

She said he then took $38 from the cash register and left.

Industrial Award Upheld by Court

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—A Court of Appeals ruling today upheld a Maryland Industrial Accident Commission award made in opposition to findings by the commission's own medical board.

The commission made an award in the death of Jerome Bishop, 32, a Bethlehem Sparrow Point Shipyard worker, on the basis he died of an occupational disease—lead poisoning. The medical board had found that Bishop "did not die as a result of lead intoxication."

The court ruled the commission has the power to reverse the medical board finding. "Finality attaches to the decision of the commission, not to the decision of the medical board," the court said.

Deposits and Loans Increase in Virginia

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—Milton R. Morgan, State Commissioner of Banking, disclosed today that individual time and demand deposits increased in Virginia banks by 33 million dollars between June 30 and October 6.

Total assets of the State's 814 banks were listed as $804,576,000 on October 6 of which 655 million dollars were deposits of individuals. Aggregate loans jumped seven per cent in the three-month period to $263,270,000.

Slave Labor Evidence Against Farben Mounts

Nuernberg, Germany, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Attorneys prosecuting 23 I. G. Farben officials today began to build up evidence to prove charges that the combine was one of the greatest users of slave labor during the Nazi regime, including children as young as 8.

Documents were presented today to support the prosecution contention that the board of directors of Farben had full knowledge of the slave labor program.

Farben used its slave labor so viciously, the prosecution charged, that 100 persons a day died from exhaustion and starvation at the Farben synthetic rubber plant at Auswitch.

China Prefers To Have U. S. Stay in Korea

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 4.—China objected today to immediate withdrawal of American troops from Korea in fear that Communist domination of that country would "have immediate repercussions" in Manchuria.

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, chief of China's delegation to the United Nations, supported American proposals with withdrawal of American troops only after establishment of a central government in Korea. He adamantly opposed a Soviet resolution for withdrawal of all troops by January 1 to permit Koreans to set up their government without "intimidation."

The Soviet proposal, which means leaving behind a Russian-trained army of 150,000 Koreans and a strongly Communist government in northern Korea, is "wonderfully simple—too simple and altogether too sudden," Koo told the Assembly's Political Committee.

Soviet Acrimony

He recommended that a central Korean government be created with consultations among the four Pacific treaty powers—Russia, the United States, China and Britain—and that troops leave 90 days after the government begins to function. He agred entirely with the American desire to have a United Nations commission oversee the elections, which the Soviet bloc announced it will boycott.

Today's debate was marked with more than the normal amount of Soviet acrimony against the United States. It marked also some sort of record for delegates who heard the same speech delivered four times by the Ukraine, Russia, Byelo Russia and Poland.

Dmitri Z. Manuilsky of the Ukraine, led off with his charges that the United States had 20,000 Koreans in jail and the Japanese at their worst never had more than 6000.

Election Figures Cited

He quoted elaborately from several stories used by American newspapers of misgovernment by the American Military Government, and accused the State Department of making plans to secure an island off the south coast of Korea as a base for planes and submarines.

He pointed with pride to the Soviet operations in its zone and declared 99.2 per cent of the electorate had voted for its government.

Andrei Gromyko of Russia used precisely the same figures, arguments, clippings and accusations. So did Byelo Russia and Poland. Their speeches took more than four hours.

John Foster Dulles "praised" them for the "beautiful spectacle" of government in the northern zone. Koreans, he said, had not been permitted to practice self-government for 40 years, but in two years of Soviet occupation had "adopted an elaborate pattern" of complicated government to which they were strangers.

Familiar Red Pattern

The government adopted for the Soviet zone, said Dulles, "is not a pattern to which the Korean people are accustomed but "it is precisely the pattern used by the Soviet Union."

Sarcastically, he pointed out that the United States, accused by the Soviets of misgovernment, was the one proposing that the United Nations come and oversee elections. The Soviets, despite their bragging of the effectiveness of their governmental setup, refused to permit the U. N. commission to enter its zone to see for itself.

As for the Soviet accusations that the United States had "secret" plans for bases and economic control of Korea, Dulles declared:

"I say in the most solemn way that it is the absolute and firm intention of the United States to withdraw its troops wholly and completely from Korea at the earliest practicable date and that we have no intention of seeking bases or any military help whatsoever in Korea."

India Asks One

India, puzzled by Soviet demands for immediate withdrawal of troops to permit Koreans to set up their government without "intimidation" from foreign sources, wanted to know "how the people of northern Korea were able to hold free elections if Soviet troops were present." No answer was received.

John G. Winant

John Gilbert Winant's virtues were of the heart. He was inarticulate in speaking and in writing; he had no gift for administration; he dreamed of a place for himself among the highest, yet he had no quality of leadership. His ambitions, in other words, were far greater than his attributes. Yet he felt deeply, sometimes moodily, and those with whom he was in long contact came to respect his feeling for justice. His idol was Franklin D. Roosevelt, and he yearned to be a modern Lincoln. The suicide which brings to an end a record of distinguished posts in our public life was probably due to a sense of frustration over his career or over his memoirs. But, whatever the reason, he will be mourned by close and devoted friends. Especially in Britain will there be a widespread sense of loss. Winant as wartime Ambassador to Britain brought solace to the harassed Britons; they remember him fondly as a former generation remembered Walter Hines Page.

British Vote

The drift to the right in western Europe is accentuated by the results of the municipal elections in Britain showing widespread gains for the Conservatives and Liberals over Labor. However, the result in Britain does not leave the government of Britain in a backwater. Without a doubt the Labor government has been shaken, but the upshot will not be dissolution, or, for that matter, a crisis in government. The Laborites still have a handsome majority in Parliament. And unless there is a complete breakdown, they are not unlikely to ride out their term of office until 1950, though with a diminished majority which, in the light of the municipal elections, is bound to come as parliamentary vacancies occur. The reason lies not so much in their strength as in the weakness of the opposition; the Conservatives are not ready either with a program or, as long as Mr. Churchill is the party chieftain, with leadership to assume office.

It would never have occurred to the Briton of a generation ago that the results of municipal elections would have any impact on the national government, or, indeed, had much relation to it. To be sure, candidates wore party labels, but the issues used to be purely local, and the candidates were chosen according to their standing or usefulness in the community. No longer is this the case, in great part because of the rise of the Labor Party, which is concerned with local government only as it serves to subordinate itself to national government and the increasing tasks that the Laborites would give it. Chief of these tasks from Labor's point of view is socialization or nationalization of industry. Socialization is not necessarily against the British grain and the degree of it in vogue in Britain—much less than the critics make out—would doubtless be upheld by the Conservative Party. But a restiveness is to be noted in the election returns over the results of nationalization, as, for instance, the demonstration that the boss is no longer a neighbor, but an impersonal board located in London.

What has been even more disturbing than the loss of power to the locality is the accompanying curb on the rights of the individual. Perhaps the chief reason for the protest vote in Britain is the order which freezes a man to his job during the economic crisis. Of course, this is the result not of nationalization, but of the economic crisis, but the British were not prepared either for this crisis or the measures necessary to cope with it. This is another cause of the resentment that was manifested at the municipal elections. Recently one of the Labor leaders, Lord Dukeston, said, "Everyone competent of forming a judgment upon economic matters has been aware of the coming crisis for a considerable period, but with the knowledge of the strain we endured as a nation during the war, we have delayed this crucial problem until such time as the morale of our people enabled them to face it." It was an approach scarcely in keeping with British psychology. Mr. Churchill always let the British know the worst, feeling that this is the way to realize the best out of the British nation. Labor leadership, however, has consistently played down the real nature of the British crisis, dealt in scapegoats, and subscribed to the theory that the land of Canaan had been reached when the people put Labor in power. The exception is the new economic czar, the austere Sir Stafford Cripps, but the municipal elections occurred before Cripps had had time to demonstrate whatever leadership he possesses.

Speaking Of Americanism

The temporary lull in the hullabaloo over Reds in Hollywood affords a good opportunity to examine the performance of the Thomas Committee on Un-American Activities against the background of our basic political principles. Is the committee merely exposing to well-deserved public scorn a disloyal minority, as one group believes? Or is it trampling down constitutional safeguards in a way that will endanger our precious liberties, as many others believe? The answer must turn at least in part on what kind of power the committee is exercising.

All the legislative power granted by the Constitution belongs to Congress. This is an enormously broad authority, and it necessarily includes the right to probe into any situation that might affect our national security. In the exercise of this power, however, Congress has an obligation not to encroach upon the realm of the judiciary. There is no more basic principle imbedded in our political system than the separation of the legislative and the judicial powers. "The accumulation of all powers . . . in the same hands," Madison wrote in The Federalist, "may justly be pronounced the very definition of tyranny."

In our opinion the Thomas Committee has broken through the reasonable bounds of a legislative agency and invaded the judicial sphere. One member of the committee is said to have remarked that it was functioning as a national grand jury—a judicial body. One of the committee's lawyers inadvertently told witnesses that they were "charged" with communism, as if they had been before a court. And the atmosphere of the hearing has been that of condemning culprits for an alleged offense that has of course no legal foundation.

There is no real analogy between what the committee has done and the procedure of a grand jury. "Heptisax," the well-known Sunday columnist of the New York Herald Tribune, writes that the chief purpose in having a grand jury screen charges against citizens in camera is to avoid damage to reputations through reckless and ill-founded charges. His is a breath of fresh air in an atmosphere of extremism and hysteria. Certainly if the public prosecutor alone had the power to drag a man into court on mere suspicion or insubstantial evidence, irreparable damage could be done to innocent persons. The grand jury is a safeguard against precisely the sort of arbitrary accusations and headline seeking that the Thomas Committee has indulged in.

What the committee has done is in several respects comparable to a trial of individuals accused of communistic affiliations without the benefit of preliminary grand jury screening of the charges. Nor is that the extent of the hearings' unfairness. The offense for which individuals were pilloried is not a crime under the laws of the land. Communism is certainly un-American and membership in the Communist Party is circumstantially indicative of disloyalty to the United States. But disloyalty alone is not a crime. The essence of Americanism is that men are free to think as they please and to join any organization, however radical or reactionary, so long as they do not actively plot or conspire against their country.

To cap the climax of unfairness the Thomas Committee has attempted to make the alleged Communists of Hollywood testify against themselves or, if they refuse, to throw them into jail. The Fifth Amendment guarantees that no person "shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." If it were a crime to be a Communist, no court in the land could force a defendant to take the stand and testify as to his political affiliations. Yet the Thomas Committee is seeking to punish 10 film colony witnesses for their refusal to testify against themselves under circumstances in which such testimony might be extremely damaging. The use of these methods to pry into personal beliefs certainly has the effect of denying rights that are implicit in our constitutional philosophy, and if the courts should approve such misuse of the congressional contempt power the result would be to punish an individual for demanding freedom of conscience even in peacetime.

When a hearing so seriously encroaches upon the legitimate field of the judiciary, we do not think the substance of what is done can be excused because Congress has a right to inform itself as to what the Communists are doing in this country. The right of Congress to know what is happening in Hollywood, or anywhere else, must be safeguarded. But we do not think that right is absolute and paramount to all other rights. On the contrary, it should be exercised with full respect for our constitutional mores.

The courts may check the ruthless use of the contempt power by the Thomas Committee, but it would be far more satisfactory for Congress itself to halt the abuse of power granted to its subordinate bodies. In our opinion three rules of procedure would go a long way toward holding committees to their legitimate function of eliciting information and toward restoring public confidence in the fairness of congressional investigations. First, data involving the character or reputation of individuals should be carefully checked against factual evidence before being aired in public. Mere rumor and unsubstantiated suspicions should have no part in open hearings. Second, when substantial evidence is presented, the individual should be given a fair opportunity to reply. Of course, this does not mean that any committee should be required to admit such ill-tempered tirades as some of last week's Hollywood witnesses attempted to unloose. Third, no contempt citations should be permitted for refusal to answer personal questions calling for testimony by the witness against himself.

We do not think such restrictions would hamper any legitimate effort by Congress to get the information it needs for the intelligent formulation of national policy. But they would help to draw the line between legitimate exposure by Congress of any menace to our security or welfare and the trial of individuals, which ought to be left to the courts. Whatever the menace from communism may be, Congress only discredits itself by attempting to fight it by means that are repugnant to our constitutional system as well as to our native sense of fair play.

Continue The IEFC

One of the most consistently effective of the world agencies instituted since the war has been the International Emergency Food Council. This organization, composed of representatives of 35 nations including the United States, has done an outstanding job of meeting the food crisis by allocating available supplies fairly and efficiently on the basis of need. Little purpose would be served, and grave damage might result, in disturbing the working relationship that the IEFC has established while the emergency is still in full swing. We hope, therefore, that in its meeting now going on, the World Food Council of the U. N. Food and Agriculture Organization will reconsider its earlier vote to take over the emergency council's operations as of the end of this year.

As IEFC Secretary-General D. A. FitzGerald has made clear in various reports, the shortage of foods and fertilizers may be nearly as acute next year as it is now. That alone is reason to prolong the life of the IEFC past the original expiration date of December 31. Certainly the experience which the commodity committees of the IEFC have amassed in the daily chore of dividing too little food among too many clients ought not to be discarded now. This is especially true inasmuch as the FAO, as an advisory rather than an operating agency, has not demonstrated its capacity to cope on a practical basis with the problems the IEFC is designed to meet.

Even the alternative of taking over IEFC policies and personnel intact runs into the danger of administrative confusion that could easily aggravate the crisis. We are sure that FAO members must be aware that a simple transfer of functions is not feasible, and we hope that a sense of necessity will outweigh any considerations of face-saving. We believe that the FAO eventually must assume the responsibilities now fulfilled by the IEFC. It should be possible, however, to work quietly toward this goal without disrupting the operations which now are of such grave importance to a hungry world.

The Voluntary Way

A Jefferson County (Ky.) Circuit Court judge has ordered a local distillery to fulfill its contract to deliver a certain number of barrels of whisky to a selling agency suing to compel fulfillment of a contract. The judge pointed out that the Citizens Food Committee is a voluntary association without legal power to stop whisky production and force distillers to breach their contracts. That is self-evident, although with the Nation's distillers pledged to suspend operations, the shutdown remains complete.

Nevertheless, the Kentucky ruling emphasizes the difficulties inherent in any program of purely voluntary industrial cooperation designed to save grain to aid Europe. The success of a voluntary conservation program in this instance also calls for the support of distributing agencies whose contracts with distillers may be impaired by suspension of distilling operations. Although the Kentucky decision affords no ground for inferring that the suspension agreement will be seriously affected, the court ruling calls attention to the ease with which the voluntary approach can be blocked by those prepared to stand on their legal rights. It is because of such difficulties that in times of emergency Government controls so often have to be substituted for voluntary ones as a means of conserving scarce goods.

The hastily improvised voluntary control system applied to distillers also suffers from a failure to make systematic provision to protect the interests of workers temporarily deprived of jobs by curtailment of operations. Officials of the distillery workers' union have conferred with representatives of the industry to discuss plans for dealing with the labor problems resulting from the shutdown, and a number of distillers have agreed not to lay off their employes or reduce their pay. Although the numbers of workers affected and the amount of wages lost have undoubtedly been greatly exaggerated, the agreement undeniably entails undue hardship for a small segment of the country's labor force and gives rise to complaints that cannot be lightly dismissed by private employers who are voluntary participants in the program.

THE ARISTOCRAT

Let the rain fall.
After years, the elements will enter,
Maybe now and surely soon.
Let it fall and douse the lights,
Let the siding tumble down . . .
Like ancestral ghosts, the chairs,
Like a patriarch, the table.
She had guarded them for decades,
Source of all her secret strength,
Source of pride to keep her stable.
They had lived through all her trouble.
She who had no heart to give,
Gave them strength and lost her living.
Now, beside the unlocked door
Memories can do no good.
Death alone is not a stranger.
Let the rain teem on the house.
All its bones are made of wood.

"Wedemeyer Report"

At a meeting of the directors of our association on October 22, one of our directors called attention to two editorials in your paper of that date. One of the editorials was headed "Wedemeyer Report" and stated that it was probably foolish to send General Wedemeyer to China in the first place and called on Secretary Marshall to issue a statement reaffirming his statement of last January. By implication your editorial approved the suppression of the Wedemeyer report.

In the next column you had an editorial headed "Teacher of History," in which you chided Secretary Marshall for his concealment of so much information of what is happening in relation to our foreign policy at the present time and called his attention to the frankness and openness of Charles Evans Hughes when he was Secretary of State.

I presume that these two editorials were written by two different men because it would seem that the man who wrote the second editorial would find that the release of the Wedemeyer report would be item No. 1 of his program for informing the American public on what is going on in our handling of foreign affairs. Our relations with China and our policy in China are not the private preserve of the Secretary of State or the President of the United States.

American policy in China for nearly 100 years has been based on the principle of the Open Door as finally enunciated by Secretary Hay in 1899 and further defined and pledged by Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes in 1922. In fact, except for the Monroe Doctrine, it is the only traditional American foreign policy, and whether General Wedemeyer's statement and report recommend its implementation or its abandonment, it is a matter of extreme interest to that section of the American public informed on foreign affairs.

It was the opinion of our directors that the writer of the second editorial referred to above be commended for his stand and the writer of the first editorial be requested to demand the release of the Wedemeyer report instead of approving its suppression by implication.

ALFRED KOHLBERG,
Chairman, Board of Directors, American China Policy Association.
New York.

Editor's note: There was not the slightest intention of recommending the suppression of the Wedemeyer report. Moreover both editorials to which Mr. Kohlberg refers came from the same pen.

Part-Time Employes

I am writing this letter in behalf of approximately 100 veterans who have been fired from their part-time jobs at the Veterans Administration here in Washington. It was explained that these boys must leave by November 30 because certain sections of the VA have more employes than are required under the employe ceiling ruling, and that the most advantageous place to make the cut is with the part-time workers.

This group consists mainly of student veterans, many of whom are married and some of whom have children to support. It hasn't been easy to overcome all obstacles in order to finish delayed educations, and so these young men have procured part-time jobs.

Government groups have diligently requested that private businesses make an all-out effort to assist the wounded veteran and the part-time student in his attempts to become a useful and valuable member of the community. As a result, a number of businessmen have made changes in their employe policies, and have made other concessions in order to cooperate with these requests. Government agencies could devise a similar plan.

Perhaps it would be possible for them to consider two part-time veterans as the equivalent of one full-time employe. It doesn't seem that this plan would be too unreasonable, and it would certainly be a help to these soon-to-be-jobless veterans. At any rate, this or a similar plan would enable the VA to follow its own advice, thereby setting a good example for other organizations. G. S. W.

Hollywood Stories

From the outset of the House committee's investigation of Hollywood, I have been astounded at the type of "reporting" that has been done by your Mary Spargo. A typical example of her work is the following, from the issue of October 30: "Citations for contempt of Congress went to four more of Hollywood's plush salaried Communists yesterday . . ." Thus Miss Spargo goes even further than the committee by finding guilty and villifying those witnesses who have not, to date, been found guilty of anything.

I have, therefore, done a little investigative work myself and discovered that a certain Mary Spargo used to work for Mr. Thomas' predecessor, the Dies Committee. And now I no longer wonder why Miss Spargo writes as she does. But what still astounds me is the fact that The Washington Post lets her get away with it. READER.

Inadequate Benefits

Our present Social Security program is so inadequate, so short of sufficient and proportionate benefits, that a more appropriate name for it would be the social insecurity act, since it gives neither protection to the disabled nor any relief to those who are ill. In the absence of provisions for disability or sickness, notwithstanding the fact that there are millions of Americans in need of medical care as well as dental attention, our social security program is, to say the least, a compliment to hypocrisy.

As for unemployment compensation benefits, which in some States range as low as $5 a week to cover the essentials of life, they, too, are pathetically inadequate. Moreover, the old-age pension average, which is $30 a month, is so short of what is required that those who receive a pension, if they have no other source of income, are doomed to bitter want and poverty. "Red Fascism"

I have just read Carroll Quigley's letter in The Washington Post of November 1 berating Mary Spargo for using the expression "Red fascism" and calling her ignorant for implying that communism and fascism are similar. I'm afraid Mr. Quigley is the ignorant one. If he had half the knowledge of these phenomena that he implies he has, he would know the differences between fascism and communism are merely superficial. Fundamentally they are very, very similar. Both mean totalitarian police states kept in power by force and terrorism.

Civil Rights Report

May I thank you, very deeply, for your very splendid editorial, "Inalienable Rights," which appeared in The Washington Post for October 30.

The day on which you restated the concept of the state as the servant of the individual, I sat for some time at the hearings of the Committee on Un-American Activities, listening in great depression to the almost unbelievable repudiation of that concept by eight duly-elected representatives of the people, from all parts of the country and from both major political parties.

But even as I sat there, wondering how such a thing could be in free America, I remembered with thankfulness the report of the President's Committee on Civil Rights, which had just been released, and realized, as you have so well pointed out, that such a report could only have been made in a land where, in spite of frequent violations, the rights of the individual are respected, and that your own keenly analytical editorial on the report could have been published only in a land where freedom of expression still prevails, in spite of ill-considered attempts to muzzle it.

It is for us, now, to implement the splendid, courageous report of this committee, knowing that the absence of law to protect the individual, is, in fact, anarchy. But that the abridgement of the rights of the individual in the name of law, is, by the same token, only negation of the democracy we profess to protect.

MARY McLEOD BETHUNE,
Founder-President, the National Council of Negro Women.
Washington.

From labor organizers to presidents of distant corporations, it is difficult to ascribe to members of the Civil Rights Committee a sincere interest in the people of Washington. Listing only one man from the South and no one at all who is connected in any way with District public recreational or educational work, the committee could hardly be called representative by any stretch of the imagination. . .

Radical social change comes about either by revolution or by gradual evolution. The American democratic way is the latter. Those who would force revolutionary change of customs under the guise of "civil rights" merely create civil strife. There are very few white people in this city or in any other who sanction the complete blending of the races in all its aspects. The optimum degree to which social institutions should be allowed to contribute toward it is highly controversial. This touchy question should certainly be decided by local opinion and not be capitalized upon either politically or otherwise.

M. CHAPMAN LLOYD
Washington

The report marks or can mark the dawn of a new era, the beginning of democracy in our Nation's Capital. To say that we believe in democracy and in equal rights, is a mere platitude unless we put these beliefs into practice.

GRACE ROSE.
Baltimore

It is natural perhaps for those who have the means to control their surroundings of everyday living to take an idealistic point of view. But the determination of such matters should be left to the citizen of limited means who must live with the results of such legislation.

Covenants in regard to race are no more discriminatory than covenants against low-cost housing. In one case they exclude because of race, in the other because of economic status. If we abolish the one, the other type of covenants should also be abolished as unfair. I wonder how many Washingtonians would care to continue to live here under such conditions.

Our city should not be made a guinea pig for the Nation by Congress, but we should be given the same right every other city has of self-determination on matters of purely local concern.

Roots For Civil Liberty

By Malvina Lindsay

Preventing Bigots

THOSE AMERICANS who have never heard of the Bill of Rights constitute one grass roots problem the Nation faces in its new effort to preserve and extend its heritage of human liberty. Another is the potential bigot—who may be forestalled if caught early enough.

The President's Committee on Civil Rights, in its recent report, called for a campaign of education to prevent the ignorance and prejudice that cause violation of the principles on which the Republic was founded. Hence educators, psychologists and community leaders are now discussing how they can take up from there.

Their job is to help provide the "climate of opinion" the committee calls for to reinforce the immediate legislative measures it proposes. Two places where the Government has immediate responsibility for an educational civil rights campaign, it points out, are in the armed forces and among its two million employes.

Americans are shockingly ignorant of the civil rights to which they are entitled, and which they owe others. The committee reported that, according to surveys, only one out of five Americans had a reasonably accurate knowledge of the Bill of Rights—the first 10 Amendments to the Constitution. One third of the people had never heard of it.

And this at a time when the American ideal of individual liberty is being challenged in the world by an aggressive totalitarianism that subordinates the individual to the state.

This at a time when a national hysteria of fear threatens through intemperate loyalty tests and congressional inquisitions to make dangerous inroads on American liberties.

BUT JUST how to interest John Jones in the Bill of Rights when a movie or a ball game beckons is a big question. Educators agree this certificate of freedom needs to be dramatized in some way, given warmth and emotion. Exhibiting it on a Freedom Train is something, but not enough. It needs to be redeemed from the dry-as-dust status that dull, uninspired history teaching has given it. It needs to have its origin and history retold in human terms by movie and radio. It needs to be lifted out of parchment or history text and related to the lives of everyday citizens.

Only in that way can Americans recapture a spark of the great wave of enthusiasm for personal liberty that swept the country in the late Eighteenth Century, and caused Americans to sing with fervor, "My Days Have Been So Wondrous Free," the song said to have been one of George Washington's favorites.

However, it is much easier to cure or prevent the bigot who is the victim of ignorance than the more poisonous one who is driven by fear, insecurity and guilt. For him nothing can be done by exhortation. Information may help a little, say psychologists, especially if he can be induced to face and talk over his prejudices.

Contact with members of the minority group he fears or hates sometimes changes his ideas, as the President's Committee showed in its report on the attitudes of servicemen toward having Negro platoons in their companies. The closer white infantrymen had been to the actual experience of working with Negroes in combat units, the more willing they were to accept them in future.

HOWEVER the psychic defects that cause prejudice which, in the words of the committee, "ranges from the mild, secret feeling of the social snob to the violent murderous impulses of the insanely prejudiced," generally have a basis in early childhood. Since they are the same impulses that cause wars, psychologists throughout the world are now studying how they can be prevented.

Volunteer study groups under auspices of the United Nations Interim Commission for World Health are exploring this field in preparation for a meeting next year. Dr. G. Brock Chisholm, Canadian psychiatrist, now executive secretary of the commission, believes strongly that an entire revolution in child rearing is needed in order to eliminate bigotry and wars. His new education would be aimed primarily at preventing children from developing a sense of insecurity and guilt, which are the basis of prejudice, isolationism and aggression.

In other words the big job is to help the human race grow up as quickly as possible. For neither minority groups nor nations can be safe so long as the world is full of oversize infants wielding power with statutes and guns.

Securities. Monopoly

The Government charge that 17 New York investment bankers had a stranglehold on the Nation's security investment business is a belated recognition of findings of the Temporary National Economic Committee. Why did the Government wait six years before acting on the conclusions of this body which proved beyond any doubt that this condition existed?

Between 1934 and 1939, 9.2 billion dollars in securities were sold to the public through the medium of investment bankers. Although there were 730 members in the Investment Bankers Association, 8.4 billion dollars, or 91 per cent, were sold through the 38 leading firms. The six largest—Morgan Stanley & Co., the First Boston Corp., Dillion Read & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Smith, Barney & Co., and Blythe & Co. accounted for 57 per cent of the total and over 80 per cent of the first grade issues. Morgan Stanley dominated the scene.

The findings of the TNEC were more than sufficient to prove that collusion and monopoly practices were rampant in this field.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

The Creeping Terror

PRAGUE.—In contrast to the rest of Europe, the surface of life here is wonderfully bustling and prosperous. Prague's baroque palaces and modern suburbs could still do with a lick of paint. But the shops are full of goods. The streets are jammed with traffic. And the people are downright fat.

Beneath this happy surface, however, an ominous and tragic fact is only half concealed. Czechoslovakia is in the grip of a creeping terror. Since the end of the war, this has been a showplace for optimists. It has been the place where Communists ruled like Democrats, where East and West could meet without an intervening iron curtain, where human freedom survived in the shadow of Soviet power. That period is coming to an end. Within a few months, unless drastic countermeasures are taken, the iron curtain will clank down with finality. The terror, now creeping underground, will be open and unashamed. Czechoslovakia will know the fate of Hungary, of Poland, of Romania and Bulgaria.

It seems incredible that freedom-loving people, western in habit and tradition, should accept such a fate when there are no Soviet troops in Czechoslovakia. But the Czechs bear deep scars of national neurosis from the experience of the last eight years. All of them are conscious that the Soviet armies in Germany are deployed along their borders. As for their government, President Benes, the beloved link with the past, is aged and ailing. The foreign minister with a great name, Jan Masaryk, is a paunchy man who makes jokes. And since the last election, the real control has been in the hands of the Communists led by Prime Minister Gottwald.

LONG AGO the Communists made their preparations for the event that is now occurring. At the head of the army they placed General Svoboda, commander of the Czechoslovak Corps in Russia during the war, rumored holder of a party card, and in any case, a man who knows which side of his bread is buttered. Almost without exception he has passed over western-experienced Czech officers and promoted those who have Russian associations. Above all, the army's counterintelligence corps, which is really a secret service, has come under the domination of Communists or men who will do their bidding.

The army is infiltrated and neutralized. The Information Ministry, in overtly Communist hands, is ready to blare propaganda through Soviet-style loudspeakers in every town. Most decisive of all, the Ministry of the Interior, headed by the Communist Nosek, has transformed all branches of the national police into service organizations of the party. With complete control of the labor unions, and a considerable number of armed partisans, the Communists thus hold all the trumps for any game of coup d'etat.

TO BE SURE, these trumps have long been in Communist hands. But until recently even the more western-minded Communists, like Prime Minister Gottwald and the Deputy Foreign Minister Klementis, seemed to believe that their role was to play the game the western way. Czechoslovakia is economically dependent on its links with the west. When the Marshall Plan was announced, Czech Communists and non-Communists alike voted unanimously to send a delegation to the preparatory conference in Paris. This occurred, interestingly enough, after the Czechs had been assured that Poland would do likewise by a visiting group from Warsaw, including influential Communist members of the Polish government.

As everyone now knows, the Czechs learned their error from Stalin in person. At Moscow, Gottwald had his head washed by the generalissimo. Under the implied threat of rupture of the Czech-Soviet alliance, the whole cabinet voted unanimously to reverse its previous unanimous vote. In the streets of Prague, people talked of "the new Munich." The incident showed the Czechs how far their independence was impaired. What was far more important, it also showed Moscow that some spirit of independence remained at Prague. The order is now known to have gone out a once, "put the screws on." The screws are on today. The major manifestation of this fact so far has been the arrest of a large number of members of the Slovak Democratic Party on charges of collaboration with "Fascist refugee wreckers."

The atmosphere of terror is already tangible. Already leading non-Communist Czechs are known to be considering flight. And this is only the beginning of the story. All competent authorities here, foreign and Czech, have privately agreed that the end will come with the open suppression of Czechoslovakia's hardly rewon independence, unless those who love their liberties act in the interval in self-defense. They must do so before next spring, the time of the elections for which the present terror is intended to prepare.

Marquis Childs is now en route to the United States after his tour to report what Americans are doing in Europe. His column, "Washington Calling," will be resumed next week.

Civil Rights At Stake in 2 Appeal Cases

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—Appeals from two South Carolina district court decisions—one giving Negroes the right to participate in the State Democratic primary and the other allowing a Negro to enter the State university law school unless equal facilities are provided elsewhere—will be argued at the November term of United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals in Baltimore.

The election is docketed November 18 and the appeal of the university against John H. Wrighten, a Negro with a bachelor's degree from State College who sought entrance in the law school, is set for November 21.

Judge J. Waties Waring of Charleston handed down both district court decisions.

In the former case he held that "Negroes are entitled to be enrolled to vote" in the Democratic primaries. Party rules instituted in 1944 had limited voting exclusively to "white Democrats."

George Elmore, a Columbia, S. C., Negro, brought the case, contending he was not permitted to vote because of his color. Defendants, who now have appealed, are the Richland County Democratic Executive Committee and primary managers in one Columbia Democratic Club.

In deciding that Wrighten should either be allowed to enter the university or be given equal facilities for such study elsewhere, Judge Waring said there was one alternative—that: "The State furnish no law school education to any persons of either the white or Negro races."

War Dead Leave France

Cherbourgh, France, Nov. 4 (AP).—The Army transport Robert F. Burns sailed today, carrying 1503 caskets containing the first American dead of World War II to leave France for repatriation.

Race-Mixing Not Objective, Truman Says

President Truman told a Baptist clergyman yesterday that all races and creeds have a right to equal industrial and educational opportunity in the United States.

He made the comment to Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, pastor of the Third Baptist Church of St. Louis, newly elected president of the World Baptist Alliance, who reported to the White House on his group's "moral code" for world peace.

Johnson told newsmen that he recently visited Birmingham, Ala., and found the people there "heated up" about the recent report of Mr. Truman's Civil Rights Committee assailing discrimination against and segregation of Negroes.

"I told the President that he certainly stuck his neck out in Birmingham," the cleric said. "But I also told him that a turtle never gets anywhere unless he does stick his neck out."

He quoted Mr. Truman as having replied that the committee's work was not a case of mixing races, but of having "a great body of people in training to be citizens." He said the President added that all minorities in this country have equal rights "industrially and educationally."

Administering Aid

By Ernest Lindley

Alternatives In The Marshall Plan

IDEAS ABOUT the administrative setup for the European recovery program seem to be crystallizing around three alternative plans.

Lindley

The first is a Government corporation. Under Representative Herter's proposal, the corporation would have six directors, two appointed by the President, two by the President of the Senate, and two by the Speaker of the House. Presumably all would give full time to the job. That is, they would not be members of Congress or officials holding other positions in the executive branch. And they would elect their own chairman.

The corporation would handle food, fuel, fertilizer and similar items—perhaps 60 to 75 per cent of the program. It would handle these on a lend-lease basis—that is, by buying the goods and seeing that they were shipped rather than by lending money to European governments to do their own buying. There would be a supervisory committee consisting of the Secretary of State and other Cabinet officers. But its powers would be very limited—really only advisory so far as the operations of the corporation were concerned.

A second plan is to have the State Department administer the program through a commission or executive directly under its control.

The third is to set up an independent agency or administrator responsible to the President. This has been favored by some members of the Harriman Committee—the Citizens' Committee of 19 on foreign aid—but, as this is being written, has not been formally adopted as a recommendation.

THE SECOND plan—State Department administration—would, if recommended, face probably insurmountable opposition in Congress.

The first plan looks very appealing to Congress, especially to many Republicans. Directors appointed by the Republican leaders would control the corporation. Presumably they would choose businessmen or financiers for the purpose of the corporation plan seems to be to assure hard-boiled business-like management of the funds appropriated by Congress. The corporation, it is argued, would be able to exercise a degree of supervision over the use of the funds in Europe which the State Department could not undertake without being accused of intervention in the internal affairs of other states.

It is entirely possible, however, that European governments and peoples would draw no such distinction between the State Department and a Government corporation—that what they would resent on the part of one they would resent on the part of the other. Moreover, a corporation directed by businessmen without the ability to weigh the political factors in various European countries, might precipitate serious crises. In any event, they could, in effect, make their own foreign policy.

WARTIME experience—especially with the Foreign Economic Administration and during the early days of the Office of War Information—stands as a warning against setting up any agency which can pursue foreign policies at odds with those of the State Department.

The third plan—an agency or administrator directly responsible to the President—seems the best designed to strike a balance. The administrator would have to work in general harmony with the foreign policy determined by the President and his Secretary of State. At the same time, he would be able to run his own shop. He would not be under the State Department. This plan is also in accord with the constitutional and customary division between legislative and executive duties. Instead of a WPB-type of agency headed by a single administrator, a corporate device might be used, provided that it was not completely independent of the control of the President and State Department.

The right balance between autonomy in operation and coordination of policy with the State Department will not be easy to strike. But a sound administrative plan must provide for both.

Data on Klan Stolen From Ga. Capitol

Atlanta, Nov. 4 (AP).—Georgia's Attorney General Eugene Cook said today that files containing names of "many prominent persons" involved in investigations of the Ku Klux Klan and the Columbians had been stolen from his capitol office.

Cook said the information, obtained in extensive investigations of the two race-baiting orders, might be worth "thousands of dollars to certain persons."

The attorney general said since he already had succeeded in revoking the charters of both organizations the files were of little further value to the State's law department itself.

Ga. Warden, Guards Freed in Convict Deaths

Brunswick, Ga., Nov. 4 (AP).—A Federal Court deliberated for eight minutes today and then freed a former Georgia prison camp warden and four of his guards of charges that they killed eight Negro convicts last July without cause.

Hearing of evidence took six days.

State agencies previously had exonerated the warden, H. G. Worthy, and the guards.

Worthy and the guards were accussed, under the Federal civil rights statutes, of unnecessarily depriving the convicts of their lives.

Worthy and the guards said a mass escape attempt necessitated the shooting.

Survivors of the shooting said there was no escape attempt.

Premier of Finland Arrives in Moscow

Moscow, Nov. 4 (AP).—Premier Mauno Pakkala of Finland and several of his ministers arrived in Moscow today while a Finnish trade delegation was still here, causing speculation that closer Soviet-Finnish relations may develop.

Pekkala was greeted by Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and nearly the entire diplomatic corps.

Resigns Labor Party

London, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Evlyn Walkden, Labor member of Commons who was reprimanded for selling secrets of party caucuses, resigned from the Labor Party today. It was understood, however, that he intended to keep his seat as an independent.

Barbers Credited

Egypt Sees Cholera War Victory Soon

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Egyptian health officials said today they believed they may conquer Egypt's cholera epidemic by the middle of December and added that much of their victory may be credited to village barbers. The disease has struck down 16,000 persons.

The barbers of Egypt were enlisted with all the intensity and desperation Egypt would have mobilized against an invading enemy, because village barbers combine the duties of hair-trimmer with those of dentist, doctor and general adviser. In the poverty-stricken backward provinces where the plague has done fearful damages, superstitious peasants avoided government-appointed doctors in favor of barbers, as their grandfathers did.

The disease spread everywhere because peasants often concealed the bodies of victims in wells and other places rather than turn them over for burial in lime.

Officials reasoned that barbers would know who was ill. So with much ceremony they informed each village barber that henceforth he would bear the proud title of "hallak el sahha"—barber of health."

"Now we receive reports from barbers as soon as there is sickness," a doctor said today. "We swoop down in cars and ambulances, surround the area and raid the houses. I have entered homes by the windows or through the roof and caught families trying to hide a victim."

U. S. Catholics Send Cholera Serum to Cairo

New York, Nov. 4.—Following an urgent appeal from Archbishop Arthur Hughes, apostolic internuucio to Egypt, for anti-cholera serum, the National Catholic Welfare Conference sent 1000 vials of vaccine by plane to Cairo today.

As the clothing of all persons exposed is immediately burned wearable clothing also will be dispatched, Archbishop Hughes was informed.

Reds Promote Bulganin

Moscow, Nov. 4 (AP).—Nikolai A. Bulganin, who succeeded Prime Minister Stalin March 6 as minister of the Russian armed forces, has been promoted to marshal in recognition of his services in war and the postwar period.

Scientists Pry Into Binder of Matter's Core

Chicago, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Westinghouse scientists said today they have begun an intensive research campaign to find out what mysterious forces keep the core of matter from exploding like an atomic bomb.

If the answer is found, they said, it may prove "a hundred-fold more significant than the atomic bomb itself."

Dr. William E. Shoupp, of the Westinghouse laboratories in East Pittsburgh, Pa., announced the program in an address before the National Electronics Conference here.

The objective, he said, is to learn the nature of the "binding forces" that hold nuclear particles together.

"Once we do so, it may no longer be necessary to 'smash' down the door of the atom's nucleus in order to find what's inside. With the key in hand, we could simply unlock the door and look inside."

Eisenhower Unveils Will Rogers Statue

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army chief of staff, unveiled a life-size statue of Will Rogers here today and said the late cowboy humorist's understanding of human foibles was needed today to help people see that personal ambitions must be put behind national need.

The occasion was the sixty-eighth anniversary of the birth of the humorist.

AMERICAN SECURITY ASKS YOU THESE QUESTIONS

Is your Will "home-made," drawn without an attorney's advice?

Does it name as Executor a friend or relative who has neither time nor training for the task?

Does it make bequests to people now deceased, or fail to provide for children born since it was drawn?

Does it dispose of property you no longer own, or fail to consider assets recently acquired?

Does it reflect careful thought toward effecting every possible tax economy and avoiding unnecessary estate shrinkage?

In brief, does it express your wishes today in sound legal form?

For your family's sake, we urge you to consult your lawyer about your Will...and get the advice of our Trust Officers on sound estate planning...now.

Your money's worth in a newspaper means getting the best and the most!

AS A READER of The Washington Post you are entitled to know what you are getting in both quality and quantity of reading material.

The quality of news and features each reader eventually determines for himself. Yet it's nice to know that Washingtonians who read The Washington Post and other newspapers vote The Washington Post best for news coverage—by 2 to 1, 7 to 1 and 8 to 1—over the other papers. It's helpful to know, too, that The Washington Post has been voted best by Washington correspondents, that it is quoted more often in Congress as indicated by the Congressional Record, that The Washington Post is the Capital newspaper referred to most often by outside editors. To say nothing of the fact that more awards for various kinds of journalistic excellence have been awarded to The Washington Post.

As for quantity, that's a simpler matter. Media Records, Inc., measures both news and advertising space in all Washington newspapers every month. And here's the report of the first nine months of the year—January through September, 1947:

LINES OF NEWS

News, Features, Pictures, Editorials, Etc.

The Washington Post	11,879,869
The Times-Herald	11,607,660
Evening & Sunday Star	10,749,517
News (no Sunday edition)	4,345,146

You are getting more for your money when you buy The Washington Post, and that's the way we want it to be.

Schmunk Elected President of AAA

Former Head of Ohio Auto Association Succeeds H. J. Brunnier of San Francisco

Robert J. Schmunk, of Cleveland, Ohio, senior vice president of the association, was elected AAA president yesterday.

Schmunk, president of the Cleveland Automobile Club and past president of the Ohio State Automobile Association, succeeds H. J. Brunnier of San Francisco, president for the past three years.

At the morning session the AAA formally condemned the sale of liquor at roadside gasoline stations and urged widespread adoption of scientific tests to track down and convict drunken drivers.

In other resolutions the association urged the elimination of the present 15 per cent tax on all domestic and foreign transportation as an incentive to increase travel, and Senate ratification of international driving agreement to facilitate movement of automobiles across national boundaries.

Corcoran Thom, chairman of the board of the American Security and Trust Co., 15th and Pennsylvania ave. n.w., was elected treasurer, and Frederick P. H. Siddons, vice president of the same bank, was elected assistant treasurer.

Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) was elected a vice president.

Prince Georges Board Opens Building Bids

Bids for an addition to the Prince Georges County Courthouse at Upper Marlboro and a separate office building for the county Board of Education were opened yesterday by the Prince Georges Commissioners at their meeting in Upper Marlboro, Md. Contracts probably will be awarded today.

Low bidder on the courthouse addition was Lee T. Turner of Washington, who offered to construct the three-story wing for $212,568. The wing is to provide a new circuit court room with judges' chambers, jury rooms, a new police court room, new county police headquarters and an extension of the treasurer's office.

Low bidder for the one-story Board of Education building in rear of the courthouse was W. M. Chappell, of Hillcrest, Md., with $152,800. Plans were drawn by Paul H. Kea Associates, Hyattsville.

The commissioners received a letter from Judge Charles C. Marbury of Prince Georges County Circuit Court, commending the "splendid work now being done by the Prince Georges County police."

"I feel that the performance of these men has been of such high caliber as to call for some official commendation on my part," the judge wrote. "More especially, the work of Officers Wilson J. Purdy, Phillip Kearns and Joseph Vincent in solving the case against Frank Edward Coates, John W. Holeman and Clyde Barnes is noteworthy."

Frank H. Cowell, jr., secretary of the Prince Georges County Real Estate Board, urged the commissioners to extend Rhode Island avenue from Brentwood to where the carline crosses the Baltimore blvd. at Beltsville, to relieve traffic congestion on the boulevard.

The commissioners approved award by the Maryland State Roads Commission of a contract for improvement of Dr. Fox's rd., near Laurel, and directed Linden Briscoe, board clerk, to forward a check for $10,920 to the roads body for the county's share. William A. Harting, Lansdowne, Md., was low bidder at $19,855.

The commissioners appointed Louis C. Weaver of Hyattsville as relief desk clerk for the Upper Marlboro and Hyattsbille Police Stations and Charles S. Early, jr., of Brandywine as desk clerk for Upper Marlboro Police Headquarters.

Mrs. Nannie King Wilson, Marlboro, was named secretary to State Parole Officer Roy T. Bright, assigned to the county as probation officer. Carlton E. Thorne, sr., Piscataway, was named inspector in the county engineer's office, and John Steele Mathews was named engineer inspector in that office to replace the late Thomas W. Sasscer. Mrs. John J. Fainter was named committing magistrate for the Hyattsville County Service Building to replace her husband, Judge John J. Fainter, resigned.

The commissioners will not meet next Tuesday because of the holiday, but will meet Thursday instead.

NLRB Drops Idea Of Union Foremen

Proceedings in Supreme Court Disclose Policy Change Owing to Taft Hartley Act

The first Taft-Hartley briefs of the National Labor Relations Board in the Supreme Court gave up the idea of foremen's unions yesterday.

Plant guards, the NLRB said, too, no longer may join rank and file unions. However, the NLRB contended, it still has power to enter many orders regarding foremen.

When the Taft-Hartley Act was passed last June 23 several unions were fighting for bargaining rights for foremen and plant guards. Shortly before, the Supreme Court had ordered Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. to deal with the CIO steel workers on wages and hours for its plant guards.

During the summer, the firm told the court it ought to change its order, because the new law outlawed such bargaining. NLRB Counsel Robert Denham and Solicitor General Philip Perlman agreed with this stand yesterday, but suggested that the Supreme Court had lost power over the case, and the change would have to be made by the Circuit Court of Appeals, where the case is now.

On the other hand, Denham and Perlman asked the court to stand by its order that Nail Manufacturing Co., Chicago, give two foremen their jobs back, with pay for the last several years.

The foremen were held to have been fired because they would not accept a rating as rank and file workers, so they could vote against a union in a plant election.

"The effect (of the Taft-Hartley Act) is to deprive foremen of any protection in the future should they attempt to organize and bargain collectively," Denham and Perlman told the court.

But the Government counsel argued that the Vail order had nothing to do with foremen's unions, that the unfairness there grew out of the rights of the rank and file union. The NLRB could make the same order in a like case, despite the Taft-Hartley Act, the Government said.

Mountain Bought By Sculptor for Sioux Monument

Custer, S. D., Nov. 4 (U.P.).—A 39-year-old sculptor disclosed today that he had purchased a granite mountain in the Black Hills and plans to dedicate his life to carving it into a colossal memorial honoring the Sioux Indians and their warrior-chief, Crazy Horse.

It would dwarf even the huge busts of Washington, Jefferson and Theodore Roosevelt at Mount Rushmore less than 10 miles away.

The sculptor is Korczak Ziolkowski, a New Englander. He said the memorial will depict an Indian astride a wild stallion. It will be more than 400 feet long and 300 feet high.

Hercules Sues WFBR

Baltimore, Nov. 4—(AP)—A $50,000 damage suit was on file in Superior Court today charging Baltimore Radio Show, Inc., operators of WFBR, used some of the plaintiff's air time to carry other commercial announcements. The suit was filed by the Hercules ship maintenance firm.

Arabian Oil Cost Too Much

sidiary of the Texas Co. and Standard Oil of California, which owns 60 per cent of Aramco.

Bodenschatz is now assistant manager of the export division of General Petroleum Corp., Los Angeles. The corporation is a wholly owned subsidiary of Socony-Vacuum, which has obtained a 10 per cent interest in Aramco since the 1945 contract was negotiated.

The former lieutenant said that when Aramco raised its price in 1945 from 84 cents to $1.05 a barrel, MacKrille recommended meeting the increase because it had been reported that King Ibn Saud, from whose lands the oil was coming, had raised his royalty from 21 to 42 cents a barrel.

MacKrille said that there was a "misunderstanding" about a memorandum he directed Bodenschatz to write in 1945 saying that Ibn Saud was doubling his royalty.

MacKrille said the memorandum was written after H. G. Denham, former Aramco sales manager, told him that the King might double his royalty and insist on a different exchange rate between gold shillings and American money.

MacKrille Worked for Shell

MacKrille, who has worked for the Shell Oil Co. since 1930, except for his term in the Navy, disclosed under questioning that Denham had visited him in New York last Sunday to discuss the hearings.

Under angry questioning from Chairman Owen Brewster (R., Me.), MacKrille denied that the consultation with Denham, and his attorney, Rowland Stebbins, jr., had affected his testimony.

"I made it clear that anything they might say would not prejudice my testimony in any way," he said.

"That's a pretty tall story," Brewster snapped, adding, "It makes it difficult to lend credence to your testimony."

Brewster then turned to Charles Evans Hughes, jr., who is representing the company at the hearings, and asked if it is "the practice in New York to permit defense attorneys to talk to witnesses in the case."

"You are a very experienced trial lawyer, Senator," Hughes replied. "I'm sure you have talked to witnesses and taken clients to them to see if their information checked with yours."

Moffett's Offer Recalled

Both Navy officers said they knew nothing at the time of the 1945 contract of a previous offer by James A. Moffett, who headed the firm in 1941, to sell the oil to the Navy for only 40 cents a barrel.

The committee is investigating charges that failure to act on the 40 cents a barrel offer and later acceptance of the offer at $1.05 a barrel resulted in a $30,000,000 loss to the government.

Moffett, who was the day's last witness, said that the offer he originally made to the late President Roosevelt to provide Aramco Oil at 40 cents a barrel still stood when he retired from the company in 1943—two years before the $1.05 contract was signed.

3 Labor Cases Thrown Out

a few hours before the deadline, the union submitted a series of objections to the proposed action and requested an oral argument on the matter before the board.

Yesterday, by a unanimous decision, the NLRB told the Steelworkers that their objections were for the most part groundless.

They also denied the request for oral argument.

The law, the board said, precluded any new investigation, or continuance of pending investigations concerning union representation unless the unions were in compliance with the law.

As to a further contention of the Steelworkers, to the effect that the pertinent sections of the law itself were unconstitutional, the NLRB declared it could not pass on the issue.

"Such questions will be left to the courts," the board said, thus virtually inviting the union to make a legal test. "In the absence of any court decision to the contrary, the board assumes that the act as amended does not violate any provision of the constitution of the United States."

Court Appeal Undecided

Lee Pressman, general counsel for the Steelworkers and for the CIO, told the United Press yesterday he had not decided whether to appeal this particular case to the courts.

"But if the board dismisses all of our cases like this," he was quoted as saying, "we certainly will seek a court test."

The case involved a steelworker's request for an election among employes of the Rite-Form Corset Co., Inc., Sharon, Pa. It was the only one of the three on which the NLRB acted yesterday where a detailed opinion was given. The others were dismissed briefly, presumably on the basis of the reasoning given in the first case.

Many more cases, possibly several hundred, will be dismissed on the same basis, an NLRB spokesman indicated, as soon as the board can get to them.

Polio Sufferer Gets New Hope

A 22-year-old Arlington woman, stricken with infantile paralysis only two weeks after her marriage last August, arrived yesterday at Warm Springs, Ga., for what she hopes will be the last step before she is well again.

Mrs. Betty Mae Burchette, 900 N. Quincy st., an iron lung case until only a few weeks ago, was sent to Warm Springs by the Arlington Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The wife of Walter M. Burchette, an Army veteran employed by the H. F. Lane Construction Co., in Arlington, Mrs. Burchette entered Gallinger Hospital September 16 and was placed in an iron lung.

According to her mother, Mrs. Francis C. Allen, 5716 8th st. nw., Arlington, she was totally paralyzed when she entered the hospital.

Responding to treatment, she became able to leave the iron lung periodically a few weeks ago and now has been assured she will not have to return.

Doctors have assured her she can recover completely, but they have not indicated how long she will have to remain at Warm Springs.

Eet's Zat Chevalier

Maurice Seengs At Ze National

By Richard L. Coe

(Reprinted from yesterday's final edition)

AH! QUEL HOMME ce Chevalier! All alone last night heee took ze stage of ze National and he sang and he talk sometimes in Franch, sometimes in Engleesh and everyone was veree happee.

Eet ees ze same Maurice you remember from ze past—a leetle of zis, a leetle of zat, ze eye zat twinkles, ze foot zat taps, ze hat zat seets ev'rywhere on eez haid.

Zat's rahzer ze way you feel after watching the Frenchman put on his one-man evening of songs and impressions. It's pretty remarkable, when you come right down to it, this ability of a 58-year-old man to infuse his personality throughout the spaces of a large theater like E street's National. He simply stands on the stage and sings to the expert accompaniment of Irving Actman's piano.

Of course he does more than sing. He struts. He waddles. He dances. He minces. He makes like a Chinese coolie ("Heez eyes go like zis" says Chevalier, making accent marks with his hands). He smiles at the top gallery and makes faces at flattered ladies in the orchestra.

Some of the songs he sings take you back to the pleasures of your youth: "The March of Menilmontant," "Louise" and "Valentine." Others are newer: Howard Dietz's lyrics for "The Strange Mrs. Brown" and "Place Pigalle" of GI fame. One programmed number, "Le Grand Air de Lakme" to Delibes' music was omitted, which seemed a shame for the idea is promising, but there's variety in his songs and you get over an hour and a half of them.

A Visual Artist

Watching him, too, you realize that for all the cleverness of his voice, Chevalier is essentially a visual artist. Radio doesn't do him justice. He uses his body with unique skill, striking an endless succession of well thought-out poses. He suggests exactly what one finds in the Parisian dancer, Jose Torres; he limns two girls in one song—ze first a beautiful singaire, ze second a dancair—comma ca.

So we have him now, looking healthy red, the voice still fresh considerably younger than his years, the cheeks still that ruddy, and completely controlled and every action strictly disciplined. The years of experience and his innate gifts achieve a rare tour de force.

Inevitably this Frenchman makes one remember his countrywoman, the remarkable Yvette Guilbert, who died only a few years ago. There are differences, to be sure, but at an age considerably older than Chevalier's now she, too, used to do something like this with an audience.

O. K. in the Balconies

During "ze eenterval" we struggled up to the National's two balconies to see how the personality was coming over that far from the stage. Several people we talked to reported he was coming over fine. Three mikes on the stage floor take care of the voice and the personality seems to take care of itself. So if you're a regular balconite, don't get worried on that score.

As for that audience, all Georgetown was there! It was quite the flossiest opening night of the season and the sophisticates nibbled right out of Chevalier's neatly manicured paw.

Yais, eet ees quite an evneeng, M'sieur Chevalier's leeetle show.

LANA TURNER had a toothache, but her posh party friends didn't have an inkling of her sorrows yesterday afternoon at the Mayflower . . . Lana (pronounced LON-a!) is East for the openings of her latest films, "Green Dolphin Street" and "Cass Timberlane" . . . Lana's hair is back to blonde, we didn't hear her mention Tyrone Power and she's got a 13-strand string of pearls which used to be 14 till one broke . . . A fashionable friend (!) pointed out that her black satin dress was shorter than the hemline exhibited by Esther Williams at her appearance here a bit ago . . . As for the tooth, it's murder, but who would take the responsibility for yanking anything from Lana's perfect set? . . . That's the life of a movie star; you get a toothache and the Louis B. Mayer empire trembles.

"THE RAIDERS" goes into the Little tomorrow . . . This is that fine salute to Britain's merchant marine on war duty in the north Atlantic . . . Originally this one was called "Western Approaches." . . . The color is way above average . . . It was written and directed by 26-year-old Pat Jackson, who did that fine documentary, "Target for Tonight."

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe reviews the Little's Technicolor sea adventure, "The Raider."

ANITA LOUISE, one of the stars of "Anthony Adverse," the warner film from Hervey Allen's novel, which returns tomorrow to the Warner screen. The 1936 cast is headed by Fredric March, Olivia de Havilland and Claude Rains

Army Sits on 'Secrets'

By Drew Pearson

Army brass hats are engaged in a little-known, vitally important argument with the Library of Congress over their long practice of hushing up all documents—including records of military blunders.

Thomas

Most people don't know it but even the blunders of the Civil War are still classified in Army files as "secret." And when it comes to the errors of World War I and World War II, Army brass won't even discuss publication of Army blunders.

Senator Kilgore of West Virginia, for instance, has tried to get the Army to let him see its reports on the Battle of the Bulge, most tragic error of the last war which cost 60,000 American casualties. However, the Army says no. Some of the top brass responsible for this error remain in places of responsibility. The Army is putting across a campaign for military conscription under these same officers.

To break this information stranglehold, the Nation's leading libraries have banded together with the Library of Congress and hired a full-time attorney, Walter Greenwood, to work with Government agencies. So far, however, he has failed to jar loose a single document from the State Department, has managed to get only a few token pieces from the Army. Among other things, he wants the Government to throw open any military handbooks or captured enemy documents that might cast light on recent history.

This is also the driving aim of the American Political Science Association, a professional society of history teachers. In desperation, they appealed to the Senate's leading scholar, Elbert Thomas of Utah, who sent a sharp note to the Army.

"We understand that the principal obstacle is the assumed necessity of clearance with the British," wrote the Mormon Senator, referring to the Army's stock excuse. "We seriously raise the question as to whether the enlightenment these documents will make possible should wait too long for clearance. Perhaps someone with the necessary disciplined imagination might go over them and request permission from the British to clear specific items or classes of material."

For answer, Thomas got back empty promises and equivocal excuses.

'Railroading' Of Brentwood Wife Denied

Baltimore, Nov. 4 (AP).—Defendants took the stand today to deny that Mrs. Melissa Rowe, 56, had been "railroaded" to Spring Grove State Hospital for 26 days in 1943.

Mrs. Rowe has filed a $250,000 damage suit in United State District Court here, claiming she was "deprived of her civil rights" when "held virtually incommunicado" at the hospital from March 8, 1943, to April 3, 1943. She said she was committed as a result of a "conspiracy" and was released only "as a result of her strong protestations."

Mrs. Rowe is the wife of Leslie J. Rowe, 3402 Varnum st., Brentwood, Md., for 30 years a Government clerk in the Navy Department, Washington, and now employed at the Woodward & Lothrop department store, Washington.

Judge Reserves Opinion

Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut reserved opinion on a motion by the defense for a directed verdict, while an all-male jury was excused from the courtroom. The trial goes into its third day tomorrow.

The validity of a commitment order sending her to the institution at Catonsville, Md., "for mental disorders" was questioned by defense counsel today. Mrs. Rowe said the order was signed by former Trial Magistrate Walter L. Green, now an attorney at Hyattsville, Md. Judge Green "had a deep personal interest in the unlawful commitment," Mrs. Rowe charged in her complaint, because "Green became infatuated with the daughter of the plaintiff," knew Mrs. Rowe objected to his seeing her and "used his official powers" to "get her out of the way."

Green Denies Charge

Green denied this charge on the stand today before Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut. He and other defendants also denied they had "conspired" to commit Mrs. Rowe.

Defendants who denied charges by Mrs. Rowe also included:

Dr. Silas W. Weltner, superintendent of Spring Grove; Dr. Thomas A. Christensen, of 6905 Baltimore blvd., College Park, Md., who tetsified he issued a certificate of "unsound mind" after examining her March 8, 1943; Dr. John T. Maloney, of 2202 Cheverly ave., Cheverly, Md., who testified he had also issued a certificate finding Mrs. Rowe "needed institutional care" but "was not dangerous," and Maj. Ralph W. Brown, chief of police of Prince Georges County.

Police Chief Brown testified Mrs. Rowe was held at the Hyattsville, Md., police station on a peace warrant brought by her daughter the day Mrs. Rowe was committed.

Strike Threatens Liner's Sailing

Southampton, England, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—The luxury liner Queen Mary was threatened with a sudden strike tonight on the eve of its sailing for New York with 2000 passengers including the Duke and Duchess of Windsor who failed to get invited to Princess Elizabeth's wedding.

Two hundred crew members voted in favor of a strike in sympathy with a wildcat walkout of seamen in London and other British ports.

Ford Outlines Program Here To Regain Top

By S. Oliver Goodman

Ford Motor Co. is coming out with a radically new model sometime in the spring of 1948 in a bid to regain the company's former sales leadership in the automotive field.

This was ascertained yesterday following an all-day meeting of about 1000 regional dealers at the Hotel Statler. The meeting was closed to the press.

One informed local source said the plans for 1948 aim for a Ford "that will be a new car from top to bottom and from stem to stern." The plans are for a "greater change than that from the Model T to Model A."

Addressing the area Ford dealers was Henry Ford 2d, youthful head of the Ford industrial empire, who outlined the company's expansion program and general plans for 1948. Also speaking were Ernest R. Breech, executive vice president; Benson Ford, brother of Henry and a director of the company, and John R. Davis, vice president and director of sales and advertising.

Neither Ford nor his top officials described the planned change in next year's cars, local dealers said.

On November 1 the company notified various State registration commissions that after that date all Fords produced would be 1948 models. The vastly changed models to be introduced next spring will be the 1949 models, it is understood.

At yesterday's meeting Ford, Lincoln and Mercury dealers attended from the Norfolk, Va., and Chester, Pa., districts as well as the Washington area, which embraces the District of Columbia, most of Maryland and parts of Virginia and West Virginia.

MARKETS CLOSED: The New York Stock, Curb and Cotton markets were closed yesterday, election day. Grain and livestock markets, however, remained open. The Washington Stock Exchange also suspended operations yesterday.

RECORD SALES: The magazine Sales Management predicted retail sales and services for November would total $10,750,000,000, an increase of 200 million dollars over the October estimate. The dollar value of retail sales alone, said Hay Prescott, research director for the trade publication, is expected to continue more than 10 per cent above last year with higher prices a major factor in the increase.

Skelley Files Suit To Block Mission, Sunray Merger

Los Angeles, Nov. 4 (AP).—A suit to block the recently announced merger of Mission Corp. into Sunray Oil Corp. was filed today in United States District Court by W. G. Skelley, former president of Mission and of Pacific Western Oil Corp.

The action, against trustees of the Sarah C. Getty trust, J. Paul Getty and Pacific Western, seeks to prevent a meeting of Mission stockholders December 6 for the purpose of approving the merger.

A similar action in Federal Court in Reno, Nev., was scheduled against Mission.

Named as defendants in the Los Angeles suit were Thomas A. J. Dockweiler and George Franklin Getty 2d as trustees, and J. Paul Getty and Pacific Western.

The actions are designed to prevent the Getty interests, who control Pacific Western and through it control Mission, from causing Pacific Western to vote Mission stock owned by Pacific Western in favor of the proposed merger.

In a statement accompanying his announcement of the suits, Skelly said he was acting "to protect the 30,000 stockholders of Mission Corp. whose interest have not been properly considered in this deal."

He charged "the Gettys are endeavoring to impose their will on Mission stockholders for their own personal gain," which he said would amount to more than 79 million dollars in cash.

SEC Insists Utility Amend Reorganization

Philadelphia, Nov. 4 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange Commission disapproved the reorganization plan of the Amreican & Foreign Power Co. today, finding the plan under-compensated public first preferred holders by "about three million dollars."

The commission gave the company until November 14 to amend the plan to provide "for a substantial shift of the allocations from public holders of the second preferred and common stocks to public holders of the first preferred."

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 4 (AP).—Grain futures carried a fairly firm tone during today's trading, largely on reports of lack of sufficient moisture in the winter wheat section.

Wheat ran into selling shortly after the opening, but good commercial demand developed and prices advanced to the day's high, around 4 cents above the previous close, and held the better part of the gain to the finish.

Only light showers were reported where heavy rains are needed in the Southwest. The prospect of good rains by the end of the week failed to halt fairly persistent demand.

At the close wheat was 1¼ to 3¼ higher than the previous finish, December 2.90¾@2.91, Corn was 1¼ to 3 higher, December 2.28½@2.28¾, and oats were 1⅛ to 1⅜, December 1.13½.

Corn futures followed the lead of wheat although some commercial selling was noted on the scale up, believed to be against to-arrive purchases.

Fate Lay in Wait

McCall, Idaho (U.P.).—Jerry Sparkman spent the summer parachuting into inaccessible Idaho forest areas to fight fire. He suffered not a scratch. Then he went to work at a sawmill. Almost immediately he slipped under a saw and cut his leg badly.

Town Curfew Laws Asked on Juveniles

State Parole Officer Roy Bright yesterday told Prince Georges County Commissioners that he intends to call upon mayors and councils of county incorporated towns to institute curfew laws for county children.

At a meeting of the commissioners at Upper Marlboro, Bright said that, failing to get curfew laws passed, he would enforce the Juvenile Court law.

County Commissioner John H. Beall, said that the county itself has no authority to enact ordinances for incorporated towns, but that the towns themselves have that power. He added that the councils were afraid to do it, though, for fear the parents affected would "vote wrong."

Bright said the new juvenile court law authorizes police to pick up young children on the streets and hold them until their parents come for them. Parents in such cases may be charged with contributing to the delinquency of the child, he declared.

Bright said that the juvenile court now handles only two or three cases a week, but that continuation of allowing 10- and 12-year-old children to play on the streets until midnight and later would undoubtedly increase this rate.

Film Inquiry Un-American, Agronsky Says

The House un-American Activities Committee's probe of communism in Hollywood was "un-American to the core," Martin Agronsky, radio commentator, charged yesterday.

No one in his "right mind would object to the exposure of Communists," Agronsky declared, at the second in a series of luncheon meetings on "Citizens' Rights," sponsored by the Washington Commitee, Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

He warned, simultaneously, however, that the "manner of the exposure must not in itself be allowed to become destructive of the American way of life."

Then, turning to home rule proposals for the District, Agronsky expressed the view achievement of home rule is worth "even more of a fight today—with the hope that there exists in this community a sufficiently large and enlightened majority—to make the granting of home rule a benefit."

Dr. Clark Foreman, president of the Southern Conference, urged the audience, at the YWCA, to "prepare for the vote in the District."

He warned that "if we allow people like Newell (Clifford H. Newell, past president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations—editor's note) and his organization to control this city's politics, we will be very little better off than the people in Virginia and the other poll tax States."

Donald Rothenberg, director of community organization for the conference, declared that "another community organization must be built in this city—one whose leaders are color blind." He announced that a campaign would be made to "organize a new Federation of Citizens' Associations."

Rent Chief Held On Bribe Charge At St. Petersburg

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 4 (AP).—United States Commissioner Paul Pinkerton ordered M. J. Thompson, St. Petersburg area rent control director, bound over today to a Federal grand jury after a witness testified he and Thompson worked out a plan to collect a $500 bribe for removing rent controls.

The witness, Paul K. Kershey, said at a hearing that he and Thompson planned to split the bribe for decontrolling rentals on a St. Petersburg apartment house. Hershey was an inspector for the St. Petersburg housing expediter.

Hershey said he was arrested by two FBI agents just after receiving the money from Mrs. Mary Stocker and while preparing to return to his office. The FBI announced at the time the two were arrested that "marked money" had been used in the payoff.

Lee Tully, funnyman and emcee, heads the Fiesta show starting tonight. Other new faces include Vanna and Dail, ballroom steppers, and Singer Mary Elaine . . . Hal McIntyre's Band with its own entertainment group is booked into Fiesta as of November 19.

ALWAYS IRISH are the managers of the Hamilton Hotel. Popular Bill Sheehan is leaving to take over an executive post at the Manger chain headquarters in New York. He'll be succeeded next Monday by Tom Kelly, who comes from New York's Madison Hotel. Manager Sheehan is pretty complacent about returning to Manhattan, although he's enjoyed his years in Washington. For one thing he'll be able to visit the Lambs Club as often as he wishes. Mr. Sheehan has been with the Manger Hotel chain since 1923, has operated many of their hotels and occupied the post of assistant general manager of the organization.

At the Anchor Room

"THAT NAUGHTY LITTLE MIMI"—Meaning Mimi Kellerman at the Balalaika, is as wickedly frisky and seductive as Chevalier's famed "Mimi." The Balalaika's Mimi twangs castanets and impersonates Scheherazade to Rimsky-Korsakop music, uses the "Rumanian Rhapsody" of Anesco as background for a posy selling and flirtation bit wherein she displays an amazing pair of yellow ruffled drawers. In private life Mimi is very different. She and her musician husband recently bought a home in New Rochelle, N. Y., where they're busily raising roses and kiddies (hundreds of the former and two of the latter) . . . Our blood pressure went up 10 points when "Grisha Veo" was introduced as solo violinist. He's our old friend, Harold Veo, former leader in the Mayflower Lounge. Ah there, Grisha V., what a Russky you turned out to be!

Al Shea's Trio, a plenty smart group, will open at the Dubonnet Room next Monday. Al leads from the guitar, Carl Parker is at the organ, Stan Jones sings and plays celesta, accordion and piano.

CAIRO HITS JACKPOT AGAIN. Eleanor Powell had a rugged chore when she opened at Club Cairo right after the stupendous Ted Lewis show. But she's tacking up a success comparable to that of Old Master Lewis. Though Eleanor's no longer a chick, she's at the top of her dancing ability and showmanship. Also she's tactful and ingratiating in her audience approach, reveals a bright sense of comedy in an impression of a line girl showing off for a talent scout. Both the audience and La Powell are in a fine perspiration before her act is over—they from demanding encores, she from generously giving them.

Violinist Durward Bowersox and Pianist Hildreth Harrison open tonight at the Brown Derby. They're both prime Washington favorites, play all the tunes that can be named.

INVOLUNTARY TOM BRENEMAN. Jerry King got gay between chords at the Anchor Room, began making comments about the altitude and decoration of a femme customer's hat. The lady didn't do a thing but slip behind Jerry, plant her preposterous chapeau on his big head where it looked like a peanut with plumage. An alert camera girl snapped this agonizing effect. You'll see it above. (P. S.: Mr. King has sworn off airing his views on millinery.)

IN-GATHERINGS. Community Chest strategy was discussed at a luncheon presided over by Milton S. Kronheim in Olmsted's Carnation Room . . . The Catholic Men's Association held their annual dinner in the Trade Winds Room at Ruby Foo's. Father John J. Dressel of St. Anthony's was present . . . The American Marketing Association and American Business Association held their fall luncheons in the private dining rooms of the Good Earth.

Club Kavakos is swinging briskly to the tunes of Sonny Dunham, who opened there last night . . . Two more major band treats will be offered by Club K. this month—Kay Anthony's Band beginning November 18, and Ted Weems, who'll do a two-night stand, November 24 and 25.

BANDSTANDING. Tony Gaudio, drummer with Bob Simpson's Band at the Old New Orleans, is all set to get married again—if he can only find an apartment . . .

Youngsters of the Junior Police and Citizens Corps serenaded Ella Fitzgerald, now appearing at the Ball. Ella is active in the Foster Parents' Plan, which operates 56 children's projects in Europe.

O'Connor 'Surrenders' in Chandler Feud, Keeps Case Out of Court, Pays $500 Fine

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

LESLIE O'CONNOR has hauled in his horns, even if unwillingly, and major league baseball is at peace again after the short-lived threat to examine the authority of Commissioner A. B. Chandler in the court room.

POVICH

Now it's clear that O'Connor was talking bigger than he had a right to when he declared he'd have the law on Chandler and reiterated flatly that he wouldn't pay the $500 fine levied against the White Sox.

O'Connor learned yesterday that as general manager of the White Sox he's just a hired hand. The club's board of directors didn't see it his way, and made their peace with the commissioner, leaving O'Connor with an empty threat on his hands.

It was, unquestionably, a triumph for Chandler, in the first test of his authority to enforce his own interpretation of a league rule—in this case his decision to enlarge the strict meaning of a rule. O'Connor said the rule forbidding teams to sign players from schools in the National Federation of High Schools didn't cover private school boys. Chandler said it did, and made his interpretation stick.

CHANDLER GOT a break in one respect, however. It was fortunate for him that the man he was opposing was not actually a club owner—only a general manager. O'Connor, as it developed, didn't have the authority to take the case into court. If he had been a team president, he would not have been obliged to back-track.

And so baseball is delivered from the task of defending itself in a court. The club owners prattle that "we have nothing to fear from the courts," but they only wish they could be sure. It's significant that even those club owners with no especial fondness for Chandler tried to persuade O'Connor not to go as far as court room action to restrain the commissioner from carrying out an order.

There was no certainty that a judge would confine himself to merely the matter of the commissioner's authority if the O'Connor complaint ended up in court. There was the possibility that the whole legal structure of baseball might be examined, and that is a point the owners have sought to avoid for many years.

IT MAY HAVE been significant that when American League President Will Harridge urged the White Sox to withdraw their intended court action, he didn't say he thought Chandler had the authority to fine the White Sox. Nor did he judge the White Sox as in the wrong. He said merely "I deem it to be in the best interest of our league and of baseball."

Legal minds have long asserted that baseball is vulnerable any time it goes into court because of its so-called reserve clause that binds a player to a club year after year without any stipulated salary in his contract. If the player doesn't accept the club owner's terms or the decision of the commissioner, he's the victim of a boycott that keeps him out of baseball.

The player contract reads that the player shall be the property of the club in succeeding seasons, but it isn't binding on the club owner, who can release him on 10 days' notice. The gimmick is that "he shall sign at salary terms mutually agreeable to the player and the club, and in the event of failure to agree the club shall set the terms." In other words, the player signs at the club's terms—or else.

The club owners like to point to the last time the legality of their reserve clause was mentioned, when a United States Court upheld it. But that was 26 years ago. The reserve clause has never come up for reexamination since, but judicial thinking has changed considerably and in these days individual rights get better treatment when aligned against property rights.

At any rate, the mantle of the late Judge Landis, which at one time looked askew on the shoulders of Chandler, now is beginning to fit more becomingly. Once again it's Chandler in the Tough Guy role that Landis used to inspire popular confidence in his own regime. Chandler has won his latest battle against his authority in clear-cut fashion.

It's Chandler's second victory of the year. He banished Leo Durocher for the 1947 season in what might have been a severe action, but he made it stick. If he doesn't have the club owners on his side, at least he's got them scared—which is just as effective.

Metro Playoffs Moved Up to Nov. 16

President Andy Farkas of the Metropolitan Football League announced yesterday that the 160-pound and unlimited championship playoff games originally scheduled for November 30 have been moved up to November 16 at Griffith Stadium.

The change was made, Farkas explained, because of a conflict in dates with the annual Gonzaga-St. John's game, which also had been slated for November 30.

Zach Taylor Replaces Ruel As Manager Of Browns

St. Louis, Nov. 4 (AP).—Herold (Muddy) Ruel was dismissed today as manager of the St. Louis Browns and Zach Taylor, former coach for the club, was signed to a one-year contract, William O. Dewitt, Brownie general manager, said.

Ruel's dismissal was made public earlier today by Club President Richard C. Muckerman who said directors of the club will buy up his contract for next year because they were dissatisfied with his work.

Taylor, who served with the Pittsburgh Pirates last year, was acting manager of the Browns for a brief period in 1946 before Ruel took over the job.

Fired at Halfway Point

Ruel, who resigned as assistant to Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler to take over the Brownie post a year ago, became the second consecutive manager to be fired at the halfway point after contracting for a two-year term.

The 51-year-old Ruel, a native of St. Louis, took issue with a statement by Muckerman that although the club finished last this year, the material on hand was sufficient for a first-division team. Ruel declared he was "stunned" by the action, and added:

Defends Own Record

"Mr. Muckerman said he was disappointed in the showing of the club, and disappointed in my work. Well, I couldn't deny that the showing of the club disappointed all of us after we started the season in the cellar and trailed in that position throughout the American League race. I could not agree with the club owner on the second point—my own record."

"I fell heir to a seventh-place team, and I feel certain that the

Skins May Lose Shaughnessy Next Season

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

After three straight losses, the high command of the Washington Redskins gave out with this pronouncement yesterday:

Head Coach Turk Edwards will be back on the job next season;

Clark Shaughnessy, advisory aide, is expected to pitch his tent elsewhere for diagramming plays;

Ki Aldrich, line coach, is a doubtful 1948 returnee.

General Manager Dick McCann, empowered to speak for the chain of command upward, answered questions of snipers:

"Edwards and his staff will continue with the Redskins as long as they wish."

He Qualifies Remarks

But he qualified his remarks to this extent:

Two changes in the '48 setup are likely, but both were contemplated—not by the Redskins but by the parties involved—before the season started.

Shaughnessy may decide to take a full-time job next year, in which case his post will not be filled.

The T-formation expert, McCann said, was hired for one thing—to install his system in the Redskin offense—and after this year his services can be spared if he chooses to take a post elsewhere.

Aldrich combining a coaching and playing berth, started the season with the understanding that it might be his last.

Aldrich Runs Orphanage

Aldrich is superintendent of the Lena M. Pope Orphanage in Fort Worth during the off season. He has repeatedly expressed a desire to spend full time with his 400-odd charges rather than continue a pro playing career past his thirtieth year.

Aldrich very likely will be replaced by another Redskin veteran.

Edwards, End Coach Wayne Millner and Backfield Coach Wilbur Moore are set.

"Edwards has been with the Redskin organization for 16 years," McCann said, "which might indicate our coaching staff isn't picked to last a minute or so. Millner and Moore are old-timers on whom we have depended for a long time."

Carnera, Singh Meet on Mat

Primo Carnera, who once ruled as the world's heavyweight boxing champion, will be the latest to try to beat Nanjo Singh in the feature wrestling bout tonight at Turner's Arena.

Ken Kennett, the Australian champion, will make his debut in a semiwindup against Hans Kampfer. Steve Gob and Ace Freeman will meet Jesse James and Pat Welsh in at two-man scrap, Sheik Abed, the Egyptian, will open the show at 8:45 against Joe Montana.

WDGA Nominates Mrs. Patterson

Mrs. W. F. Patterson, Indian Springs, has been nominated for the 1948 presidency of the Women's District Golfers Association.

A LION SKATES IN—Scotty Mair, star wingman of the Washington Lions, skates aggressively into a play. Mair formerly played with the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League. Against the Hershey Bears in an American League game last night at Uline Arena, Mair contributed one goal as the Lions lost, 8-4

101,671 Will See Notre Dame, USC

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4 (AP).—The Notre Dame-University of Southern California football game December 6 is now officially a sell-out.

Trojan athletic officials today announced that no more odrers will be accepted and indicated some will have to be returned.

Caps Meet Indianapolis

The Indianapolis Kautsky's of the National Professional Basketball League will meet the Washington Capitals tonight at 8:30 p. m. in an exhibition basketball game at Uline Arena.

In an opening contest at 7:15, the Washington Cliftons and Camp Holabird soldiers will compete.

The Kautsky's winner of the 1947 National Pro Invitation championship in Chicago, will be represented by a squad averaging 6 feet 3 inches in height.

Ace of the invading Kautsky's is Arnold Risen, 6-foot 9-inch former All-America center from Ohio State, who dropped 582 points last season.

The Caps who won an exhibition here last week, 74-68, from the Toledo Jerps, will use their regular quintet made up of Bob Feerick, John Mahnken, Johnny Norlander, Fred Scolari and Bones McKinney, but newcomers Jack Tingle, Dick O'Keefe, Irvin Rothenberg and Nick Shaback are expected to see plenty of service.

Lacey Will Fight Washington Again

A chance to avenge a defeat hung on him two months ago will be offered Bee Bee Washington, the Foggy Bottom colored middleweight, next Monday night at Turner's Arena.

Washington has been signed to fight Frank Lacey, hard-hitting Baltimorean, over the 10-round route. Lacey whiped Bee Bee in Baltimore.

Hershey Hangs 8-4 Setback On Ice Lions

The Washington Lions, seriously weakened by injuries and a general case of food poisoning, were no match for the defending champion Hershey Bears, who skated off with an easy 8-4 victory over the home forces before 2283 last night at Uline Arena.

With Defenseman Larry Archambault out with an injured leg and Bob Walton, Red Raney, Walt Babey, Joe Ciuman, Pat Wilson and Don Slater suffering stomach upsets caused by some Buffalo food consumed Sunday, the Bears were not pressed very closely.

Gordie Bruce paced Hershey with three goals, two of them coming in the final period after the game was in the bag.

A four goal Hershey outburst in the second period broke the game wide open after each team had tallied twice in the opening session.

Hy Buller and Herb Cain teamed for the first Hershey goal in the second period flare-up. Buller fired a long shot from 35 feet out and the disc ricocheted off Cain's stick near the goal mouth and slithered past Gordie Bell to put Hershey ahead 3-2.

Within three minutes the Bears upped the score to 5-2 as Roly McLenahan and Buller followed with goals from close in.

Portland Tries

Jack Portland then stopped the Hershey surge as he skated the length of the ice, cut to his left in Hershey territory and fired a fierce shot from 30 feet out. The puck passed Ted Henry in the Hershey net at shoulder height before Henry could move a muscle.

Navy Coach Spots Irish 'Weakness'

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—Navy Coach Tom Hamilton, always a hard man to convince, says he spotted a weakness in the Notre Dame football eleven, which ran over his Middies 27-0 in Cleveland Saturday.

Admitting the Irish have a "devastating passing attack," Coach Hamilton said today "Notre Dame's running game is not dangerous, and there's the weakness. That keeps 'em from being great. "If you stop their passing game, you stop their attack. They didn't hurt us on the ground, but in the air."

Shute, Furgol Tie With 70s

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 4 (AP).—An old campaigner, Denny Shute of Akron, Ohio, and Ed Furgol of Detroit, in his third year as a professional, posted two-under par 70s today to share the first-round lead in the forty-fifth North and South Open golf tournament.

The 71 group included Atlanta Amateur Gene Dahlbender; Jim Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y.; Jack Grout, Harrisburg, Pa.; Al Smith, Winston-Salem, N. C.; George Schoux, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Johnny Weitzel, Reading, Pa.

Washington, D. C. area competitors and their scores today included: Buck Worsham, Mamaroneck, N. Y., 35-38—73; Al Houghton, Landover, Md., 37-38—75; Charley Price, Silver Spring, Md., 39-37—76; Andy Gibson, Baltimore, Md., 37-38—75; and Ralph Beach, Pickesville, Md., 39-38—77. Worsham is a brother of Open Champion Lew Worsham and is well known locally, although he is now playing out of Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Three players posted par 72s to make a total of 11 weighing in with regulation figures or better for the $7500 event. The par shooters were Ed Burke, New Haven, Conn.; Tommy Wright, Knoxville, Tenn.; and Glenn Teal, Jacksonville, Fla., who led yesterday's qualifying play with a 68.

Lawrence Baker Named Leader of U. S. Lawn Tennis

Lawrence A. Baker, of Washington's Chevy Chase Country Club, has been nominated president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, it was announced yesterday. He will be elected formally at the association's annual meeting in New York next January.

Baker has been active in the affairs of the USLTA for 20 years. He has served as secretary, treasurer, vice president of the association and has been a member of the Davis Cup Committee.

Baker's tennis activities include captaining the United States team in Davis Cup play at Wimbledon in 1932 and winning the USLTA Veterans doubles championship with John G. McKay in 1937.

A native of Lowndesville, S. C., Baker attended Sidwell Friends School in Washington and became a residence of Washington after his graduation from Princeton in 1916. He is senior member of the Washington law firm of Baker, Selby & Ravenel.

'Seriously Considered'

Maryland, William & Mary Moving Closer to Bowl Bids

TWO OF THIS area's college football teams were a little nearer to bowl games yesterday.

William and Mary's Indians, beaten only once, are being "seriously considered" for an invitation to the Gator Bowl, Jacksonville, Fla.

Maryland University's Terrapins, also beaten only once, may wind up in a New Year's Day game in Baltimore.

J. B. Darby, chairman of the Gator Bowl committee, said at Jacksonville that "we have received a number of telegrams about the William and Mary team and like the interest that is shown in our game."

William and Mary has some formidable competition for a Gator bid, however. Darby said that Alabama, Vanderbilt, Mississippi State, Virginia, North Carolina, Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas also are under consideration.

"We want a big intersectional game," Darby said. "Something like the Oklahoma-North Carolina game last year, which Oklahoma won, 34-13. We'll extend our invitations in about two weeks."

Over in Baltimore, a bowl game is being steamed up for December in Municipal Stadium with the Variety and Touchdown clubs as sponsors.

Maryland is interested, if a worthy opponent can be scheduled and the Southern Conference gives its approval.

Virginia, undefeated at this time but matched with the big Pennsylvania team in Philadelphia Saturday, is viewed as a desirable opponent for Maryland in the Baltimore bowl.

Harridge Note Asks Chisox to Back Down

By Charles Dunkley

Chicago, Nov. 4 (AP).—The feud that raged for seven days between Leslie M. O'Connor, general manager of the Chicago White Sox, and A. B. Chandler, commissioner of baseball, over the signing of a 17-year-old Chicago high school pitcher, ended today with O'Connor's "surrender."

The $500 fine imposed by Chandler was paid. Subsequently, Chandler lifted his suspension order denying the privileges of the major league rules and representation to the White Sox and O'Connor, whose offer to resign as general manager was refused by the club.

Peace in one of baseball's biggest jurisdictional controversies was negotiated by President Will Harridge of the American League.

Harridge, in a letter to the White Sox, urged the club to back down in its showdown with Chandler, and requested O'Connor, individually, to refrain from taking any legal action against Chandler, which O'Connor had threatened.

Harridge, in a terse 80-word letter to the club: said, in part: ". . . I feel it my duty to inform you that the American League clubs deem it to be in the best interest of our league and of baseball that the Chicago club and Mr. O'Connor individually refrain from taking any legal action in this matter.

"Therefore, we ask and hope that you and Mr. O'Connor, in order to further the best interests of the league and baseball, will pay the fine and take no legal action."

O'Connor, in a letter dated November 4, replied that he would comply with the league's wishes and would have the club directors confirm that agreement. He further advised that the fine had been paid.

"A frank admission of mistakes and error is desirable, I think, in such a situation, so please inform my American League colleagues that I concede I was too obstinate in not acceding, until receipt of your letter, in their view that it is the best interest of the league and of baseball that no league action be taken to secure adjudication and enforcement of our rights."

The controversy started over the action of the White Sox in signing George Zoeterman, pupil of the Chicago Christian High School, a private school, to a 1948 contract.

O'Connor contended that he had violated no rule since the rule as written by the major league executive council and the minor league committee had specifically provided that no student attending a high school which was a member of the National Federation of High School Athletic Associations could be signed. Chandler interpreted the rule to include all high school athletes in the United States and Canada.

The announcement of the settlement of the controversy was made in Harridge's offices, with O'Connor absent, after directors of the White Sox had met previously.

Resignation Not Accepted

O'Connor had submitted his resignation at the meeting of the board of directors, but they refused to accept it, and he was persuaded to continue in the club's services.

The last time a baseball executive sued in the civil courts the commissioner—the late Kenesaw Mountain Landis—lost.

Phil Ball, then owner of the St. Louis Browns, refused to obey the commissioner's orders concerning the transfer of a player to a minor league club. (It was the custom at that time to keep a promising rookie at a low salary on a "farm" club when he might have been offering his services, to his own advantage, in the open market.

Ball took the case to court and won. Whereupon Landis had the rules changed, giving him power to forbid any conduct "detrimental to baseball," which he managed to turn into a very effective weapon against rebellious club owners. This rule was modified when Chandler was selected as Landis' successor.

The American League, which removed O'Connor from baseball's Executive Council at Cleveland last week, named Benjamin F. Fiery, league attorney and Cleveland Indian secretary, to replace the White Sox chieftain when that group meets at Cincinnati Thursday and Friday.

The council is meeting on routine affairs and to shape up the agenda for the December major league conclave.

Irish Gain Favor as Nation's Best

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Notre Dame, hailed today as the No. 1 college football team in the country for the second consecutive week on the basis of returns from the Associated Press poll, faces its stiffest test of the campaign next Saturday when it engages Army's once-beaten but still powerful eleven.

The unbeaten and untied Irish, looking better with each game, were superb in subduing Navy 27-0 last Saturday for their sixth straight victory. As a result, most of the experts hopped on the Irish bandwagon with 106 and 186 voters selecting them as the No. 1 team.

Michigan, dethroned by the Irish last week, clung to second place by virtue of their 14-7 victory over Illinois in a game that kept the Wolverines on the bowl road. The Wolverines, who have scored 249 points in winning six straight, claimed 56 first place votes. Last week they collected 69 first place votes.

Southern Methodist, eighth a week ago, made the biggest climb, vaulting into third place by nosing out Texas, 14-13, in a Southwest thriller. The Mustangs picked up seven votes for first place.

Penn polled eight first place votes but finished fourth behind SMU. Southern California, Georgia Tech and Penn State fifth, sixth and seventh respectively, the same positions they held last week. Strangely enough, the Nittany Lions failed to rise from seventh despite their 46-0 romp over Colgate.

How They Rank:

1	Notre Dame (106)	1731
2	Michigan (36)	1661
3	Southern Methodist (7)	1187
4	Pennsylvania (6)	1138
5	Southern California (2)	1082
6	Georgia Tech (6)	1041
7	Penn State (2)	701
8	Texas	553
9	Army	291
10	Virginia	248

11—Illinois, 177; 12—California, 86; 13—Duke, 71; 14—Purdue, 66; 15—William and Mary, 44; 16—Alabama, 41; 17—Columbia, 27; 18—North Carolina, 18; 19—Wisconsin, 17; 20—Yale, 13.

Others receiving votes were Kansas and Wake Forest, each 7; Minnesota, 6; Missouri, 4; Maryland and Nevada, each 3; Rutgers, Boston College, Texas Christian, Utah and Catawba, each 2; Wesleyan, 1.

Big Air Circus Slated Sunday At Clinton, Md.

With the Redkins out of town, sports fans will be able to attend a new and different thrill-provoking show Sunday.

An all-star air circus, sponsored by the Trinidad Boys Club, will be held at 1:30 p. m. at Hyde Field, near Clinton, Md.

Twelve acts, including delayed parachute jumps, low-level acrobatics, speed flying, smoke writing and a takeoff and landing from a platform atop a moving car are on the program.

Tickets for the air show will be sold at the field for $1, with children accompanied by their parents admitted free.

The club hopes to raise $5000 from the show to meet its $10,000 goal for the year's operating expenses.

Look Around Tired 4th in Pimlico Race

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 4.—Upsets were stock equipment on the Tuesday program here and the parade of big prices went into the $10,000 added Battleship Steeplechase, featuring the card. Brokmeade Stable's Greek Flag, after two poor showings at Laurel, found this course to his liking and won by four lengths.

Larry Watkins' Tourist List was second and a neck in front of T. T. Mott's Floating Isle after the trip of two miles over a soggy oval.

Greek Flag, well handled by Jockey D. Marzani, paid $14.60 as the second longest shot in the field. He was clocked in 4:13 1/5.

Greek Flag had only one horse fronted during the first mile of the contest. Look Around, the favorite, went to the front at the start and drew far out, followed by Floating Isle and Tourist List. Then came Greek Flag and trailing was Elkridge.

Look Around seemed to have the situation well in hand until the twelfth fence. At this point he made a poor landing that dropped him to third position. Tourist List took command and Greek Flag drew out.

Tourist List had to be roused approaching the finish line to stave off the closing of Floating Isle. Look Around was a dog-tired fourth ahead of the dull-running Elkridge.

Sprinters vied in the best flat-race offering of the cloudy afternoon. Bobanet Stable's Glen Heather was the winner, Jockey Ken Scawthorn bringing the 3-year-old from behind to take command.

He had to keep the son of Heliopolis to a drive, however, to stave off a fast close of C. V. Whitney's Bright Song. Favorites were taking beatings with regularity and Mrs. E. H. Augustus' Big Story, the public choice in this test, was third.

Glen Heather paid $8.80 and was clocked in 1:14 4/5.

AT PIMLICO

DEAR FOLKS:

Trainer R. E. Potts of the Bomar Stable revealed today that a lot of folks have been mispronouncing the name of his good colt Piet who is to appear in the Futurity on Saturday. It seems that Piet is not Piet but actually is "Pete." Potts explains that a Frenchman connected with the industry in which C. B. Bohn and P. A. Markey, partners in the Bomar Stable, writes constantly to Markey and addresses him as "Dear Piet," which is the French for Peter, Markey's first name. Bohn noticed this, inquired what it meant and as a joke on Markey told Potts to name the son of Grand Slam and Valdina Lark Piet. Piet has proven his worth by winning the Arlington Futurity, the Richard Johnson and the Spalding Lowe Jenkins Stakes. Humphrey Finney recalls that Neddie Gal, a winner at Pimlico Saturday, was out of the mare Last Light, a name he registered with the jockey club under peculiar circumstances. Last Light was the last foal of Light Brigade, who was bred to her dam on Saturday and died Monday. Not even knowing whether the mare was in foal, Finney registered the name Last Light. The foal was dropped in 1934. See you on the rail. BILL.

Terps Hope to Extend Dukes' Losing Streak

Duquesne Goes Into Saturday Game With 4 Losses in Row

Pittsburgh, Nov. 4.—After a two-week rest, during which some of their injuries have healed, Duquesne University's gridmen will try to end a four-game losing streak Saturday when they play the hot University of Maryland eleven at Forbes Field.

The Dukes, with consecutive losses to San Francisco, Alabama, Mississippi State and Detroit, have little to brag about except that in their first year back in the grid-iron picture since the war they've met top opposition and improved a little with each game.

Against Maryland's record of five wins and one loss, the Dukes throw a mark of two and four, the victories coming in early season games with Geneva and Western Reserve. So far Duquesne has scored only 19 points in six games and in their final outing, a 38-6 loss to Detroit, they ran up a season high of eight first downs.

Virginia Line Good

Charlottesville, Va.—The unbeaten University of Virginia football forces, faced with what may be their bitterest test of the season Saturday against likewise unbeaten Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, found new hope in a survey of their forward wall.

Touted as a team with more backfield aces than ever before, Virginia also boasts a line which has yet to allow a touchdown in six straight wins. Only five touchdowns, as a matter of fact, have been scored against the Cavaliers, who have amassed a fotal of 222 points.

Leading the Cavalier parade of backs are Grover Jones and Bruce Bailey, with rushing averages of 6.5 and 6.2, respectively.

Duke Homecoming

Durham, N. C. — Homecoming Day for Duke University's Blue Devils here Saturday was expected to be highlighted by the team's introduction to Missouri's original split T formation, as taught by Tiger Coach Don Faurot.

With only a 7-0 loss to Georgia Tech marring a 6-game record to date, the Blue Devils will be facing one of the highest scoring teams in the nation. Missouri, after a slow start, has come along at a terrific pace and now leads the Big Sig Congerence race. The Tigers have lost only two games, winning five.

Kickoff Moved Up For Catholic U. Game Saturday

Catholic University's game with Mount St. Mary's Saturday at C. U. Stadium has been moved up to 2 p. m., a half hour earlier than usual, Athletic Director Eddie LaFond announced yesterday.

With school spirit high following last week's victory over Newport News Apprentice School, a pep rally and dance have been scheduled for Friday night in the C. U. gym.

Coach Gene Augusterfer expects the Steve Filipowicz-coached St. Mary's team to use the New York Giants' "A" formation.

"We haven't been able to scout them this season as they play an abbreviated schedule, but I want our boys to be ready for anything," Augusterfer remarked.

"Whitey" Hubert, a speedster from Avon, Ohio, will replace the injured Bucky Ennis in the Cardinal backfield. Hubert has played in every one of the C. U. games to date as a substitute for Ennis, and Augusterfer feels he will perform in good style Saturday.

Gambino Has 2d Highest Rushing Mark

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Lu Gambino of Maryland, who is tied for the Nation's scoring lead with a 66-point total, also has the second highest rushing average in the country.

Gambino has gained 9.18 yards every time he carried the ball, making him second only to Florida's Bobby Forbes, who has a 9.57 average.

Chucking Charlie Conerly of Mississippi already has surpassed the 1946 major college mark for forwrad pass completions.

Conerly completed 12 out of 19 for 121 yards Saturday night as Mississippi beat LSU, and brought his completion total for the year to 81—two more than the 79 with which Travis Tidwell of Auburn led the country last season.

Consequently Conerly leads the Nation for the third straight week in both total offense—combine gains from rushing and passing—and in forward passing offense, figures released tonight by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau disclosed.

Although not being used to prolifically, three of the biggest names in major football rank 1-2-3 in average gain per play.

material was not on hand to improve the Browns' position."

Muckerman, who owns a controlling interest in the club, said the decision to change managers was voted by the club's board of directors. "All of us were disappointed in the showing of the team and Ruel's work," he said.

A veteran of 29 years in the American League, including 18 as a catcher and 10 as a coach, Ruel succeeded Luke Sewell as manager of the Browns. Sewell was relieved shortly before the end of the 1946 season and was paid off on a two-year contract which, like Ruel's had another year to run. The club won its only pennant in 1944, under Sewell.

Terms of Ruel's contract were never made public, but it was said to call for a salary of approximately $25,000 a year.

Jury Expose Of Red Plots Here Hinted

By Jerry Kluttz

EXPOSE: Informed officials hint a report soon may be released on Communist plotting in Federal agencies during and immediately after the war.

Kluttz

They look for it to be written by the New York grand jury which has been studying Communist intrigue in this country for several months. The document, they say, will be along the lines of the Royal Commission report which revealed Communist spy activities in Canada last year.

The officials seem confident the grand jury will issue a detailed report on the testimony it heard if it doesn't have enough evidence to return indictments. And indictments, it seems, are doubtful at this time.

It's reliably reported the jury has heard the testimony of one former Federal employe who confessed to his part in a Communist plot to get secret information from Government agencies. But corroborative evidence is required by the Constitution to convict for treason unless the accused confesses in open court. How much corroborative evidence the grand jury either has or will be given could not be learned.

The case is being presented to the grand jury by the criminal division of the Justice Department.

JUSTICE: The Administration is trying to persuade Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., to become Assistant Attorney General in charge of Justice's civil rights section. The post was offered young FDR by Attorney General Tom C. Clark.

In its report issued last week, the President's Civil Rights Committee recommended that Justice's Civil Rights Section be reorganized and expanded. Young Roosevelt is a member of that committee and Clark wants him to join his department to carry out his committee's suggestions.

APPEAL: Several unions are planning to appeal the wage boosts ordered for Navy's 12,000 per diem employes in the Washington area. They charge the increases are inadequate and are not in line with increased living costs.

The machinists union is one of the groups planning to appeal to the Navy Secretary for a larger increase. Machinists here are to be given wage boosts ranging from 7 to 9 cents an hour. On the West Coast, its leaders say, they got increases up to 17 cents an hour.

PEOPLE: His many friends here will be glad to learn that Edgar Warren, former chief of the Conciliation Service, has landed on both feet. Ed is the new director of the Institute of Industrial Relations at the University of California at Los Angeles. . . . John Tappin of New York is the new assistant to Commerce Undersecretary Foster. He's a former Army colonel. . . . The Army Adjutant General's Office has given exceptional civilian awards to Francis B. Driscoll and A. S. Mangene for their outstanding work during World War II.

PERSONAL: Senator Carl Hatch says he'll definitely run for reelection to the Senate. His decision will stop speculation that he'll resign to take a Cabinet post. . . . Dr. Donald A. Covalt has resigned from Veterans' Administration to join the faculty of New York University's school of medicine. He was chief of VA's physical medicine rehabilitation service. . . . James A. Wechsler of the New York Post has a good piece in this month's Harper's Magazine on the Federal worker loyalty program.

JOBS: Civil Service has announced competitive tests for research psychologists at from $3397 to $4149 to start, and elevator operators, $1690 to $1822. The elevator jobs will be restricted to veterans as long as they are available . . . The Navy has an opening in Guam for a male English instructor. The job pays $3397 plus overseas differential. Call Republic 7400, Branch 2771, for further details.

I & N: The Immigration and Naturalization Service is in the thick of a new drive to get moved back here promptly from Philadelphia. Its problem has been taken direct to the President.

The agency was supposed to start moving back here December 1. But the transfer was delayed until March 1 because of the space and housing shortage. The delay created many problems. About 100 people have resigned in Philadelphia and the agency isn't able to fill their jobs on a short-time basis. Also, leaves of other employes are being canceled. Hence the new battle to get the move under way.

Snyder Conviction Upheld on Appeal

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—Trial of Robert W. Snyder in Montgomery County Circuit Court, which convicted the youth of murdering his foster father and sentenced him to life imprisonment, was upheld today by the Court of Appeals.

Chief Judge Ogle Marbury declared in his written opinion, "We find that the jurisdiction given to the magistrate for juvenile causes in Montgomery County does not extend to children who commit an act which, if committed by an adult, would be a crime punishable by death or life imprisonment."

Attorneys for the boy asked that the case be sent back for trial in the County Juvenile Court.

Transit Line Plans to Add 600 to 700 Employes

Capital Company Hopes to Eliminate Overtime Under Five-Day Week

Plans to recruit "600 to 700" new personnel so that all employes will work a five-day week without overtime were announced yesterday by the Capital Transit Company.

CTC Vive President E. C. Giddings said the company hopes that shorter hours, plus arbitration-granted pay boosts which enable top operating personnel to earn $1.35 per hour, will attract sufficient new workers.

First shift of present employes to the five-day work week basis will take place Nov. 23, he announced. At that time, approximately 1200 workers in construction shops, maintenance of way department, and the "eastern division" which operates between Mount Pleasant and 15 th and E. Capitol sts., will begin the shorter week, he said.

"The remainder of our regular employes will be put on a five-day week just as quickly as we can," he added.

Money formerly paid for overtime thus will be distributed to more workers, he explained. "It will provide jobs for more people." But the cost to the company will be virtually the same, he said.

A company official said CTC would apply to the Maryland Public Service Commission for higher fares "near the end of this week." Apetition for higher fares within the District will be filed with the District Public Utilities Commission at a later date, he said.

Voting Rights May Be Issue In Home Rule

Proposed voting rights for Federal workers under District home rule may become a main issue in the drive to reorganize Washington's government.

In the home-rule setup proposed by the subcommittee of Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), Federal workers in Washington could vote here and hold elected city offices without losing their voting rights in the States where they hav their regular residence.

This idea has been challenged by some top District officials, on the ground that the plan would permit individuals who are exempt from local tax laws to take part in local elections.

Tax Exemption Provided

The present District income tax law exempts the official salaries of Federal employes here who have a legal domicile in one of the states.

A main reason for the Federal employe voting proposal is that it might enlist backing for the general program of home rule from some Congressmen who would otherwise oppose it.

Additional reasons for the proposal were outlined yesterday in a release from the Auchincloss committee. It said:

"In granting suffrage to the District the most difficult problem is to work out a method whereby there is the widest possible opportunity for participation in local government by local residents.

"Dual Residence" Proposed

"A large share of the local population live in Washington because they work for the Federal Government. Many Federal workers, for various reasons, maintain a State domicile for voting purposes.

As long as the District has no representation in Congress, there is no possibility that a vote in a District election and a vote in a State election would allow the same person to vote twice for the same candidate. Therefore, we could see no logical reason why persons in the District could not have dual residence for voting purposes."

Judge Frees G. U. Students With Warning

Municipal Court Judge John P. McMahon yesterday dismissed disorderly charges against two Georgetown University students but cautioned them and others attending school to be careful in the future.

The two foreign service students, Thomas Heather, 24, Kent, England, and Frank D. Meehan, 22, Mexico City, were arrested October 30 by Seventh Precinct police.

They were charged with being noisy and using foul language in front of Jack's Cafe at 34th and M sts. n.w. Judge McMahon said there was insufficient evidence to support a guilty verdict. Five other students testified in their behalf.

Addressing Defense Attorney Claire O. Ducker, sr., Judge McMahon said, "Counsel here has sought to show that this affair was motivated by a grudge between police and Georgetown students. The evidence does not bear this out."

The judge then told the defendants and their witnesses that the fact they were students gave them no right to engage in disorderly conduct.

9 Patrons Freed

Club Barman Arrested in Betting Raid

Police raiders poured through a shattered second-floor door of the Round Table Club, 523 11th st. nw., yesterday in what Lieut. Roy Blick billed as a move to "make those people understand we mean business."

They arrested 10 persons, but charged only one—Douglas I. Duncan, 42, of 922 Queen st., Alexandria, Va.—with permitting gambling. He posted $50 collateral. The other nine were finger-printed, questioned and released.

Blick, without a warrant, but with 11 policemen, said the raid was made on "reasonable grounds that a felony had been committed," and that racing forms, scratch sheets, pads, pencils and a radio were seized. He added no form was found on which a play had been made.

The raiders, Blick said, broke down the door and arrested Duncan, a bartender, as manager of the club. The officer said he had the place under observance "four or five days" but had been "unable to get an undercover man in the club to make a play."

Former Police Are Bound in Whisky Case

Attorney Claims Duress Figured in Accused's Statement

A suspended Metropolitan policeman and a former Washington auxiliary policeman yesterday were ordered bound to the grand jury on housebreaking charges.

They were Pvt. Donald G. Drager, 34, of 1321 Anacostia rd. se., and Horace L. Thomas, 43, of 1005 Congress st. se., charged with taking $142 in cash and 30 bottles of whisky from the Jessie Morgan residence at 2026 Portner pl. nw., on September 7.

Neither man took the stand during the hearing before Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott yesterday, but a statement attributed to them was read by Police Inspector Lloyd Kelly.

Drager was quoted as saying he was sitting in a parked car with Thomas when a man offered to sell them some whisky. He was not in uniform at the time and had been on hick leave, but he pursued the man into the Morgan residence, Drager's statement said. Thomas had stayed in the vestibule of the house.

Charles E. Ford, attorney for the defendants, charged the statement from Drager was "obtained under duress" because he would have been guilty of insubordination had he refused to answer questions of a superior officer.

When questioned by a second defense attorney, David G. MacDonald, Inspector Kelly said no search had been made by authorities after Drager and Thomas were accused.

The prosecution was handled by United States Attorney Warren Wilson.

White Birth Replacement Lowest Here

The metropolitan area of Washington has the lowest white replacement birth rate in the United States, a Census Bureau report disclosed yesterday.

The report, prepared by Population Expert Dr. Warren S. Thompson, director of the Scripps Foundation for Population Research at Miami (Ohio) University, listed Washington as one of 15 metropolitan districts where births have fallen far behind the rate required to maintain present populations.

Washington's replacement index of 52.3 is the lowest among cities of 250,000 or more population.

Other metropolitan areas in which the replacement index has dropped below 70 includes New York, Cleveland, Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis, New Orleans and San Francisco.

The report also points out that 62 million Americans—40 per cent of the population—live in metropolitan areas so vulnerable them could be largely destroyed to atomic attack that any one of by a single A-bomb.

Dr. Thompson's report said the physical structure of American cities, is with few exceptions, "ideal for destruction by A-bombs."

He did not say which cities were "exceptions."

The report said there were 140 metropolitan areas with 100,000 or more inhabitants in 1940, contrasted with only 44 in 1910.

"Any one of these could be largely destroyed by a single A-bomb, as we know," said the report. "And probably not more than half a dozen would be able to function at al lafter six or eight such bombs as that dropped at Hiroshima had fallen on them."

Babies Cared For, Too

Chest Fires Opening Gun Tomorrow

Hundreds to Start Solicitation After Kickoff Luncheon; Chevalier Speaks

Last-minute preparations were under way yesterday for the all-out Community Chest Federation campaign, to begin here tomorrow.

Hundreds of volunteer solicitors will begin house-to-house canvassing shortly after the opening gun in the drive for $3,900,000 is sounded at a 12:30 p. m. luncheon in Hotel Mayflower.

Officials of 125 agencies supported by the Chest as well as leaders in the nine soliciting units will attend the "kick-off" luncheon. Chief speakers will be Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Edward H. Foley, jr., campaign chairman, and the Rev. Dr. Peter Marshall, chaplain of the Senate.

Several campaign units already have begun their drives, including the important Government unit, business units 1 and 11 and the special gifts units.

Campaign workers were spurred onward yesterday by Maurice Chevalier, French actor, who told an Advertising Club luncheon in Hotel Statler:

"I want you to know I'm with you with all my heart in what you are trying to do here." He described America as a strong country, which is interested in helping other nations, but pointed out that "charity begins at home."

Campaign Chariman Foley paid tribute to about 15 members of the club who have been active in Red Feather work. He expressed optimism over trends to date in the campaign.

Peter Van Allen, 16, of the Boys Club of Washington, who won the regional Optimists' Club junior oratorical contest, spoke.

Six Sentenced For Receiving Aid While Employed

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—Six of eight former servicemen accused of receiving jobless pay while employed have been given sentences ranging from a month's imprisonment to two years probation by Judge Sterling Hutcheson in Federal District Court here.

Two of the defendants, Samuel G. Fisher of Lodge and Earl S. Purks of Fredericksburg, were acquitted.

Bernard Alexander Bland and Allen A. Emory, both of Petersburg, were sentenced to one month's imprisonment each. James P. Carlisle, also of Petersburg, was placed on probation for two years and fined $150.

Earl Henry Gray of Ophelia and William G. Meade of Petersburg were given fines of $50 each and placed on probation for two years. Charles Henry Battle of Durham, N. C., was placed on probation for one year.

Grand Jury Asks School Repairs Be Made at Once

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—A demand for immediate repairs to eliminate "hazards of health and life" in the smaller schools of Anne Arundel County came from the grand jury in a report made public today by Judge William J. McWilliams.

The jury was particularly critical of small schools for both white and Negro students in the Third District and lower sections of the county.

"We are aware of the extensive program mapped out for the new construction of school buildings," the jury reported, "yet we cannot understand why these small, yet most necessary repairs, cannot be immediately taken care of for the protection of the children and the teachers."

Bishop Sherrill To Tour South

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—The Right Rev. Henry K. Sherrill, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States, and Mrs. Sherrill will make an eight-day rail tour starting here November 8 and will visit Charleston, S. C.; Atlanta, Savannah, Birmingham, Jacksonville, Tampa, Orlando and Wilmington, N. C.

At each point, with the exception of Tampa, the bishop will hold conferences with local diocesan bishops and other church leaders.

Tobacco Demand Slightly Stronger

A slightly stronger demand was noted yesterday on the Old Belt flue-cured tobacco markets which resumed action again after last week's sales holiday.

An advance of from 50 cents to $3 over bids of last Tuesday was reported in prices. Auctions were interrupted last Tuesday while a plan for Government buying was worked out.

The United States, Virginia and North Carolina departments of agriculture reported the majority of increases were $1 and $2 per hundred over quotations of last Tuesday.

Honeymooners Have Close Call As Sightseeing Cab Hits Steps

1. CAB DRIVER John J. Brennan (right), 40, of 629 4th st. sw., is led away from accident scene by a policeman. Brennan was stricken ill and his cab jumped curb

2. BRIDE AND GROOM, Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Binstok of Brooklyn, N. Y., discovered the taxi, in which they were sightseeing, was out of control. Binstock tried to stop the cab

3. STONE STEPS at 1747 E st. nw. were scattered when struck by the cab. Bill Szanyi, George Washington University student who resides there, surveys the scene

A honeymooning couple from Brooklyn saw stars instead of sights when the taxicab in which they were sightseeing passengers mounted a curb and crashed into concrete steps at 1747 E st. nw. at about 11 a. m. yesterday.

Police said the driver of the sightseeing car, John J. Brennan, 40, of 629 4th st. sw., was taken ill at the wheel. After the accident he was treated at Emergency Hospital for "post epileptic confusion."

The honeymooners were Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Binstok and fast action by the 30-year-old bridegroom was credited by police with saving them from serious injury.

Mrs. Binstok, who is 24, noticed, as they were driving past the Interior Department Building, that the driver was leaning back in his seat. She called this to the attention of her husband. Binstok peered forward and saw that the driver appeared to be flopping around in his seat.

Binstok tried to get into the front seat as the car lurched crazily. He slammed his foot on the brake as the car ran over the curb and into the concrete steps.

Binstok was unhurt but his bride suffered contusions and lacerations of the lower lip. She was treated at Emergency Hospital. The couple had been staying at the Shoreham Hotel.

According to police, Brennan said he didn't remember any details of the accident nor did he remember picking up the Binstoks. He last rembered being parked on 17th st., he said.

Emergency Hospital said Brennan was released after treatment and it was understood he was to go to Bethesda Naval Hospital for further treatment.

Several hours after the accident, according to Martin Rubin of 762 Princeton pl. nw., Brennan again was taken ill in Al's Chicken House, which is located at the 4th st. sw. address where Brennan lives. Rubin said he took Brennan to the Bethesda Naval Hospital, where the latter was refused admission because he was not considered an emergency case.

Lieut. (j. g.) Robert Webster, medical officer at the hospital, said Brennan had previously been treated there for epilepsy, but was denied entrance yesterday because the Veterans' Administration has not yet authorized treatment for him.

Md. Assembly Faces Disputed Issues

60 Bills to Come Before Session Starting Today

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—Legislators will have to dispose of as many as 60 bills at the special session of the General Assembly convening tomorrow at 2 p. m., and many members expressed doubt the agenda could be cleared by Friday as had ben figured previously.

Such controversial matters as the sales tax, the legality of allowing the board of public works to reduce taxes, and whether some of the larger counties should or could be given special taxing privileges along with Baltimore City are sure to bring about floor debate.

Some forecast the session would not adjourn sine die until some indefinite time next week.

The proclaimed purpose of the session is to give Baltimore City special taxing powers so that it may raise the addition seven million dollars needed to balance its budget. The city's present powers to levy special taxes expires at the end of the year.

However, a seven-point administration program of legislation will be recommended to the legislators tomorrow by Governor Lane. The legislative council approved the program yesterday.

Administration bills include those:

To increase the present sales tax exemption base from its present 9 cents, to 14 cents;

Increase the State's allotment to private hospitals for care of indigents;

To give Baltimore City special taxing powers;

Supply $125,000 for airport construction;

Increase public welfare funds;

Amend the State roads bond issue act to allow the roads commission greater latitude in the type of highways it can build with the money from the bonds;

And to revise the construction loan act to permit funds authorized under it to be used in accordance with revised plans.

However, many of the other bills—both State-wide and local—which have been approved by the legislative council, will be introduced with administration approval.

One is a companion measure to the sales tax bill, one which would give the board of public works authority to reduce real estate, income and sales taxes. It drew many questions at the council meeting yesterday as to its legality.

The bill would provide that if on June 30, 1948 the State general fund surplus exceeds a three million dollar "safety working margin," the board could reduce real estate or income taxes or raise the sales tax exemption level.

The measure to up the sales tax exemption to 14 cents contains clauses to redefine retail sales to cover any quantity of sales and to exempt food only if it is to be consumed in the home of residence instead of "off premises."

The council gave approval also to a proposal for a 15-man committee which would draft plans for a new two million dollar legislative office building in Annapolis and study the question of restoring the State House to its original lines.

Both parties will caucus tomorrow before the Legislature convenes.

The First General Assembly business will be to elect new officers and adopt rules, but this will be a mere formality, as the officers chosen for the regular 1947 session are sure to retain their posts.

The State Senate president is Joseph R. Byrnes (D., Balti. 5th) and Ferdinand Sybert (D., Howard) is speaker of the House of Delegates.

Mrs. Goldsborough

Judge's Wife Home After Auto Crash

Mrs. Laura Goldsborough, 1028 Connecticut ave. nw., injured in an auto accident near Frederick, Md., Monday, was returned to her home here yesterday.

Mrs. Goldsborough, wife of District Court Justice T. Alan Goldsborough, suffered painful head cuts when the car in which she was riding left the road and struck an iron fence around the Monocacy Battlefield memorial.

The car was driven by a court messenger, Willis Thomas, 50, of 1115 8th st. ne., who is assigned to Justice Goldsborough. He was driving her to Berkeley Springs, W. Va.

Elmore Whitehurst, assistant director of the United States Courts' administration office, said court messengers are not subject to leave regulations applicable to other Government employes and days off are granted at the discretion of the judge to whom they are assigned.

Justice Goldsborough told a Washington Post reporter who had asked if some of a messenger's duties included driving on out-of-town trips:

"I have only this to say to you, meaning no disrespect to yourself or The Washington Post. There was nothing that violated the spirit and letter of the law and if you find out anything wrong, tell me and it won't happen again."

Aged Pastor's Death Is Held Accidental

The death of the Rev. William A. Rutherford, 82, of 4404 Fessenden st. nw., fatally injured when struck by a Navy bus last Saturday, was ruled accidental due to his own negligence by a coroner's jury yesterday.

The bus driver, Bishop W. Melvin, jr., 29, of 637-A Orleans pl. ne., was exonerated by the jury's verdict. Rutherford died at Georgetown Hospital shortly after he stepped from a street car loading platform into the path of the bus in the 4200 block of Wisconsin ave. nw.

Funeral services will be held today at 11 a. m. at the Gasch funeral home in Hyattsville, Md. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery, Bladensburg, Md.

Cox Furthers Settlement of Armory Row

A hint of peace appeared yesterday in the battle between National Guard officials and the Commissioners over control of non-military affairs in the armory.

Commissioner John Russell Young expressed favorable reaction to Guard Commander Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox's proposal for a joint, three-member special commission to handle non-military use of the building.

"It sounds good to me," said Young. "It could easily be included in our armory bill."

The Commissioners and General Cox came into grips over the Commissioners' demand for funds collected for private use of the armory. Cox refused, declaring an act of Congress would be necessary to make him relinquish non-military control and hand over funds to the District.

The general does not hold with the Armory control bill which the Commissioners sent to Capitol Hill, but said he "might accept" it with certain changes.

The proposed Armory control measure was introduced on the final day of the last session of Congress and is on the agenda for the special session convening November 17, Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester Gray said.

General Cox said yesterday he is now studying the situation and will "either write a new bill acceptable to the Guard" or prepare "suggestions for possible amendment" to the Commissioner's bill.

Under Cox's plan the three-member special commission would be composed of one representative of the Guard, one from the Commissioners and one from the Board of Trade.

This is the proposal which "sounds good" to Young, and which Cox said he would "welcome."

Public Aid Asked In Probe of Md. Veterans Board

A committee appointed by Governor Lane to investigate the Maryland Veterans Commission yesterday appealed to the general public to bring "provable" complaints against the commission to its attention.

The appeal was made by Chairman Alex K. Hancock, Montgomery County comptroller.

In Baltimore, the committee released an audit report containing criticisms of the accounting practices used by the veterans' agency and its lack of rules governing relief funds disbursements.

The accounting irregularities charged by the committee included alleged failure of the agency to keep an adequate general accounting ledger, to take cash discounts available to it, and to obtain proper receipts for supplies and traveling expenses.

The report also asserted the commission had paid Federal excise taxes from which the State is exempt and had failed to record payments to veterans on proper record sheets at the time of payments.

Drinking Ruled Out As Divorce Cause

Excessive drinking is not grounds for divorce unless it is accompanied by misconduct, the Maryland Court of Appeals at Annapolis ruled yesterday.

Judge William L. Henderson handed down this opinion in voiding a partial divorce, obtained by Albert E. Brault, 40, Chevy Chase attorney, from his wife, Mrs. Margaret H. Brault, 39, on grounds of constructive desertion.

The decree had been granted by the Montgomery County Court last year, at which time Brault accused his wife of excessive drinking, which he said made her "quarrelsome and profane."

"Nothing is better settled, under the law of this State, than the principle that 'mere drinking, even excessive drinking, is not a cause for divorce until it is necessary for the injured party to leave,'" Judge Henderson's opinion declared.

The partial divorce decree of last year had given the husband custody of their three children. The Appeals Court yesterday remanded the case to Montgomery County with the directive that custody of the children be entrusted to Mrs. Brault with provision for the father to visit them.

Snyder, after a clerk in a shoe store at 411 8th st. se. reported a man had passed a bad check next door in a hardware store at 413 8th st. se., sometime previously was trying it again, but this time at the shoe store. The arrest was made outside the store.

"I will be happy just to find a ship," O'Conor declared.

Probers Given Police Issue At Greenbelt

The controversy in Greenbelt, Md., resulting from suspension of two policemen has been handed over for study to the town's investigation committee, appointed several weeks ago to go into all phases of municipal administration.

The committee was asked to study the case at a meeting of the Greenbelt Town Council Monday night, at which the policemen and spectators demanded reasons for the suspension.

Mayor Thomas J. Canning at first declined to reveal the reasons for the suspension last July of the two policemen, John E. Belton and Robert C. Dodge.

However, when the policemen insisted, the mayor told council the charges are "drinking liquor while on duty and in full uniform" at a private party in Greenbelt.

Belton and Dodge said they had taken one highball each, because they had worked "excessively long hours that day."

The investigation committee consists of Bernard Bordenet, Wesley C. Darling, Joseph Fitzmaurice, Milton P. William and the five council members.

Mayor Canning named as a committee to study proposals for a National Guard unit in Greenbelt Curtis J. Barker, Charles M. Cormack, Edward C. Kaighn, Frank J. Lastner and Dr. James W. McCarl.

WBAL Aide Stresses Quality In Plea for License Renewal

By The Associated Press

Dr. David Weglein, former Baltimore school superintendent, yesterday told the Federal Communications Commission that in judging public service programs of a radio station the "emphasis should be on quality—not quantity."

Weglein, now public service counselor for Station WBAL, Baltimore, testified at the commission's hearing on conflicting applications involving the station.

Hearst Radio, Inc., operator of WBAL, wants a license renewal. Public Service Radio, headed by Drew Pearson and Robert F. Allen, wants a new station on the WBAL wave length.

Weglein said he had heard considerable discussion at previous sessions as to "hours and minutes devoted to public service radio programs."

"The criterion should be quality, not quantity," he said. "The big thing is the benefit to the community—I am not so interested in minutes and seconds."

Earlier, Paul Peter, radio consultant and WBAL witness, said that his program analysis for the station showed that WBAL devoted 36.8 per cent of its program time to public service programs. This, Peter said, was in addition to 146 public service announcements weekly.

Montgomery Firemen Favor Paid Marshal to Enforce Code

Montgomery County volunteer firemen favor a paid fire marshal to enforce a proposed new county fire code, President Spencer J. H. Brown of the Volunteer Firemen's Association said yesterday.

Brown denied reports the volunteer firemen were "split" over the issue at a meeting of the county commissioners in Rockville.

He said the firemen favored an "outsider" to make fire inspections since volunteers would be hesitant to order their neighbors to conform to code provisions.

The proposed code is now being drafted, and Albert E. Conradis, public utilities agent, told the commissioners considerable progress has been made.

The commissioners accepted the resignation of Edwin W. Moore, a former police officer stationed at Silver Spring, who has been on sick leave wouthout pay and took emergency action to relieve the plight of two Poolesville, Md., farmers unable to harvest almost 2000 tons of corn due to bad roads. The board, in this action, ordered stone dumped on dirt roads of N. N. Zemo and J. H. Symington, whose farms are on Old River rd.

A public hearing for sime 40 Bradley Village property owners who reportedly did not receive assessment notification in time to object at recent hearings was set for next Tuesday at 2 p. m.

Charles F. Wilson

Nearly 1000 persons yesterday attended funeral services for Charles F. Wilson, chancellor of the Washington Episcopal Diocese.

The rites were held at Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G st. nw., of which Mr. Wilson was senior warden many years and where he was baptized over 60 years ago. He died last Saturday. A major in the quartermaster corps in World War I, he was buried in Arlington Cemetery. He was a prominent attorney and a third-generation native of the District.

Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, rector of Epiphany Church, conducted the services at the church and the brief rites at the grave.

Austrian Party Is Courtesy For Red Cross

THE FIRST PARTY at the new Austrian Legation residence was given yesterday between 6 and 8 o'clock for officials of the American Red Cross. The Minister and Mme. Kleinwaechter took the occasion to show Austria's appreciation for Red Cross aid during the war. Around 90 guests were invited.

Mme. Kleinwaechter, typically Viennese with her fresh, clear coloring and china blue eyes, received in a smartly cut black dress. Her daughter, Gunda, who is a student at Mount Vernon College, was on hand to assist in greeting the guests. Another daughter, Ebba, is away at school in New Haven, Conn.

Red, white and red carnations, colors of Austria, centered a buffet of tempting canapes and sweets, and red and white flowers were placed around the drawing room.

Mrs. M. Duffek, a representative of the Austrian Red Cross, who is over here at the invitation of the American Red Cross, attended the party.

His Tastes Simple

'Gil' Winant Had No Liking For 'Front'

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

IN NEW YORK, scarcely a month ago, when John Gilbert Winant, our former Ambassador to Great Britain, spoke at the Herald Tribune Forum, friends were distressed at his physical condition. He mumbled, shook as if chilled, twitched papers, appeared unpressed, unkempt. But no one imagined Gil would commit suicide.

Superficially, Gil Winant was enigmatical; actually he was simple, passionately devoted to his country's welfare, an almost fanatic underdog champion.

Born of a well-to-do New York family, he felt less at ease with his social contemporaries than with those in humbler walks of life. Part of his consciously Lincolnesque attitude came from a sincere desire to be one of the people. He didn't bother about dress, preferred to wait on himself, and, early in his political career deliberately switched names from the familiar-sounding "Gil" to the plainer "John."

Luck-and Fortune

A MASTER at St. Paul's School in New Hampshire after World War I, he remained closer to his former students, his aviation squadron buddies, than anyone else. In fact, he made his modest fortune quite accidentally, simply by lending a fellow officer money for an oil venture. Later, as Governor of New Hampshire during the depression, the same quixotic impulse to help hard-luck cases almost proved his undoing. Borrowing money from friends to put in depression-shaky businesses, he found himself financially embarrassed when some of these projects failed.

He was a wonderful listener, had no small talk, was sufficiently tolerant to prefer someone he disagreed with intellectually to anyone who merely "yessed" him. His sole character uncertainty was playing an idea to the hilt if he believed it right, even though he had to break with old friends.

Gil rated his first job under President Roosevelt one of his most important. He settled a Southern textile strike, but before accepting the job made a thorough survey of the industry. Calling on a young friend in the business, he mumbled his name to a secretary but omitted his title (Governor of New Hampshire) and uncomplainingly waited half an hour in the outer office.

Proudest Moment

ON TRIPS home while he was wartime Ambassador to Britain, he stayed at the Hotel Roosevelt in an untidy suite cluttered with papers, dogs, friends and people seeking handouts. He answered telephones, doorbells himself, even paid his Racquet and Century Club bills personally, and in cash.

A few months ago, Gil Winant confided to friends what he considered the proudest moment of his diplomatic career. A wartime miners' strike threatened England. Churchill's confidence in the American Ambassador was such that he asked him to go to the mining district, talk to the miners. Gil did, and the strike was prevented.

Independently wealthy, Mrs. Winant is equally unostentatious. Her hobby is raising show dogs. When her husband was Chief Executive of New Hampshire, friends and passersby were amazed to see a sign in the window of the Governor's mansion. It read: "Puppies for Sale."

Tomes for Teen-Agers

LATELY we've happened on a brace of ladies who've authored books for children. Now we've come across a man who's written 10 successful tomes for 'teen-agers. He's Robb White, a Navy lieutenant commander, and his latest is "Secret Sea," choice of the Juvenile Library Guild for December.

A masculine gent, we asked him how he got started. It was easy, so he says. The lieutenant commander penned a novel, sent it to a publisher, who turned it down, suggesting he try his hand at a kids' book. He did.

This seemed too simple so we asked his writing technique. In "Secret Sea," he took a boy and girl (on paper), put them in a boat at sea—then figured out step by step what might happen to them. It was so good that the whole job was condensed for the radio, too.

Daytimes Lieutenant Commander White writes for the naval recruiting publication, reports that in September the Navy was only 23 men short of achieving its monthly quota of 15,000 recruits. Outside Doubleday, Doran and Navy creating, he's spent time moving a 100-year-old house from one plantation to another in Thomasville, Ga.

Wm. S. Hill, Jr., Marries Miss Willett

WHITE chrysanthemums and Australian fern decorated St. Thomas' Episcopal Church yesterday for the candlelight ceremony which united Miss Lillian Hathaway Willett and William Sasscer Hill, jr. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jean Willett of Washington, and her husband is the son of Mrs. William Sasscer Hill and the late Mr. Hill of Pleasant Hills, Upper Marlboro, Md.

The Rev. W. Curtis Draper, jr., rector of Upper Marlboro Episcopal Church, officiated, and a reception followed at the Shoreham Hotel in the West Ballroom. A buffet was centered with white chrysanthemums, white baby pompoms and white snapdragons, and music for dancing was furnished by Barnee.

Escorted and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported French brocade, fashioned with fitted bodice, full skirt and long train. Her veil of French illusion, edged in rose-point lace, fell from a coronet of lace, which came from her great-grandmother's trousseau. She wore a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom, and her flowers were a bouquet of calla lilies.

Man, 23, Treats His Bride as If She Were Some Supreme Goddess Whose Every Whim He Must Gratify; His Family Is Up in Arms

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My brother, 23, is married to a very attractive girl about his own age. We all thought it an ideal match, but in less than a year of marriage he has become a slave to a petulant, domineering, possessive little tyrant.

He seems no longer to have a mind of his own. He seems to have lost whatever spunk he ever had. He agrees to anything she says; lets her have her way in everything and meekly accepts all the abuse she metes out to him. He acts as if she were some supreme goddess whose every whim he must gratify.

She doesn't do a bit of housework; just lounges around telling him what to do—including all the cooking, washing and ironing, although he has a job of his own. She comes and goes as she pleases; but expects him to stay home all the time—when off duty—and do the housework.

Thinks She Robs Him of Manhood

SHE takes all his pay to spend mostly on herself, and gives him such a tiny allowance that he has to come back to her for cigarette money. Yet it is obvious that he worships her and thinks she is perfect. His every gesture and mannerism towards her amounts to groveling.

He seems quite willing to let her wipe her feet on him; and we, his family, are very upset and miserable to see him so degraded. But there seems to be nothing we can do, indirectly, to make him realize the cross that she is forcing on him.

Should we try to interfere, by pointing out that she is robbing him of his manhood, treating him like a doormat? Or should we let things alone and hope for the best? We are very concerned.

J. C.

Family Protests Aren't in Order

DEAR J. C.: Taking the story at face value, possibly this is a real-life illustration of the theme discussed in Somerset Maugham's greatest novel, "Of Human Bondage."

Maugham wrote of an ingenuous idealistic young man who was completely bewitched—also perennially exploited and humiliated—by a worthless young woman from the time they met until she died. Only then was he emotionally free to find a true helpmeet.

If such is the case with your brother, indignant protests from family, or other forms of unsolicited interference, won't change his slavish attitude towards his supremely selfish, heartless bride. The passage of time, plus enough punishment from her, may bring him to his senses. Nothing else will.

If Story's True Don't Show Dismay

MEANWHILE, the best one can do to bolster his self-esteem is to pretend not to notice his groveling subjugation to her, and to give him steady, good measure of respect, affection and noncritical interest. This should act as a partial antidote to her abuse of his spirit,—if, indeed, the situation is as you say.

However, I wonder—is it? Your letter is so tensely charged with hysterical detestation of your sister-in-law that I suspect a strictly feminine feud of sorts is at the root of it. Also, your bitter impatience with your brother's behavior suggests that you feel he is letting somebody else down in being her worshipful courtier.

Maybe your family is jealously possessive of its own, with heads together and hatchets in hand, now that this girl assumes "divine right" to completely absorb your brother's time, attention and devotion. Maybe it's not so much concern for him as it is a sense of personal outrage that has you all worked up. In any event, the civilized policy is to let things alone—as you say—and hope for the best.

M. H.

TOMORROW: Woman has three lovely children whom she adores, but by spells she delights in punishing them and hates herself for it.

Royal Fashions

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP).—The Duchess of Gloucester and her entourage will be dressed in muted shades of chiffon tweed at the wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, it was disclosed today by Peter Russell, London designer who made the gowns.

"I have used three colors, all in the same light-weight tweed," said Mr. Russell. "The duchess will wear a shade I call 'phantom red,' which is a brown tone with a red tinge. The other gowns, to be worn by her attendants, are in 'phantom lilac,' a pale lilac with a gray tinge, and 'phantom brown,' which is a sort of pale sable."

All the dresses are calf-length, said Mr. Russell, explaining: "British women are willing to wear their day clothes calf-length, but no longer. After all, no one but a fool would wear an ankle-length dress on the street in these days."

Excitement over fashions for the royal wedding is running high in London, said Mr. Russell, though the commoners are deeply disappointed at the decision to have no public celebrations.

Round of Parties Given for City's Popular Visitors

By Marie McNair

PARTIES start poppin' when such popular people as the former Netherlands Ambassador and Mme. Loudon, and bon vivant Arthur Bradley Campbell come to town.

The Loudons, here from Nonquitt, Mass., where they spent the summer, are visiting their summer neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Brooke. They'll sail the middle of the month for The Hague where Alex Loudon has been appointed to the Council of State.

Mme. Loudon

Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, our former Ambassador to the Netherlands, and Mrs. Hornbeck gave a cocktail party for Dr. and Mme. Loudon on Monday and yesterday vacation days were hashed over by a small group of Nonquitt's summer colony, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Brooke for cocktails.

Clarence Hewes will start off festivities for Athur Bradley Campbell, who'll arrive today from Hot Springs to be his guest for a week. Mr. Hewes will entertain at dinner tomorrow evening and will give a luncheon for his guest on Friday. That evening Mrs. McCeney Werlich will entertain at dinner for Mr. Campbell, who has known her since her debutante days in Washington.

Arthur Bradley, as he's known to his friends, grew away from Washington when his mother, the late Marchioness of Huntly, married the titled Scot. For a number of years he lived in England and frequented the Riviera resorts.

Now, with no ties to bind him to the other side, he makes the circuit—New York, Palm Beach and Newport, and an annual visit to Washington. He'll be off for Palm Beach next Wednesday.

THE most "elegante" audience at the National Theater this season was the first night of Maurice Chevalier's one-man show on Monday.

The most "elegante" lady was Mrs. Burrall Hoffman in rustling black silk with a rare chinchilla wrap about her shoulders. In contrast were the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Clinton Anderson, who didn't take time to "dress."

Justice Frank Murphy followed his frequent custom of coming in late and taking a seat far in the back of the theater. Other notables there were Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip; red-bearded Capt. Charlie Evans, Assistant Naval Attache of the British Embassy, and Mrs. Evans; George Marshall and his wife, the former Corinne Griffith, blond and lovely and swathed in ermine; the Commercial Counselor of the Panama Embassy and Senora de Huertematte and the Secretary of the Spanish Embassy and Senora de Sanz-Briz.

DATE-BOOK DATA: Miss Carolyn Nash will entertain at dinner Sunday evening at the Chevy Chase Club.

Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim have invitations out for a dinner Saturday evening at Firenze House, their home on Broad Branch rd.

Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Holdrege will be entertaining at the cocktail hour on Monday, November 10, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bell Sweeney's luncheon will be on Sunday.

On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Van H. Engert have planned a cocktail party, and Mrs. Robert E. Lee 3d will be hostess to a small company at luncheon on Tuesday, November 11.

Gallinger Hospital Has 'Thank You' Services

By Genevieve Reynolds

Approximately 1000 women who have put in long, useful hours as volunteers at Gallinger Municipal Hospital received a word of praise along with a handshake from the First Lady. Occasion was a tea and special award ceremonies observing "first volunteer day" at Gallinger yesterday.

Preceding the tea, Mrs. J. L. G. Parsons, director of volunteers, presented recognition cards to various groups for hospital service during the past year. Mrs. Wallace Streeter, chairman of hospital services for the Washington Council of Church Women, accepted the award for her group; Mrs. Robert L. Hill represented the Red Cross Gray Ladies and Mrs. Lucy Wood the Nurses' Aides. Mrs. William G. Starnes received the award for the staff assistants and Mrs. Florence Creamer accepted for Girl Scouts of America.

Awards Are Given

The Washington volunteer office's award was received by Mrs. Charles B. Morris while Mrs. Dana Parkinson was presented the individual volunteer card.

Mrs. Prentiss Willson, chairman of the advisory committee to the volunteer department, who long has been the motivating force and spirit behind the volunteers, presided at the award exercises held in the medical auditorium. In a brief talk, she traced the history of the volunteer service which she helped to organize about 20 years ago. She pointed out that Gallinger was the first civilian hospital to utilize volunteers.

Appreciation to the volunteers was voiced by Dr. Alvin Sweeney, superintendent of the hospital. He told how they had bridged the gap of professional staff members, who are too few for the needs of the hospital.

Superintendent Speaks

Miss Beatrice Ritter, superintendent of nurses, spoke on the need for more volunteers to serve as nurses aides, staff assistants, in the office or visitors bureau as well ac registration desk.

Between the tea hour and the program graduate nurses conducted groups of volunteers on a tour of the hospital.

Mrs. Truman, who was honor guest at the tea held in the nurses residence, wore a perky blue feather hat with a becoming two piece black suit. Her corsage was one giant yellow chrystanthemum. Receiving with her were Mrs. Willson, Miss Ritter, Mrs. Theodore Wedel of the Washington Council of Church Women, District Commissioner Guy Mason and several members of the hospital staff.

It is now under direction of the Rev. Joseph E. Gedra, pastor of Immaculate Conception Church. The annual card party and dance is one of the chief sources of support for the radio hour.

Your Questions On Homemaking

Can you offer a good recipe or perhaps two for using lentils? I understand they are rich in vitamins and are an economical dish. I have heard of their being used with chopped meat as a meat loaf. How long must they be cooked, and should they be soaked before cooking? M. P.

Lentils should be soaked about 12 hours before cooking. They should then be simmered, covered, with about twice as much water as lentils for around 2 hours, or until tender. Seasoning added to the cooking water gives them more flavor. A slice of salt pork or corned beef, bay leaf, chopped onion, parsley or celery leaves—any or all of these can be used in cooking lentils.

Lentils may be substituted for dried beans or dried peas in almost any recipe. I haven't one for a lentil loaf made with ground meat, but here is a recipe for Baked Lentils in which sausages are featured.

1 medium-sized onion, chopped
3 tablespoons chopped celery
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ clove garlic
18 small sausages

Soak lentils over night and cook in large amount of water about two hours, adding celery, onions, salt and pepper to water. Drain. Rub casserole with garlic and grease lightly. Turn lentils into casserole, arrange sausage over top and place under broiler until sausages are browned and cooked through. Serve at once with brown bread. This will serve six.

Here's another lentil recipe, for a curry:

Boil 1 pound of red lentils in the usual way. Force through a sieve. Saute 4 sliced large onions in ½ cup bacon drippings about 5 minutes, or until lightly browned. Remove from fat. Mix 4 tablespoons curry powder in 2 tablespoons cold water and add to fat. Then add lentils and heat thoroughly. Serve over boiled rice, and top with onions. This recipe serve eight.

I would like to give an informal buffet supper for about 15 persons on my husband's birthday. Could you suggest a suitable menu? It really should be substantial, for most of the guests are working folks and have their main meal at night. L. R. L.

A chow mein casserole, made with veal, chicken, or chuck roast, would be good for the main dish at your buffet supper. To accompany it, you might have cinnamon apples and broccoli, or some other green vegetable. Pumpkin pie with whipped cream is an appetizing and filling dessert which would probably be appreciated, especially by the men at the party.

The recipe for chow mein casserole follows:

2 cups diced celery
2 cups diced onions
2 cups cream of mushroom soup
2 packages toasted noodles (about 4 cups)
¼ cup buttered almonds

Simmer meat until tender in enough lightly salted water to cover; then remove meat from water and cut in small pieces. Add celery and onions to the meat stock and let them cook until tender. Return meat to stock and add soup and noodles. Mix well together, and pour into large buttered casserole. Top with almonds, which have been browned in butter. Bake for about 30 minutes in moderate oven.

Thursday's Peace Plate

In line with the recommendation of the Citizens Food Committee to use variety meats instead of the more-expensive cuts, tomorrow's Peace Plate offers a delicious way to use sweetbreads.

Suggested to round out the meal are Vegetable Harlequin (mixed cooked vegetables) and bread-and-butter pickles, with warm Apple Pandowdy for dessert, or one of your apple favorites.

CREAMED SWEETBREADS ON CEREAL FLAKES

2 pairs of sweetbreads
4 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
3 tablespoons flour
Dash of pepper
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk

Let sweetbreads stand in ice water 20 minutes. Drain, plunge into 2 quarts boiling water to which 2 tablespoons vinegar and 2 teaspoons of salt have been added. Simmer covered for 30 minutes. Lift out, and plunge again into ice water. Drain, separate sweetbreads, and carefully remove fat and thick connecting tissues. Then remove fine membrane and dry. Split sweetbreads in halves lengthwise if they are very thick.

Break into pieces the cooked sweetbreads, add to sauce; heat thoroughly and serve on crisp cereal flakes, or on toast to use up your leftover bread. Serves 4.

Calories Must Be Reduced To Lose Weight

By Ida Jean Kain

One man's calories are another man's "corporation front"! And the $64 question is: Why do short, stout people gain poundage on the same amount of food taller people can take in their stride? It's this way . . .

I'll go scientific on you for just a paragraph . . . Fatty tissue doesn't burn calories. It takes little or no part in the activity of the body cells. It's "dead weight." So the more of your weight that is in fatty tissue, the less food (calories) you can eat without gaining. It's active tissue that burns calories, and active tissue is based on surface area versus weight. With a taller, slimmer man or woman, more of their weight is in active tissue and less in fatty tissue. Consequently they require more food. All of this is a bit technical. Here it is in figures:

Take two men, one short and hefty—5 feet 4 inches, weighing 170 pounds; the other 5 feet 11 inches, weighing 170 pounds. Our 5-foot 4-inch chap is toting 25 pounds in fatty tissue. So he needs calories to cover only 145 pounds. But the 5-foot 11-inch man weighing 170 pounds is normal weight and requires calories for all 170 pounds.

Doing sedentary work, both men will use 16 calories per pound of normal body weight. Thus the tall man will use 2720 calories per day and the short man 2330 calories. But our short, stout chap loves to eat and feels his size entitles him to as much food as the next fellow. What happens? He gains three pounds a month! It takes only 4000 excess calories to put on a pound. They add up fast.

Now the big question is how to lose the 25 extra pounds, or whatever your excess may be. Turn them back into energy by subtracting 1000 calories a day from normal requirements, and draw on the stored fat for the deficit.

Fourteen hundred to 1500 calories a day are about as low as I like to set the reducing calories for men. On this number our short, stout chap can lose one and one-half pounds a week. The average man and woman can easily lose one and three-quarter pounds to two pounds a week, which is fast enough.

China to Get 27 Million in Relief Goods

China will be given $27,700,000 worth of grain and medical supplies under the 332-million-dollar foreign relief program voted by Congress at its last session, the State Department announced yesterday.

The program was set up to take over some of the relief chores formorely handled by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in Europe and the Orient.

China will be supplied with 50,000 long tons of wheat and 43,000 long tons of rice from the United States and approximately 30,000 long tons of rice from Siamese sources under present plans. The balance of the allocation will consist chiefly of medical supplies.

The food, an announcement said, will be distributed mainly in coastal cities, "for maximum effectiveness." However, the way will be left open to send supplies to famine areas in the interior.

First shipments are expected to start by the end of November from the United States, where procurement of both wheat and rice already has started. Rice purchases in Siam will be made by the United States Commodity Credit Corporation through its agent in Bangkok.

The department's announcement follows signing of a formal agreement between the United States and China on October 27 covering terms of the relief distribution. Officials made clear the allocation for China was for the entire fiscal year ending next June 30. Larger shares of the relief program have been given to France and Italy.

2 Red Divisions Under Attack of New First Army

Changchun, Manchuria, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—The crack American-trained Chinese new First Army, fighting its way to the rescue of Kirin, engaged two Communist divisions 15 miles south of Changchun today in what a Nationalist military spokesman described as the bloodiest battle of the Manchurian war.

Throughout this morning and afternoon Chinese air force planes loaded with bombs took off from Changchun airfield for the battle zone.

The Nationalist spokesman said the Communists were withdrawing thousands of troops from the Kirin area, 65 miles east of Changchun, and throwing them into the battle south of Changchun.

The National defense ministry called an urgent conference of top generals last night at Nanking to study a new "overall strategic plan" for the campaign in north and central China, an official spokesman said today.

Winant Held Disillusioned

found in his own words, although he left no farewell messages.

In the introduction to his two-volume memoirs, "Letter From Grosvenor Square," he wrote:

"One of the deeper reasons for wanting to write . . . is the growing disillusionment of today; which not only dims and obscures the present, but is trying to cloud the past. It seems to me that many people do not understand the urgency of these days."

Even as the tall, shaggy Winant knelt beside the cabinet—as doctors believe he did—and pointed a .32-caliber souvenir Belgian pistol at his right temple, the first volume of this work was en route to him by mail from the publishers.

Had Been Working Hard

He had been working hard on the second volume. His health had not been good. But all day yesterday, he was "in pretty good spirias," according to his secretary, J. Bernard Teulon. He went upstairs shortly after lunch and had dinner served in his room about 7 o'clock. No one saw him until servants heard a thud, but no shot, about 7:30. Found on the floor beside the Belgian pistol was a German Luger, which he had apparently chosen first, but hurled it against the wall when he could find no ammunition. A box of headache pills, some missing, was in the room.

"I believe that he suddenly cracked," said Teulon.

Ray Sawyer, national commander of Amvets, who was his personal secretary during the last of Winant's three terms as New Hampshire Governor in 1933, said in Washington:

"He was a common man and he was for the common man. He had no personal ambition. His one ambition was to make the world better."

University Students Aided

He had one hobby, Sawyer said—paying the tuition bills of students at the University of New Hampshire, "frequently exhausting his pocket money."

New Hampshire neighbors told of the time he had to borrow train fare at the station because he'd given what money he had to a washerwoman. One night he couldn't dress for dinner because he had loaned his dinner clothes to a janitor taking a lodge degree.

At Lake Success, N. Y., the United Nations paid tribute in a 20-minute memorial to Winant, who was an early leader in organization and former American representative on the U. N. Economic and Social Council.

In England, government officials and newspapers keynoted tributes from all over Europe.

In San Antonio, Tex., an old World War I buddy recounted the heroism and concern for others that won Mr. Winant friends as a flier with the French Air Corps and later with America's first air squadron.

"I never knew Winant to fail to volunteer for a hazardous assignment," said Arthur J. Coyle. "The way he brought planes home, shot to pieces, was the talk of the squadron."

Winant once took over a dangerous mission assigned to a young fellow pilot of wild habits and came through, although his plane was shot up.

"Why did you do that?" Coyle said he asked Winant.

"I am better prepared to die," Winant replied.

Coyle was Winant's partner in wildcatting for oil in Texas after the war. They struck it rich in 1920 as they were about to give up. Coyle is still in the oil business in Texas.

New Hampshire Gov. Charles M. Dale disclosed today he had wanted to appoint Winant president of the University of New Hampshire. Dale said Winant "will be considered a casualty of World War II."

Officially, his death was pronounced suicide and attributed to overwork.

Mrs. Winant said the funeral would be held at St. Paul's (Episcopal) Church here at 2 p.m. tomorrow, with burial in Blossom Hill Cemetery. Besides Mrs. Winant, he leaves two sons, John G., jr., a Princeton student; Rivington Russell, an Oxford student, and one daughter, Mrs. Carlos De C. Velando of Lima, Peru.

One of the greatest eulogies of the man whose tall, poorly clad figure was familiar in London during the Nazi air blitz, is found in the words of wartime Foreign Minister Anthony Eden—spoken long before Winant's death:

wanting to write . . . is the growing disillusionment of today; which not only dims and obscures the present, but is trying to cloud the past.

"It has seemed to me that many people do not understand the urgency of these days."

Winant lauded Winston Churchill, wartime Prime Minister of Britain, writing:

"There has been a shallow acceptance among some people in the United States and a few in Great Britain that he was a Tory determined only to defend the British empire and was indifferent to the exploitation of dependent people.

"My own belief in him was based on the conviction that he was, in fact, an old-fashioned Whig. . . . I believe if he had lived in the time of George III he would have joined with Chatham, Fox and Burke in defense of the colonies against the King and Lord North. In our time he has fought to defend the rights of man."

Of Russia, Winant wrote this was the opinion shared by him and Britain's Anthony Eden:

". . . Great faith in the Russians as fighting allies and equal belief in their ultimate desire for a peaceful world."

7 School Jobs Progressing In Fairfax

The Fairfax School Board yesterday heard progress reports on seven school projects now under construction in the county, and ordered the preliminary plans drawn for nine others.

Superintendent of Schools W. T. Woodson said the proposed new buildings will include a high school in Herndon, a new elementary school at Tyson's Corner, additions to elementary schools in Burke, Forestville, Fairview and Annandale, and to high schools in Mt. Vernon and Falls Church.

Present construction is proceeding slowly, Woodson said, but he hoped the new James E. Lee colored elementary school would be ready by February. However, the new Oak Street elementary school and additions to the Mt. Vernon and Fairfax high schools and to the Franconia and Centerville elementary schools are still in the early stages of construction.

The board ordered the opening of bids at noon, November 18, for additions to the Woodlawn white and Vienna colored elementary schools. Plans for these additions have already been approved and loans have been negotiated from the State Literary Loan Fund.

The board refused to act on a request made by Groveton citizens for aid in abating the hazards allegedly caused to the school children by the neighboring Beacon airport. After hearing officials of the State Corporation Commission and the Civil Aeronautics Authority testify that, in their opinion, the airport does not constitute a hazard, the board felt that "in view of the evidence presented, it is not incumbent upon the school board to take any action at this time."

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Mr. Bunny Lost His Luck—and His Rabbit's Foot

Mrs. Betty Perron of 5305 Dorsett st. nw. bought a dressed rabbit in an 11th st. poultry store the other day.

When she got her purchase home, she disovered that the package contained only three legs. Curious to know what had happened to the other one, she called the store.

"Yes," said the clerk, "I remember that rabbit. You happened to be the unlucky one that got the only three-legged rabbit we had. That's all the legs he had to start with."

"Okay," said Mrs. Perron. "I just wondered if you were keeping the other leg—for good luck."

ADD NAMES

Here's another "same name" situation in which two local girls are forever being mistaken for each other.

Virginia Glenn of 1432 Girard st. nw. works for the State Department.

Virginia Glenn of 1721 21st st. nw. is a public relations counsel.

After innumerable letters and phone calls had gone astray, the two Virginias decided that they ought to become acquainted.

PUBLICIST

So they met for lunch one day, and discovered that both are blonde, 5 feet 3 inches tall, the same (undisclosed) age, "pleasingly plump" (their phrase, not mine), and originally from Pennsylvania.

G-GIRL

Identifying their pictures with the usual "Miss Glenn" would have been rather futile, so I'm distinguishing the Government girl from the publicist in the only possible practical manner.

IT'LL SERVE HIM RIGHT

Margaret Belair of 118 S. Fairfax st., Alexandria, Va., writes:

Please thank Weebee for bringing us such fine weather for our tour of old Alexandria homes, for the benefit of Alexandria Hospital.

"If Weebee ever gets the sniffies, we'll be able to take care of him in the beautifully papered children's ward."

If Weebee ever gets the sniffies, Margaret, it'll probably be because he believed his own forecast and went to work without his rubbers and umbrella.

CONVERSATION PIECE

A. I. Kreger of 1228 Raum st. ne. was taking his 4-year-old daughter Carole Ann out to Palisades Park. As the streetcar crawled through Georgetown, this conversation took place:

Daughter: Why are we going so slow, Daddy?

Father: Traffic is heavy here. We'll move faster when we get to the open road.

HELP WANTED

"Can the District Liners help me establish the value of an old coin?" asks Valda Stotler of Berkeley Springs, W. Va.

"It's about the size of a dime, but lighter in weight. The date is 1865. On one side, there is a Liberty head and the words 'United States of America.' On the other are three pillars and a wreath."

PERSONAL NOTES

Harry T. Hunt, National Press Building: Next time you're in Washington Court House, Ohio, try the Cherry Hotel. The food is much better there.

Thanks to all of you who expressed regret at the temporary suspension of "Post Preview." "In a few weeks we hope to work out a new (and earlier) hour for the program.

ME, TOO

Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, who serves as general chairman of the President's Highway Safety Conference, has received the following letter:

"In support of the President's safety program . . . I suggest that the Government offer me a car, preferably a Dodge or a Plymouth, and paint it any color desired, with safety slogans all over it.

"I shall agree to drive this car for a period of one year, at the end of which time I can have it repainted and claim ownership. I would appreciate learning of your comments."

The general's correspondent is hereby notified that his comment was:

"I'll take a free car on the same conditions. Do you know anybody who will give me one?"

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—In the files of the Navy Department is a wartime story of bravery which saved the city of Newburgh, N. Y., from a disaster similar to the tragic one which befell Texas City, Texas. It happened at the Eureka Shipyards in Newburgh, where a munitions ship had put in for repairs. One of the laborers noticed that a fuse was afire. He spread the alarm and the workers started streaming from the ship, each shouting a warning. Only one man fought the human tide—Milton Blackstone, owner of the Eureka Shipyard. He shoved his way through the men fleeing from the munitions ship, boarded the vessel and there, alone, put out the dynamite fuse which, had it burned three inches more, would have destroyed the ship, his shipyard and the lives and property of the citizens of Newburgh.

Last week Bob Crosby noticed that Hollywood people were being more solicitous about him. "This means only one thing," he insists, "Bing must be back on the air" . . . Tom Frelinghuysen, the sculptor, who did the admirals' heads on display at Grand Central during Navy Week, has scarred hands as a result of his Navy work. Frelinghuysen was assistant bird warden at Midway, where his hands were scarred while disposing of the razor-beaked gooney birds fatally injured by the planes . . . "Good News," the musical which will play at the Music Hall during Christmas week, is the first movie-writing job by Betty Comden and Adolph Green. When Comden and Green were members of The Revuers the Music Hall was the only place from which they were fired.

The bartender at the Fireside Inn is telling his customers of two men who once met there and started to drink. The first man sipped his one drink slowly. The second man gulped 10 drinks, paid his check, then he walked up the wall and across the ceiling, walked down the other wall and walked out through the door . . . "Well I'll be darned," said the first man . . . "Oh, that's nothing," the bartender told him. "He often goes home without saying goodnight."

George Grosz, the painter, tells of his first meeting with Director Josef Von Sternberg, in his autobiography, "A Little Yes and a Big No." The meeting took place at a Berlin restaurant, where Von Sternberg said: "No, I don't really earn that much—at most, perhaps, three times as much as the President of the United States" . . . When the Italian film, "Open City," ends its two-year run on Broadway, it will be followed by another Italian prize-winning film, "To Live in Peace" . . . Whenever Harry Goldberg, the night club doorman, sees John Jacob Astor he tells bystanders: "Mr. Astor and I have something in common. I fought his former stepfather, Enzo Fiermonte. I flattened him in 3 rounds."

It's Terrific!

Housefurnishings and Toy Floor

(The Lower Level)

"So huge and beautiful, the whole store is a shopper's paradise," glowed one pleased customer. "Why, it's half a block long and simply packed with fine merchandise, with the same nationally famous labels I see in the Washington Store. All four floors are immense, beginning with the Lower Level and that's a modern housekeeper's dream come true! Washers, refrigerators, ranges . . . a complete hardware shop that's a boon to home-makers . . . bath and closet shops that are simply out of this world. There's even a restaurant—the delightful Silver Room—ready to serve me delicious meals. Know now why I say that it's 'terrific'?"
